

AGAINST PEACE WITH ISRAEL, NEW PREMIER OF JORDAN SAYS

Said Mufti to Seek Return of Refugees to Former Homes in Palestine—To Work for Arab Alliances.

AMMAN, Jordan, June 21 (AP)—Premier Said Mufti says Jordan's new Government will never conclude peace with Israel.

The new Government chief told Parliament yesterday that he would seek the return of the Arab Palestine refugees to their former homes in Israel. Nearly 500,000 of them live in Jordan.

He also told the legislators he would work for anti-Israeli military alliances with other Arab nations similar to those Jordan recently concluded with Syria and Egypt.

The intent, he said, is to encircle "the usurped part of the Arab world" with a ring of bases.

Said Mufti repeated that he intends to seek revision of Jordan's 1948 treaty with Britain, which gives the British rights to military bases in this country in exchange for subsidizing Jordan's army.

(The British Foreign Office said May 2 that Jordan wants the subsidy, which has averaged some $30,000,000 a year, paid directly to its treasury rather than to a military bank account in London supervised by British officers attached to the Jordan forces.)

The Premier added that his government welcomed offers of financial aid from Egypt, Syria, and Saudi Arabia, who have military alliances under Egyptian command. The three nations want to supplant the British subsidy entirely, but so far Jordan has declined to give it up.

In Jerusalem, a spokesman for the Israeli Foreign Ministry said Israel had accused Syria and Jordan of issuing "threats" against the Jewish state which violate "the spirit and letter of the general armistice agreement."

The spokesman said complaints have been lodged with the Israel-Jordan and Israel-Syrian Mixed Armistice Commissions. Both are United Nations bodies.

2 Destroyers Sold by Britain Arrive in Israel.

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

TEL AVIV, Israel, June 21.—Two destroyers sold to Israel by Britain arrived with considerable ceremony yesterday at the port of Haifa. They will be the largest warships in the Israeli navy.

They are of the same class as two destroyers delivered by the British to Egypt, but are less powerful than two Soviet destroyers which Egypt reportedly received recently.

An Israeli army spokesman reported that Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion and Mrs. Golda Myerson, the new Foreign Minister, were among those on hand to greet the ships as a squadron of jets flew overhead.

PLAYWRIGHT SAYS HE WILL MARRY MARILYN MONROE

WASHINGTON, June 21 (UP)—Playwright Arthur Miller said today he will marry actress Marilyn Monroe very soon, perhaps within the "next few days."

Miller announced the long-rumored wedding plans to reporters after telling the House Committee on Un-American Activities that he has never been under "Communist party discipline" but has contributed to Communist-front organizations.

Miller said he hoped to honeymoon in Europe with Miss Monroe, who is leaving for London July 13 to make a new picture. He has applied to the State Department for a passport. But his last passport application, two years ago, was turned down.

Rumors had been flying on Broadway that Miller, who won a Pulitzer prize for his "Death of a Salesman," would marry the movie star in Connecticut this weekend. Reporters asked Miller about it during a brief recess in his testimony before the committee.

Miller acknowledged to the committee that in the late 1940s he gave money to some organizations which were later cited as Communist fronts.

"In those times, I supported some things I wouldn't support now," he said. "I would not now support a cause or movement that was dominated by Communists."

Truman Warns of 'Election Year' Illusions About Russia

Former President HARRY TRUMAN in cap and gown after receiving honorary degree at Oxford University yesterday.

LONDON, June 21 (AP)—Harry Truman cautioned tonight against "election year" illusions about Russia and said the free world must remain strong.

The common danger to the West has rarely been greater, though it has often been more strident and spectacular, than the changes in Soviet foreign policy since the death of Stalin.

"Old men—so I am told, though I have no first-hand information—turn to the past," he said. "Today the onrush of change, the new problems of new days, leave little time for musing among memories."

"But I suggest that among some changes that are real there are some that are counterfeit. I am not prepared to throw away all we have learned by hard experience. To believe that all who claim to have been converted have in fact cast out the old Adam."

"Even when we are moonstruck by the silvery illusions of election years, we ought to bear in mind that if we consume most of what we produce we will not be able to stand up against these nations who work incessantly to increase their power—their power to threaten, their power to resist, to overawe and absorb their neighbors, and their power to strike with force of arms."

"So I would urge that—out of common prudence—you and we and all our friends and associates should not get careless about our strength or our unity."

HOUSE UNIT OK'S BILL FOR AID TO JOBLESS AREAS

WASHINGTON, June 21 (UP)—The House Banking Committee today approved legislation which would let the Federal Government fight chronic unemployment by helping build new industrial plants in "distressed areas." The vote was 15 to 8.

The bill would create an area redevelopment administration to oversee loans to build plants in areas of chronic unemployment. The Government would make available $500,000 that either could be lent or given. It also would authorize the agency head to provide technical assistance to the unemployment areas.

The committee bill would set up revolving funds of $100,000,000 for industrial development loans in industrial areas, $50,000,000 for industrial development loans in rural areas and $100,000,000 for loans to build public facilities. It also would authorize $100,000,000 in home improvement loans and another $100,000,000 in grants for slum clearance in the unemployment areas.

MAGIC CHEF IS NAMED IN MONOPOLY CHARGE

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—Attorney General Herbert Brownell today charged two eastern concerns with monopolizing trade in temperature controls for gas cooking ranges. He asked the United States district court at Pittsburgh to enjoin them from engaging in restrictive practices.

The civil anti-trust suit named as defendants Robert Shaw-Fulton Controls Co. of Greensburg, Pa., and Wilcoator Co. of Elizabeth, N.J. They were described as having handled about 96 per cent of all temperature control sales on the open market in the United States in 1955. The suit named as co-conspirators, but not as defendants, Reynolds Metals Co., Richmond, Va.; Magic Chef, Inc., St. Louis; and Penn Controls, Inc., Goshen, Ind.

The complaint charged the defendants set up restrictive agreements between themselves and the alleged co-conspirators providing for pooling of patents, price-fixing and prohibitions against licensing of control patents to other manufacturers.

19,064 FREED, EAST GERMAN LEADERS SAY

Most of Them Were Political Prisoners — Minister of Justice Assailed.

BERLIN, June 21 (AP)—East Germany's Communist rulers announced today they have freed 19,064 prisoners, most of them held for political crimes. At the same time the Reds opened a new and violent attack on the woman who put many of the prisoners behind bars, "Red Hilde" Benjamin.

The blast at 54-year-old Mrs. Benjamin, the grim-faced, heavy-set Minister of Justice, was the strongest so far within the party. It could foreshadow a purge of the top woman in the East German government.

Mrs. Benjamin and Prosecutor General Ernst Melsheimer were accused of unjustified arrests, illegal activity against the people and too ruthless administration of justice.

The attack was lodged by a special "rehabilitation" commission named by the party's central committee to review cases of purged party members. The commission's report was given front-page publication in the official party newspaper, Neues Deutschland, and was also distributed by the government news agency, A.D.N.

Mrs. Benjamin first came under attack last March at the third party conference. Premier Grotewohl accused her Justice Ministry of illegal activity and ordered it to "safeguard the rights of citizens" through closer control over the courts.

The East German Government press office said 15,756 of those released were convicted of political crimes, including espionage for the West.

The other 3308 were Germans sentenced by Soviet military tribunals for war crimes. Imprisoned in Russia since the war, they were turned over to the East Germans in the winter when other Germans held in the Soviet Union were allowed to go home.

The announcement said the cases of other prisoners who have served two-thirds of their terms for political crimes were being examined with the aim of reducing their sentences or suspending the remainder of their terms.

It added that the East German government considered these "far-reaching" measures as a "decisive contribution to the easing of tension in Germany and to the broadening of possibilities for an understanding between the two German states."

GAS BILL Foe SAYS HE WENT TO WHITE HOUSE

Asked Adams to Refute Rumors of Administration Support, Got No Results.

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—The chairman of an organization that lobbied against the natural gas bill testified today he attempted to sound out the Administration's stand on the measure in a talk with Sherman Adams, President Eisenhower's top aide.

J. E. Heyke, president of the Brooklyn Union Gas Co., said he went to see Adams when word got around during Senate debate on the controversial bill that the Eisenhower Administration was supporting it.

Heyke told the special eight-member Senate lobby investigating committee that he told Adams if rumors of Administration support for the measure were not true, steps should be taken to refute them.

Asked the results of his conference with Adams, Heyke replied, "I wouldn't say there were any results."

Bill Finally Vetted. The bill, to free natural gas producers from direct federal regulation, finally was passed by Congress but the President vetoed it.

Mr. Eisenhower said he was in favor of the general objectives of the measure but turned it down because of what he called "highly questionable" activities by some of its petroleum industry backers.

The committee's inquiry is an outgrowth of charges of high-pressure lobbying efforts. Heyke was the first witness from a group which opposed the bill. Backers have been questioned.

Heyke said Adams was friendly and attentive but non-committal.

"He gave me the impression that it was not an Administration-backed bill," Heyke said, but he hastened to add that this was only his impression.

Heyke is chairman of The Council of Local Gas Companies, which he described as an industry-wide committee of gas distributing companies formed late in October 1955 to try to defeat the gas bill.

Lobbied Against Bill. He testified that the council had engaged in lobbying members of the Senate to vote against the bill, but he denied it had done any improper lobbying. He said its expenses came to $27,000, and told the committee he knew of no improprieties by organizations on either side of the fight.

Last December, Heyke said,

Turks Hinge Approval of Plan On Cyprus to British Pledge

Ankara Wants Military Guarantees as Proposal Would Permit Vote on Island's Reunion With Greece.

LONDON, June 21 (AP)—Turkey today was reported demanding military guarantees from Britain before approving a British plan aimed at settling the boiling Cyprus dispute.

The British plan, which informants said would be announced in Parliament within the next few days, would give the island eventual self-determination of its future status.

And that would mean virtually certain victory for Greek-speaking Cypriots—a big majority of the island's 500,000 population—who want Cyprus to become part of Greece.

40 Miles From Turkey. Turkey has said it never could accept such a merger. The island is only 40 miles from the Turkish mainland and has a sizable Turkish minority.

Informed sources said the Turkish government was seeking guarantees not only for the safety of the Cypriot Turkish minority but for Turkey itself.

British sources, however, said they believed the Turkish demands could be met without threatening hopes of a Cyprus settlement.

The British plan is reported to provide for self-determination by the Cypriots at a fixed future date—probably in 10 years.

An authoritative source said the government statement on Cyprus would cover:

New Constitution. 1. A new constitution giving a wide measure of self-government to the island.

2. A statement on self-determination.

3. A public amnesty for persons found guilty of extremist acts.

4. Guarantees for the rights of the Turkish minority.

The Governor of Cyprus, Field Marshal Sir John Harding, has been in London nearly three weeks talking with Prime Minister Eden and other officials.

A principal aim of Britain's policy is to preserve its military council registered under the federal lobbying act, as did "its Washington agents," Charles H. Frazier and W. E. Himsworth.

Frazier, secretary of the council, is a vice president of the United Gas Improvement Co. of Philadelphia. Himsworth, assistant vice president of the Brooklyn Union Gas Co., was in charge of the council's Washington office.

"Our work, which lasted until about the middle of February 1956," Heyke said, "was motivated by a sincere desire to accurately inform legislators and the public in general as to our position, which we hoped would result in active opposition to this particular piece of legislation."

Limited Expenses. He said council expenses were limited to "professional assistance in the field of economics and public information," the publication of a few documents, traveling expenses for volunteer workers, and office expenses.

The investigating committee previously has received testimony that one organization favoring the bill spent more than $1,750,000 in 18 months and another about $215,000. Both groups were financed by oil and gas producing companies.

Several acts of sabotage were reported. Near Turenne, raiders damaged some 34,000 vine roots, cutting about 6,000 of them and trampling the others. Donkeys and cattle were killed in several farms east of Algiers and crops damaged.

In Paris, Defense Minister Maurice Bourges-Maunoury told an Anglo-American Press Association meeting Algeria must be won back by a long, slow campaign of pacification. He said quick action would end violence but the threat of new uprisings would remain.

France now has about 400,000 fighting men, including police, in Algeria, the defense minister said.

REBELS KILL 25 FRENCHMEN IN ALGERIA ATTACKS

29 Europeans Seriously Wounded — Foreign Legion Convoy Is Ambushed.

ALGIERS, June 21 (AP)—Nationalist guerrillas exacted a heavy toll on the French today through raids and ambushes launched in the wake of the execution of two rebels in Algeria Tuesday.

Twenty-five Frenchmen, military or civilians, were killed in the 24 hours ending at noon and 29 were seriously injured. The dead included four army officers.

One of the big ambushes occurred about 25 miles from Sid Bel Abbas, the Foreign Legion's storied headquarters. A strong band of nationalists jumped a convoy of about 100 Legionnaires and five vehicles yesterday.

The group radioed for help and Legion reinforcements were sent to its rescue. The French reported 10 Legionnaires were killed and seven wounded in the early hours of the battle, which was still going on this morning. The rebel losses were put at four dead.

In another ambush in the area of Ain Chair, near the Moroccan border, nine French enlisted men and two officers were killed. Eleven other soldiers were wounded. The French said 15 rebels were killed there.

In Algiers last night a rebel band sprayed pistol fire into cafes and bars, killing four Europeans. Two died in a hospital this morning. Eleven others were wounded. Troops and police killed two of the attackers and captured two in a running street fight.

Several acts of sabotage were reported. Near Turenne, raiders damaged some 34,000 vine roots, cutting about 6,000 of them and trampling the others. Donkeys and cattle were killed in several farms east of Algiers and crops damaged.

PARKING GARAGE BILLS BACKED BY FRANKLIN AVENUE BUSINESS GROUP

Downtown Association Tells Alderman It 'Solidly Favors' Land Condemnation for City Projects.

Full support of pending bills to authorize condemnation of land for construction of two municipal garages downtown was announced today by the Downtown Franklin Business Association.

Max Gale, public relations chairman of the organization, in a letter to Alderman Archie Blaine, Sixth Ward Democrat, stated that the association is "solidly in favor of passage of the bills."

The association consists of about 40 merchants doing business in Blaine's ward. In presenting the bills in the Board of Aldermen at the request of the city administration, Blaine said he did so with reservations because he was not sure the municipal parking garages proposed would be good for small businesses. Another group of owners of small firms, Downtown, Inc., also has announced support of the measures.

"For the betterment of the downtown area," Gale wrote Blaine, "we urgently request that you do all in your power to see that these very important bills are passed."

Hearing Tomorrow.

The measures to which he referred are two bills on which a public hearing before the aldermanic zoning committee is scheduled for 2 p.m. tomorrow. Members of the committee today visited privately-owned parking lots in the vicinity of the two proposed municipal garages at the request of operators to determine, Alderman James W. Noonan, committee chairman, said, whether they are overcrowded or have vacancies.

At a lot at Ninth street and Delmar boulevard operated by Jerome Stedelin and his son, Wayne, the aldermen found a total of 185 vacancies shortly after noon. The lot has 342 parking spaces. Stedelin told them the hour between noon and 1 p.m. is their "peak business hour."

The Stedelin's lot is in one of the blocks which the city proposes to take over for development of a municipal garage. It is bounded by Delmar, Lucas, Eighth and Ninth streets.

Stedelin admitted in response to a question by Noonan that business decreases steadily from June 15 to Aug. 15 because of vacations. The operator of another parking lot at the northeast corner of Eighth and Delmar told the aldermen that his lot operates at only 30 to 35 per cent of capacity.

Prices at Stedelin's lot are 25 cents for the first hour plus 20 cents an hour for each additional hour. The maximum charge is $1.05 for a full day's parking.

Official Estimates. City traffic authorities have estimated that there is an immediate need for 6000 additional parking spaces for automobiles in the downtown area.

The committee then visited two lots in the block bounded by Chestnut, Pine and Sixth streets and Broadway, the proposed site of the second municipal garage. On one of these lots with a capacity of 35 automobiles they found 10 vacancies. The other lot had 125 parking spaces and 100 of them were vacant.

The committee members also visited Dunn's Pawn Shop, 526 Pine, where they were informed that the building had recently been remodeled at a cost of $100,000. It lies within the proposed garage site.

The last parking lot visited by the aldermen on the southwest corner of Broadway and Washington avenue, which has two underground parking areas and a total capacity of 276 automobiles. There were 125 vacancies.

SOVIET EMBASSY AIDS ARE EXPECTED HERE

Two Russians Believed to Be Driving From Jefferson City.

Two members of the Russian embassy staff at Washington, D.C., now on an extensive tour of this country, were believed to be driving to St. Louis from Jefferson City today.

They were wearing sport shirts at Jefferson City, and in at least four stops in the downtown area asked many questions—with an accent—but told little about themselves. At every stop, agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation were right behind them, finding out what they asked about, what they purchased or what was given to them.

The tour is with official United States permission. The State Department announced in Washington last week that their travel plan had been filed properly showing that the proposed to travel in Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Missouri.

They are Lt. Col. Boris Bogatyrev, assistant air attaché, and Lt. Alexander Okhapkin, administrative secretary. At Washington the Soviet Embassy said it had no information on their whereabouts or destination today.

The FBI declined to say anything about the touring Russians or the agents following the men.

At Jefferson City the men visited a drug store, the office of the Chamber of Commerce, a hotel coffee shop and a Woolworth store. They bought post cards, a map of Jefferson City, asked to see a city directory, and picked up some free resort folders.

The Russians were described as being in their late 20s. There was nothing unusual about their dress to set them apart, and they attracted little attention as the news got about that two men with strange accents were in town.

Russian embassy officials are permitted to travel in this country on a reciprocal basis, depending on travel permission for the United States embassy staff in Moscow.

Blame Other Group.

When they were arrested, they said the trouble was started by members of the other group.

The victims, all students at Logan Basic Chiropractic College, 7701 Florissant road, Normandy, are William Hollen and William Hall of Akron, O.; Charles Tebbets of Buffalo, N.Y.; John Hogan of Midland, Pa.; and James Leone of Bend, Ill.

All but Leone were accompanied by their wives and children. Leone's fiancée was with him. The fight moved outside the locker room as it was intensified, and the women and children looked on.

The youths charged were released on $2000 bonds, and their preliminary hearing was set for June 29.

Brown has a record of five previous arrests for investigation, and Mintner has been arrested twice before for investigation and for loitering. The three juveniles had been arrested a total of 11 times previously.

Sheriff Plackmeyer said the group of nine had been at the beach only about five minutes and had not had time to get into their swimming trunks when the trouble started. They were boisterous when they arrived and were warned by the manager not to cause any trouble, the sheriff added.

Other witnesses said the victims said were used by their assailants included a steel bar and a can opener. One victim said he was choked severely, another told of being pounded on the kidneys. Others had a cut over an eye, a lip cut, a smashed finger and a deep cut on the back. None was seriously injured.

The beach is about four miles north of St. Charles.

Reginald Hobson Drant, 18 years old, 4 Ladue Hills, Olive, surrendered at Clayton today on an indictment charging him with assault with intent to kill in the log dropping incident on Daniel Boone Highway May 27 in which a Highway Patrol car was struck.

Accompanied by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Drant, and Attorney Charles M. Shaw, Drant furnished $5000 bond signed by his parents. He told reporters he had "no statement."

Drant, a Ladue High School senior, admitted, police said, that he pushed a 30-pound piece of firewood from an overpass spanning the highway. The log crashed through the windshield of a patrol car, narrowly missing the officer driving the machine.

The indictment, one of 11 returned by the grand jury, had been suppressed by Circuit Judge Michael J. Carroll pending the defendant's surrender. Prior to presentation of the evidence to the grand jury, Drant was charged in a warrant with assault to do great bodily harm.

Four youths named by police as having witnessed the log dropping were subpoenaed by the grand jury. Two of them, Charles W. Hagemann, 18, of 7572 Council place, Richmond Heights, and Edward A. Overby Jr., 18, of 2543 Gerhard avenue, Maplewood, refused to testify on grounds of possible self-incrimination. Both said they acted on advice of attorneys, who accompanied them to Clayton Court house.

With Jury 45 Minutes.

Joseph Varner Jr., 19 years old, of 6232 Northwood avenue, Clayton, and Judd Presley, 16, of 7448 Cromwell drive, Clayton, spent 45 minutes with the grand jury. Before going into the grand jury room, Varner told reporters that he would "tell the jury everything they want."

Although refusing to testify, Hagemann freely discussed with reporters and policemen supervised drag racing, in which he said he and Overby have participated in Illinois. Hagemann denounced the log dropping, and voiced the opinion the incident had ruined chances for establishing supervised drag racing in St. Louis county.

The St. Louis circuit court grand jury was scheduled to start its investigation of juvenile delinquency today, hearing evidence in two cases involving beatings and threats by groups of young hoodlums.

10 MILLION BOND FUND URGED FOR AIRPORT NEEDS

Briscoe Says Commission Will Seek Issue for Revenue-Producing Facilities.

The Municipal Airport Commission has decided to seek a $10,000,000 bond issue to finance construction of revenue-producing facilities which will be needed in the future at Lambert-St. Louis Field, Conway B. Briscoe, director of public utilities and commission chairman, said today.

The commission plans to ask the Board of Aldermen to submit the bond proposal at a future city election, he said at a luncheon meeting of the Optimist Club of St. Louis at Hotel Statler.

If approved by the voters, Briscoe said, bond funds would be used only for construction of revenue-producing facilities like hangars, cargo-handling equipment and other service installations that could be leased to commercial airlines and other firms using the field. The bonds would be retired from revenue produced by the facilities, rather than by a tax, Briscoe said. He explained that the proposed bond issue is expected to be adequate to meet anticipated needs for such facilities for the next 15 years.

Expansion of non-revenue producing facilities will be financed from other sources, he said.

The commission is making a study now of legal steps necessary for submission of the proposal to the aldermen and eventually to the voters, Briscoe stated. A date for the proposed election has not been selected.

Briscoe also disclosed that a preliminary request has been made by the city to the Civil Aeronautics Administration for Federal funds to pay half the cost of expanding the recently completed terminal building by one-third. Cost is estimated at $1,250,000.

This application is intended to meet future rather than immediate needs, Briscoe explained. Preliminary plans are being prepared now for the addition, which would be at the east end of the present building.

Briscoe said that increasing use of Lambert field in the future by civilian aircraft will require a reduction in military operations there. He suggested acquisition by the city of another field to handle military craft and overflow civilian operations is the "most economical approach."

David E. Leigh, airport manager, told the group there are 193,800 landings and take-offs annually at the field now.

Child and His Rescuer

DAVID LOCKE, 2 years old, with his mother, MRS. FRED LOCKE, after he was whisked from in front of a speeding truck today.

By a Post-Dispatch Photographer. JAMES A. POINSETT, who rescued the child.

MAN SAVES BOY, 2, WITH DARING DIVE IN FRONT OF TRUCK

A service man for the St. Louis County Water Co. dived in front of a speeding truck today to rescue 2-year-old David Locke, who had wandered into the street in front of his home, 3003 Kincaid avenue, St. John.

The truck driver did not stop. James A. Poinsett, the service man, who lives at 6332 Corbitt avenue, University City, had parked his truck across the street from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Locke, parents of David. He was going to do some work there.

"Little Davey" apparently wanted to see the water company truck and started across the street," his mother related. "When he saw this other truck coming, he started back toward home, but he couldn't go fast enough. The water company man dove through the air, grabbed the baby and landed by our driveway with Davey safe and sound."

In landing, Poinsett struck a tree stump. Mrs. Locke, not knowing whether he was badly injured, called the water company and gave Poinsett coffee until other service men arrived. Poinsett was taken to a physician's office for treatment of bruises and then taken home.

The Devil and Idle Hands. FORT MADISON, Ia. (AP)—Percy Lainsow, Iowa state penitentiary warden, says men who do creative work with their hands are less likely to wind up in prison. About 20 of the 1300 penitentiary inmates here have been skilled workers, he says, and "strangely, most of them are in for murder."

PARKING IN FRONT OF FIREPLUGS IS URGED FOR CABS

Downtown Merchants Group Says Proposal Would Ease Traffic Congestion.

A proposal to permit taxicabs to park in front of fire hydrants and standpipes while drivers are in the vehicles was made yesterday to the Parking Meter Commission by representatives of Downtown Merchants' Service, an organization of 93 downtown merchants.

No action was taken by the commission, which requested the organization to present this and other proposals for on-street parking in the downtown area in writing.

Powell Adams, president of the merchant's group, and J. Herndon Kirkland, vice president, told the commission they believed permitting cabs to park in front of fireplugs while drivers are in the vehicles would alleviate traffic congestion they said is now caused by circling and cruising near downtown hotels.

They said they had discussed the matter with Alderman A. J. Cervantes, chairman of the aldermanic traffic committee, who approved the idea.

Cervantes, an official of Laclede Cab Co., told the Post-Dispatch, however, he would not approve such a measure unless a severe penalty is provided for drivers who leave their vehicles while parked in front of hydrants and standpipes.

The commission approved one proposal of the merchants' group to provide for installation of parking meters on the north side of Chestnut street between Eleventh street and Fifteenth street. Meters are presently in operation only on the south side of Chestnut street.

Because the street is considerably wider between Eleventh and Fifteenth than in other places, the merchants' group contended metered parking could be permitted on both sides in this section without interfering with the flow of traffic.

Plans to install meters along Twelfth boulevard between Clark avenue and Franklin avenue are being held in abeyance pending a check into a conflict with the master traffic control ordinance, it was announced.

The ordinance presently prohibits any parking on either side between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. daily.

'WE ABANDONED ALL THAT WAS BAD,' TITO SAYS

No Difference Between Soviet and Yugoslav People, He Asserts After Kremlin Visit.

LONDON, June 21 (AP)—President Josip (Tito) Broz said today he and the leaders of the Soviet Union have "abandoned all that was bad between us," the Moscow radio reported.

The Yugoslav leader spoke on his arrival at Kiev en route home after a triumphant three-week visit to the Soviet Union in which he and the Kremlin bosses agreed to co-operate in the future on the basis of complete equality.

Once an outcast of the Communist family by orders of Stalin, Tito was quoted by the Moscow radio as saying in his Kiev speech, delivered in Russian:

"We have embarked on a new path. There is no difference between you, the Soviet people, and the Yugoslav people."

His emphasis that the Russian people were not responsible for his ostracism by the Communist world appeared to show that Tito still has not forgotten the role played by some present members of the Soviet government who backed Stalin's actions against him.

Tito gave this reason for his trip to the Soviet Union: "We came to the Soviet Union to strengthen even more the cause which was initiated a year ago (when Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev visited Belgrade) and to restore the fraternal and friendly relations between our countries. And now we appear before you very pleased that we have made such a great stride forward."

"Of course, our very aim was, in the first place to strengthen our friendship, to go forward together, for our co-operation. And, secondly, to work together to strengthen peace throughout the world. Here there is no difference between us."

"We have no difference in our aims. We are marching forward, and our desire is to march as quickly as possible to the best goal for humanity—socialism."

"We are pleased to see that for the past few years you have been moving forward in great strides."

BLUE CROSS PLEA AGAINST OVER-HOSPITALIZATION

Physicians and hospitals were urged to co-operate in eliminating unnecessary hospitalization of Blue Cross Hospital Service Plan members, in a talk by William C. B. Sodemann, Blue Cross president, at the twentieth annual meeting of the corporate membership at Hotel Chase yesterday.

"Over-utilization can only result in increased charges for Blue Cross services," Sodemann said. "If each patient hospitalized last year had left the hospital one day earlier, Blue Cross would have saved $1,663,000."

Four new trustees were elected to the corporate board. They are Thomas Fox, consultant at St. Anthony Hospital, succeeding Mrs. Irene Schlicker, president of Christian Hospital; George Spiva, Joplin, succeeding Galen Nash, Joplin; Dr. Thomas S. Fleming, Moberly, succeeding Dr. A. J. C. McCallum, Aurora; and Dr. William H. Poggemeier, St. Charles, succeeding Dr. Carl F. Vohs, St. Louis.

HOUSE OK'S STIFF PENALTIES FOR NARCOTICS PEDDLING

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—By unanimous vote the House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday a bill drastically stiffening penalties for narcotic and marijuana peddling.

The bill by Representative Hale Boggs (Dem.) Louisiana, doubles present maximum sentences for illegal narcotic traffic to a top of 40 years, increases maximum fines to $20,000, and denies probation or suspension of sentences for convicted violators.

Under existing law, violators are generally liable to 2-to-5 year jail sentences for first offenses, 5-to-10 years for second offenses, and 10-to-20 years for subsequent offenses. Fines do not exceed $2000.

The Senate passed a bill earlier which decreed death for offenders in some circumstances. The conflicting versions must now go to conference.

U.S. ARMY COUPLE GOES THROUGH ITS FIFTH WEDDING

TAIPEI, Formosa, June 21 (AP)—An American Army couple today went through their fifth marriage ceremony since they were married in 1943 in Los Angeles.

Maj. Douglas Patrick Harper, 35 years old, of Los Angeles explained: "To us this is a sort of way of thanking God for bringing us together and giving us such happiness."

The major said he and his 34-year-old wife, the former Dorothy Ann Humrick of La Crosse, Wis., hope to make the wedding ceremony an annual event. More than 90 guests attended, including the couple's 7-year-old son, Douglas, who was born in Germany.

It was the Harpers' first civil ceremony. Both Episcopalians, they were married in the church Dec. 24, 1943, at Los Angeles. The repeat ceremonies have been held in Los Angeles on Dec. 13, 1945, at Southern Pines, N.C., Dec. 13, 1946, and at Fort Bragg, N.C., Dec. 13, 1948.

PRESIDENT OK'S RESIGNATION BY FARM OFFICIAL

low-income farmers through loans and technical services. In addition, with your recommendations much additional legislation has been approved which enables the Farmers Home Administration to be of even greater service in the future to low-income farmers throughout the country.

"You have my best wishes for your health and happiness, in the years ahead."

"Sincerely,
"DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER."

Testimony to Be Studied.

A spokesman for the Senate Civil Service subcommittee investigating the Farmers Home Administration said meanwhile that the Justice Department will be asked to examine testimony about heavy drinking and political activities by agency officials.

The spokesman also said the group plans to resume hearings soon on another facet of the F.H.A. investigation — charges that F.H.A. headquarters in Washington sent out lists of Republican politicians to be appointed to county F.H.A. committees.

The spokesman said the subcommittee will send the Justice Department the testimony of:

1. McLeish, who denied charges of drinking on the job. McLeish, who said, "I can handle four or five drinks," said he made a "mistake" on a Government personnel form and listed his salary in a prior job $2000 higher than what he actually received.

2. Wylie Reed, fired as assistant administrator by McLeish on charges of drinking. He said McLeish is addicted to a daily supply of liquor and was intoxicated every night after work.

3. Carl O. Hansen, former F.H.A. chief in Montana, who testified he continued some of his private wool-buying business while on the federal payroll and exchanged warm personal letters with his secretary until he found she was keeping tabs on his phone calls.

Reed testified that he had seen McLeish in his office "10 or 15 times" when he had been drinking enough to interfere with his duties.

George Reuss, F.H.A. director for Illinois, said McLeish and his assistant, Malcolm H. Holliday Jr., sent him lists of persons to be named to F.H.A. county committees. Reuss said the lists included many Republican precinct and county chairmen and persons who were not farmers at all, or rich men only incidentally interested in farming.

He said the lists came from 1953 until last November, then ceased when McLeish announced in St. Louis that the practice would be stopped. But the lists started coming again last month, he said.

Trouble With Spanish.*

Both Reed and McLeish told of a dinner in San Angelo, Tex., where a husband tried to fight the F.H.A. boss because of a remark to his wife. McLeish said he thought he told her in Spanish, "I'd like to eat with you tonight," but his Spanish was faulty and it came out something like "I'd like to be with you tonight."

The husband "made an issue" of this, but the combatants were separated and friend led McLeish back to his hotel, Reed said.

By the Associated Press.

The three-day hearing was suspended yesterday, but H. W. Brawley, the committee's executive director, said it may be reopened to inquire into the behavior of other F.H.A. officials.

Hansen was asked by Brawley yesterday if it was true that he and McLeish "waltzed around" kissing wives of agency employees at a meeting in Montana two years ago. Mrs. Kathryn Carter of Bozeman, Mont., Hansen's former secretary, testified to that effect last Monday.

Hansen replied: "It absolutely isn't true about the kissing, because that's something I don't believe in."

Hansen also disputed testimony of Mrs. Carter that she wrote so many personal letters for him that she had to work after hours to catch up on office business. He said she "volunteered" to type some personal correspondence for him.

Hansen, who stepped out as Farmers Home Administration director in Montana at McLeish's request last March, testified McLeish had telephoned to suggest, "we are going to have to have your resignation because of the Drew Pearson column and evidence from our own investigators."

He did not elaborate on the column, but Pearson once wrote that Hansen mixed personal business and politics on Government time. Mrs. Carter testified Monday that Hansen spent hours drumming up business for a wool brokerage firm.

Hansen said he asked McLeish "if it wasn't necessary to have some proof and he replied 'No, it is bad enough to have your resignation.'"

POLICE PERMITTED TO TAKE OFF TIES, OPEN COLLARS

St. Louis police today were granted permission to remove neckties and open shirt collars in hot weather.

The order, believed to be the first such authorization in the history of the department, was issued by Acting Chief of Police Joseph E. Casey. The effect was immediate, and there were joking references to the possibility of adopting Bermuda shorts as part of the summer uniform.

St. Louis county police are permitted to work without ties, and with shirt collars unbuttoned, when the temperature exceeds 78 degrees. The county officers also are permitted to roll their sleeves one turn, a concession not included in Casey's order.

EISENHOWER OUT OF HIS HOSPITAL ROOM FIRST TIME

the clock shifts were relieved from their assignments today. The special nurses and clinical technicians, of course, will remain on duty 24 hours a day.

The reference to the surgeons concerned the three lieutenant colonels and three majors, all qualified doctors, who have taken turns staying in the President's room virtually every minute since the operation.

Mr. Eisenhower still has doctors on call at a few seconds' notice. Both his personal physician, Maj. Gen. Howard Snyder, and the Walter Reed commanding general, Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, who performed the operation, are constantly within reach.

G.O.P. CONVENTION PLANNERS CALLED

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP) — The Republican convention arrangement committee, meeting tomorrow, apparently will make its plans without direct word from President Eisenhower's second-term intentions.

National Chairman Leonard W. Hall is expected to tell the 46-member committee he is confident there is no change in Mr. Eisenhower's plans to run again, but it will be only an opinion.

The arrangements committee faces the task of picking a keynote and other officials for the nominating convention in San Francisco, beginning Aug. 20.

Also before the group will be a proposal to shorten the convention from four to three days—a move that would contemplate the speedy approval of a ticket headed by Mr. Eisenhower with Vice President Richard M. Nixon as his running mate. San Francisco officials oppose telescoping the meeting and may carry their viewpoint.

Hall obviously would like to take to the committee meeting reassuring word direct from Mr. Eisenhower that his intestinal operation will not affect his plans to run again.

On the other hand, if there was any positive signal of doubt about a second term bid, Hall probably would feel under compulsion to ask the arrangements group to delay its final decisions.

But Hall apparently is not going to see Mr. Eisenhower before tomorrow's meeting. White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said yesterday Mr. Eisenhower has no plans to send any message to the group.

He added that the President had not talked politics with any member of his staff, including presidential assistant Sherman Adams.

In this instance, Hall apparently is caught in the web of one of his own rules—that the National Committee will not initiate any of its contacts with the President. Under this rule, the G.O.P. chairman does not ask for appointments. He goes to see the President only when the suggestion comes from the White House.

The unwritten rule also bars the National Committee from taking issue with any decision of Hagerty's where the President is involved. So far as the committee is concerned, Hagerty's word is final in political matters.

Until Hagerty decides that Mr. Eisenhower has reached a stage in his convalescence that he can discuss politics—or the President himself makes such a decision—associates said Hall would not make a move.

Lacking more definite word, Hall's position is that the President spoke out on his second term intentions Feb. 29, that Republicans answered in primaries and conventions by pledging more than 900 convention votes to him, and that nothing has changed.

DULLES BERATES SOVIET LEADERS FOR DESPOTISM

verdict of the peoples who know it best?"

Dulles said the main point to be drawn by the free world from Khrushchev's expose of the Stalin era is that it demonstrates "the inability of the Soviet Communist system to liquidate its own evil leadership."

Under this system, Dulles went on, "only death or violence can assure the end" of a period of misrule.

"The principal political figures in Russia today," Dulles declared, "were all intimates of Stalin and knew full well what was going on. Khrushchev and (Premier) Bulganin were Stalin's close collaborators and indeed the beneficiaries of his purges within the party. And today they must admit that once their system is fastened upon a country there are no means to prevent the grossest abuses."

Refers to Tortures.

Khrushchev, he said, alleged in the February speech that Stalin "to satisfy his sadistic lusts, constantly invoked torture to procure false confessions which were then made the basis of judicial murder."

Dulles said Khrushchev's disclosures show that "the Soviet Communist system provides no safeguards against even such extreme abuses as those which Mr. Khrushchev recounts."

Bad as the Stalin period was, Dulles said that the "Chinese Communists have sought to outdo Stalin in brutality."

Furthermore, he declared, while the present Russian leaders seek to disavow their dead ruler and "show some signs of hoping to avoid repetition of his misrule, not even this much gain is registered by the Chinese party which seeks to extend its system in Asia."

By contrast with the successors to Stalin in Russia who "at least profess to have renounced the use of force in international affairs," the Chinese Communists still refuse to make such a renunciation, Dulles declared.

He referred to United States-Red Chinese negotiations at Geneva regarding Formosa.

As he has before, Dulles said that in the face of Russian arms advances, the free nations must keep up their alliances and their strength.

But he held out the hope that forces now at work within the Soviet Union and its satellites "will require that those who rule shall increasingly conform to principles of freedom," and that a world-wide era of true liberalism may be achieved.

HOUSE APPROVES DEBT CEILING OF $278,000,000,000

WASHINGTON, June 21 (UPI) — The House today unanimously approved a new 278 billion dollar legal ceiling on the national debt.

The one-year limit is three billions higher than the old 275 billion ceiling but three billions less than the 281 billion limit which has been in effect for the last two years.

The new figure was recommended by the Administration and approved by the House without debate.

The so-called permanent debt ceiling is 275 billions. Unless congressional action on today's bill is completed before the end of this month, the ceiling would revert to that level.

The new compromise limit was recommended to the House by the Ways and Means Committee after the Administration reported its opposition to any tax cut this year. The bill was called up under unanimous consent procedure under which a single objection could have blocked immediate action.

The bill now goes to the Senate.

Vanderford gave an address in the 4800 block of Greer avenue.

EZRA HARRIS NAMED IN NARCOTICS CHARGE

First Time Such Count Has Been Placed Against 'Policy King.'

Ezra Harris, Negro "policy king" and fleet cab operator, was charged with the sale of narcotics today in a warrant issued by United States Commissioner Edwin J. Bean.

Harris, associate of John J. Vitale, notorious hoodlum, was charged with sale of 208 grains of heroin for $200 to police narcotics officers June 3.

Named with him in the warrant is Preston Vanderford, also a Negro, a hotel porter. Bond for each man was set at $20,000. They were arrested last night.

The warrant was issued on application of federal narcotics agents and detectives of the secret service bureau after an intensive investigation. Authorities long have believed that Harris was involved in the drug traffic in this area, but this is the first narcotics charge placed against him.

Sgt. Harold Bloss and Cpl. Louis Schmidt of the narcotics squad of the St. Louis police department were especially assigned to the Harris inquiry by Chief of Detectives James E. Chapman two months ago and worked with the federal narcotics agents in making the two purchases through informers.

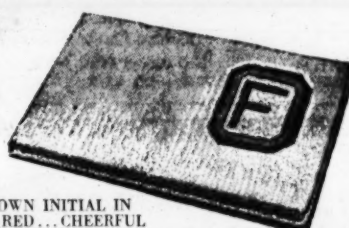

Intensified police interest came after about 300 articles, some stolen, were found in Harris' home in the 3800 block on Page boulevard. He was fined $500 last year for establishing a lottery, and this year settled a $184,000 federal income tax claim for $23,425.

His brother, Nathaniel Harris, was sentenced to 10 years in prison on a narcotics charge last month.

Vanderford gave an address in the 4800 block of Greer avenue.

INSUL-EASE AUTO WAX, NEW BARDAHL PRODUCT

Now Available to St. Louis Car Owners
BRILLIANT INSUL-EASE WAX YEARS IN DEVELOPMENT

"I haven't waxed my car in 20 years—it's too much work!"

You've probably said that yourself and meant it. That, however, was in the years gone by, in the era before Insul-Ease, the revolutionary auto wax.

After years of laboratory work and testing Insul-Ease Auto Wax has been placed on the market by Authority Laboratories, a Division of the Bardahl Oil Company.

EASY TO USE

The magnificent thing about Insul-Ease is that you just wipe it on and wipe it off. There's absolutely no hard rubbing or buffing. The Cleaner gently but completely removes all soil, dead paint, bug stains, tar and road scums, and polishes away gloss-dulling roughness.

INSULATES FINISH

Then the Wax insulates the finish against the ravages of oxidation, water and sunfading through the magic of pure Carnauba wax and the new ingredient DP-98. It seals the clean, polished surface and seals scratches and stone marks for months after application. The finished job is a gleaming transparent and double-thick coating of brilliant hard wax.

NO WORK TO IT—Insul-Ease, the new auto wax produced by the Authority Laboratories, Division of Bardahl Oil Co., just wipes on and wipes bright. There's no hard work at all. The cleaner is liquid, the wax is an easy-working paste.

ATOMIC PROOF

Now, here's some non-technical "atomic age" information about the remarkable qualities of Insul-Ease. To prove its superior wax thickness and durability beyond doubt, radioactive tracer tests were conducted by Tracerlab, Inc., of Boston, Mass., working under authorization of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission. Insul-Ease was tested along with several other leading paste and liquid waxes under identical conditions.

The test was simple, involving the addition of a small "tracer" amount of radioactive Cobalt-60 to the products and using a Geiger counter to compare the amount of wax deposited on the respective test-car panels. The result was that Insul-Ease was found to leave a wax coat more than twice as thick as its nearest competitor. All competing products tested are leading nationally known brands.

2000-MILE GRIND

Another test was conducted by Authority Laboratories, using a Tracerlab Geiger counter on the same test-car panels after 2000 miles of rugged winter driving in finish-punishing slush, snow, road salt, sand and cinders, in city traffic and at highway speeds. Insul-Ease was way out in front of the competitive waxes tested, not only staying cleaner, but now measuring at least three times as thick as the other paste waxes, and seven times as thick as a typical liquid wax.

2 TEEN-AGE DRIVERS JAILED FOR SPEEDING

Participants in 90 M.P.H.
Race in County Also Fined $100 Each.

Two teen-age drivers who participated in a seven-car race on Lindbergh boulevard at speeds in excess of 90 miles an hour received jail sentences and were fined $100 each by Magistrate Norman Anderson at Jennings yesterday when they pleaded guilty of careless driving by speeding.

Isalah Peebles, 17 years old, of the 100 block of Monroe avenue, Kinloch, was sentenced to four days in St. Louis county jail and Gene W. Sutton, 19, of the 200 block of Carson road, Kinloch, was sentenced to five days in the county jail. They are Negroes. Peebles' driver's license was suspended for six months and Sutton was fined an additional $10 for not having a license plate.

A State Highway Patrol officer testified the youths were racing north May 19 when the automobile driven by Peebles struck another machine in the race and then collided with an automobile which had stopped to make a left turn into Old St. Charles road.

Nine Persons Injured.
Sutton's machine was struck by another of the racers as he swerved to avoid piling into the first collision. His car was knocked off the highway and the other participants in the race continued on their way, the officer said. Nine persons were injured in the crashes.

William W. Betz of Miami, Fla., who was visiting in St. Louis county, and Charles S. Quattem of Chesterfield, who were arrested for drag racing last Sunday night on Old Smizer Mill road, were fined today by Magistrate Leslie T. Lewis at Clayton. Both pleaded guilty of speeding and careless driving.

Betz was fined $50 and sentenced to seven days in jail, but the jail sentence was stayed on payment of the fine. Quattem, who as a juvenile was arrested for a traffic violation, was fined $100 and sentenced to seven days in jail. His jail sentence also was stayed and Lewis placed him on probation for six months.

William J. Lesinski, 19, of the 9400 block of Everman avenue, Overland, was fined $100 and his driver's license was suspended for six months by Anderson when he pleaded guilty of careless driving.

Lesinski was arrested May 11 by the Highway Patrol after he was seen weaving through heavy traffic on Alternate U.S. Highway 40 near Fee road at speeds up to 80 miles an hour.

Six-Month Probation.
Anderson placed the youth on six months' probation instead of sentencing him to 30 days in jail, as he had planned, after Lesinski's mother testified she needs him for her support. The elder Lesinski is in a hospital, she told the judge. The youth has two previous careless driving convictions.

Andrew Asher of St. Charles was fined $110 and placed on probation for six months when he pleaded guilty of careless driving by drinking, driving on the wrong side of the road and having defective brakes.

A Highway Patrol officer testified he arrested Asher on U.S. Highway 40 By-pass, one mile east of the St. Charles county line, after he had driven on the wrong side of the four-lane highway for one-fourth of a mile as he passed a line of cars.

Freddie Fradenburg, a driver for Harold Hudson Van & Storage, 3215 Woodson road, Breckenridge Hills, was fined $500 for having an improper license plate on the truck he was driving. He was also fined $10 for not having a chauffeur's license.

SWISS CONVICT 4 FOR SEIZURE OF ROMANIA LEGATION

BERN, June 21 (AP)—The Swiss federal court convicted four Romanian anti-Communist exiles today of seizing the Romanian legation here last year in a raid in which the legation chauffeur was killed. The court sentenced them to prison terms ranging from 16 months to four years.

The leader of the band, Oliviu Beldeanu, received the stiffest term — four years in prison and eight years expulsion from Switzerland after his sentence.

Stan Codrescu, who fired the shots which killed the legation chauffeur, Aurel Setu, was sentenced to 3½ years imprisonment and barred for five years. Jon Chirila was sentenced to 2½ years and five years expulsion.

The fourth member of the band, Dumitru, who surrendered to police early during the 42-hour stand of the band in the legation, was sentenced to 16 months in prison and barred for five years. The 16 months the four have served in prison during the investigation will be subtracted from their sentences, so Ochiu will be freed immediately and expelled from Switzerland.

YOUTH ADMITS 1955 KILLING OF TWO GIRLS IN MARYLAND

WASHINGTON, June 21 (UPI)—Authorities said today that a 16-year-old juvenile delinquent has confessed the ambush killing of two high school girls in a suburban park more than a year ago.

Authorities in Maryland announced that Donald Wayne Davis of Hillside had signed a 12-page statement admitting the crime. Smith said the statement "checks out in all material details with what the police knew about the case."

The girls, Nancy Shomette, 16 years old, and Michael Ann Ryan, 14, were gunned down on the morning of June 15, 1955, while walking through a park in Hyattsville, Md., en route to high school. Smith said the statement did not disclose a motive for the crime.

EXPANSION OF KEY U.N. BODIES SOUGHT BY LATIN BLOC

The New York Times News Service. (Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)
UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., June 21—Members of the Latin American group and Spain yesterday asked the United Nations to expand four of its key bodies, in line with the admission of 16 new nations to the world organization last December.

The proposals, placed on the provisional agenda of the General Assembly, meeting here in November, called for increased membership of the Security Council, the Economic and Social Council, the International Court of Justice and the International Law Commission.

Dr. Jose Vileente Trujillo of Ecuador, chairman of the Latin American group, said yesterday afternoon that it was "practically certain" that the required two-thirds majority of United Nations member states would favor the recommendation. The first three would involve amendments to the charter of the organization, necessitating approval by the five permanent members of the Security Council: The United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and Nationalist China.

AIR DEFENSE DRILL FOR NATO
PARIS, June 21 (UP)—The first full-scale NATO air defense exercise in southern Europe and the Mediterranean since 1953 will be held next week, supreme headquarters announced yesterday.

The exercise will mesh air, sea and ground units of six nations in maneuvers extending from France to Turkey. It will be the first NATO air exercise in which all defending fighter squadrons will be flying jets.

4 More Ships to West Germany. BREMERHAVEN, June 21 (AP)—The United States has turned over four more ships to the new West German navy. They are the second group of shallow water minesweepers to be returned from the fleet of small craft seized from the Germans after World War II and used by the United States Navy in the North Sea.

SOVIET REFUGEE SAYS 2 TRIED TO FORCE RETURN

Alternative Was to Enlist Ex-Red Captain as Spy in U.S.—Both of Accused in U.N.

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, June 21 — A former Soviet army captain, who came to this country in 1952 as a refugee, charged yesterday that a high official in the United Nations and a member of the Soviet mission to the U.N. have been trying for almost three months to get him to return to Russia or enlist him as a spy in this country.

He named Aleksei Petukhov, U.N. technical assistance program officer for Asia and the Far East, and Rostislav Shapovalov, second secretary of the Russian U.N. mission, as the two men who, as recently as a week ago, were exerting "pressure" on him. He said that the two "constantly" mentioned the name of Arkady A. Sobolev, head of the mission, and "implied that he was aware of all this."

Michael Shatov, 40-year-old architect at Columbia University, testified at an executive session of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee last week in Washington and made public the essence of his testimony at a press conference yesterday. The conference was held in the offices of the American Committee for Liberation from Bolshevism.

Sobolev Warned. Sobolev was warned by the State Department in April not to interfere with Soviet refugees in the United States. The warning followed the departure for their home country of five Russian sailors, refugees here, under circumstances still under investigation by federal authorities. There was evidence that, despite Soviet protestations to the contrary, they did not leave voluntarily.

At U.N. headquarters, an official said that the matter had been brought to the attention of the office of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld. He refused to comment further. Neither was there any comment from the Soviet Mission.

Shatov said that he first met Petukhov in a cafeteria on the Columbia campus where students and others congregate and that he did not know then of the U.N. official's identity. It was only after the five sailors left, he said, that Petukhov revealed himself as a "Soviet diplomat." The latter explained that he was charged with finding out about the feelings and morale of Russian emigres and defended the role of Sobolev in the sailors' departure.

Other Pressures Applied. At about this time, Shapovalov made contact with Shatov and from then on, the two men worked on him in a variety of ways.

When Shatov flatly refused to leave this country for Russia, other pressures were applied.

As an example of one sort of pressure, Shatov told of being asked by Petukhov to buy him an accordion. Then the U.N. officer telephoned him and asked: "Did you fulfill your mission?" Shatov thought this might have been done (1) because the caller knew that there was a tap on the telephone or (2) in order to make a tape recording of the conversation for future blackmail.

He said that he did not buy the accordion and told Petukhov that he did not intend to do so.

TURKISH FOREIGN MINISTER

ANKARA, June 21 (AP)—Interior Minister Ethem Menderes was appointed temporary foreign minister yesterday to replace Fuad Koprulu, who resigned.

Menderes is not related to Premier Adnan Menderes. He will hold both posts until a foreign minister is named. Authoritative sources said Koprulu's resignation was connected with Turkey's internal politics and not with foreign affairs.

ST. LOUIS POST-DIS

PHYSICIST 19950
WARNS OF FEAR
RADIATION BY

Says Increased Temperature
Would Cause Maximum Permissible Radiation by Then.

METUCHEN, N.J., June 21 (AP)—Atomic physicist Ralph Lapp said last night a progressive increase in atomic weapons tests would, by 1962, release enough dangerous radiation to give every person in the world the "maximum permissible amount."

The deadly effects would not be fully felt until the late 1970s, however, because the radioactive particles would hang until then in the upper air, he said.

Lapp said he based his statement on "the very conservative assumption" that weapons tests by the atomic powers will be steadily accelerated at a rate which would find them doubled by 1970.

The Washington (D.C.) scientist, who worked on the war-time A-bomb project but is no longer associated with the program, outlined his views in a talk before the Middlesex County Medical Society.

Refers to Radio-Strontium. He said the radio-active particles to which he referred are radio-strontium. This is considered the most dangerous material released in an atomic bomb "fallout" and can cause bone cancer if absorbed by the body in sufficient quantities. The "maximum permissible amount" which he cited is the standard recommended last week by the National Academy of Sciences in its report on the dangers of radiation.

Lapp said that assuming a progressive increase in atomic tests at the rate he cited, "then by 1962 there will be enough radio-strontium committed to the stratosphere to produce a 100 per cent maximum permissible amount in every person on the planet." He added: "Due to the hold-up of the invisible particles in the upper air, this radio-strontium would not show up in full amount in the human body until the late 1970s. However, by 1962 the die would have been cast irrevocably."

Contrary Views. He said his views "contrast sharply with the optimistic statements of both the Atomic Energy Commission and the National Academy." Asked by a reporter to amplify on this, he said that with respect to AEC, he was referring to the commission's statements that bombs having a cumulative energy equivalent of 11 billion tons of TNT would have to be released before the strontium hazard became critical. The commission has said that bombs released so far are "very far" below that figure.

Lapp also said the AEC estimates are based on a strontium dose permissible for atomic workers—a dose which he said is too high to apply to the population as a whole.

As for the National Academy, he said he was referring "to their statement that the strontium hazard is biologically insignificant at the present rate of testing."

Lapp accused the Atomic Energy Commission of refusing to give the full facts to the public and said the government unit had let a full year go by before releasing details of the fallout from the initial Bikini atomic tests.

LEARY TURNS DOWN INTERIM SENATE SEAT

Kentuckian Had Expected to Be Nominated for

FRANKFORT, Ky., June 21
(UP)—Joseph J. Leary yesterday declined an interim appointment to the United States Senate as an "empty honor," after the Democratic state committee failed to nominate him as a candidate for the four years of the late Senator Alben W. Barkley's unexpired term.

Leary said in a press conference that he had discussed the matter "with a great many people who are active on both sides," of the Democratic party's factional fight in Kentucky, and said he had "reasons from both sides" to believe that he would receive the nomination.

In reply to a question, he said that among those to whom he talked was Senator Earle C. Clements, the leader of the Democratic faction opposed to Gov. A. B. Chandler.

Leary thus suggested that he had agreed to accept the interim five-month appointment in the belief that the state committee would nominate him to the four-year term.

Instead, the state committee nominated by a vote of 35-0 former Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby, an ally of Clements.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH Thurs., June 21, 1956 13A

State Highway Commissioner Robert Humphreys for the interim term.

GRUENTHER SAYS AID CUTS WILL HAMPER NATO

'Free Europe Is Indispensable to Our Own Security,' He Says.

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther cautioned Congress today against any material cuts in the Administration's $4,900,000,000 foreign aid program that would slow down the development of NATO.

This would have a "direct, unfavorable impact" on United States defenses, he said. The commander of North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces in Europe told the Senate Appropriations Committee that "a free Europe is indispensable to our own security."

Gruenther testified at a closed session but a summary of his statement was made public by Chairman Hayden (Dem., Arizona). The Administration is fighting to sustain at least the $2,600,000,000 the Senate Foreign Relations Committee recommended for military aid abroad. This is $600,000,000 more than the House voted but $400,000,000 less than President Eisenhower originally sought.

Advance Weapons. Gruenther emphasized that the military aid program embodies "a significant program of advance weapons for modernization of the NATO forces." "These advanced weapons would make possible a material improvement in the effectiveness of the NATO forces" and "demonstrate continued United States support of our NATO alliance in a critical area," he said.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee today ordered a reappraisal of the "objectives, methods, and results" of the foreign aid program, the United Press said.

The committee by unanimous vote directed Chairman Richards (Dem., South Carolina) to set up the study, which will be made by the committee itself rather than an outside organization. The committee agreed to submit its findings to the House not later than Feb. 1.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee also has voted to reappraise the program, but has recommended that this be done by an outside group rather than by Congress. No action has been taken by the Senate on this proposal.

Investigative Powers. (The House committee's move requires no further action or endorsement by House or Senate. The committee already has been provided with full investigative powers.)

SENATE WARNED AGAINST SLASHES

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch

WASHINGTON, June 21 —The Senate was warned by its Foreign Relations Committee yesterday that it would be "an enormous national folly" to curtail "drastically" any of the programs authorized in the foreign aid bill approved Monday by the committee.

The injunction has special significance for the military aid section of the $4,457,000,000 of the bill, which is expected to come up for debate next week. Notice has been served that efforts will be made to cut the $2,525,000,000 arms aid item, despite repeated Administration warnings. That the funds are vital to free world defense.

The Foreign Relations Committee report, drafted to accompany the bill to the floor, said the arms aid figure is the "reasonable minimum" needed to carry out the objectives of the mutual security program. It questioned both the Administration's request for $2,925,000,000 for the program and the action of the House in slashing one billion dollars from the request.

"The most important point is that Soviet military capabilities have not been seriously weakened," the report said. "Military programs must be concerned with military realities. They cannot be tailored to fit a facade of smiles and sweet talk."

While the committee "doubts the wisdom of any substantial cuts" in Administration requests, the report said, "it is unconvinced of the necessity for the full amount recommended by the Administration." It voiced doubt that nations outside the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would be able to absorb aid on the scale requested and also questioned whether the Defense Department would be able to maintain deliveries on such a scale. The report backed up a section of the bill empowering the President to continue aid to Yugoslavia if he finds that country's basic policies unchanged and decides that continuation of aid is in the American national interest.

While continued aid can be justified only if Yugoslavia remains independent, the report said, determinations in the matter "can be made most appropriately by the President."

Entered in the report was a letter from Secretary of State John Foster Dulles holding that there is as yet no indication that Yugoslavia is "subversive" to Moscow and assuring the committee that the question is under continuing State Department review.

Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson strongly endorsed the Administration's military aid requests in closed-door appearances yesterday before the Senate Appropriations Committee, which will pass on actual funds used to carry out the program authorizations.

Termining the full Administration request "defensible," Radford said: "We can live with something less, but our struggle for military security will be hampered."

CHIEF OF SECURITY POLICE FORCES IS OUSTED IN POLAND

VIENNA, June 21 (AP)—Poland's Communist government has fired Col. Stanislaw Wolanski, chief of its security police forces, Warsaw radio announced today.

The action continues a purge of Stalin-era bigwigs in the Polish government. Deputy Premier Jacob Berman, six cabinet ministers and three top justice officials were ousted earlier. The broadcast said Ryszard Dobiesak, former state secretary in the Interior, had been appointed to succeed Wolanski. Two former high security officials were arrested in April. They were Roman Romkowski, former Deputy Minister of Public Security, and Col. Antol Fejgin, former director of a security service department. They were charged with "arrest of innocent persons and illegal questioning methods."

Most of the Soviet bloc countries have been purging their police and judicial systems since Russian party boss Nikita Khrushchev accused Stalin at the Soviet Communist party Congress in February of fostering police persecution of his opposition.

BRIDGES COULD CLOSE 2 PORTS, RIESEL ASSERTS

Columnist Says Leftist
Labor Chief Controls
San Francisco-Honolulu 'Lifeline.'

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP).—Blinded labor columnist Victor Riesel says leftist labor leader Harry Bridges holds the power to cut the strategic "lifeline" between San Francisco and Honolulu, and to close both ports.

Bridges is West Coast boss of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, an independent group. The Government has failed in its efforts to deport him to his native Australia.

Riesel, a crusader against labor racketeering, recently was blinded by acid hurled by an unidentified and as yet unapprehended person.

Interviewed by the staff of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee Tuesday in New York, his sworn testimony was read today at a public hearing to inquire into what the subcommittee called Communist activities on the waterfront.

After hearing the transcript of Riesel's testimony, Senator Jenner (Rep., Indiana), called on the Justice Department to hurry along court handling of the Smith Act conviction four years ago of Jack Hall, boss in Hawaii of the I.L.W.U.

Jenner said that "delay on the part of the courts" in handling Hall's appeal is "a deplorable thing."

Hall was convicted under the Smith Act of conspiring to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the Government.

Kibbe Replies. Jeff Kibbe, the I.L.W.U.'s Washington representative, while refusing to say whether he is or was ever a Communist, flatly denounced Riesel's charges as "completely unfounded."

Instead of trying to stir up labor troubles, Kibbe said, Bridges has been co-operating with Representative Bonner (Dem., North Carolina), in negotiations to stabilize maritime labor relations.

"I greatly sympathize with Riesel," Kibbe said. "And I certainly hope the persons responsible for blinding Riesel are brought to justice. But I completely disagree with what he has said."

Kibbe claimed constitutional immunity in refusing to say whether he was a Communist, whether he attended Communist waterfront meetings, or whether he once operated under the alias "Barry Wood."

Pressed by Jenner, he said it was "possible" his answers might tend to incriminate him. Riesel, who writes a column for the New York Daily Mirror and other newspapers, has urged Congress to investigate what he called Communist and racketeering influences in the labor movement.

Riesel said Bridges' control over his union puts him in a position to shut down the ports of Honolulu and San Francisco at will.

He testified that Bridges also has "influence" in the Port of New Orleans, but has been balked so far in attempts to extend his rule to New York and other East Coast ports.

Riesel said Bridges had worked through Kibbe, Irving Velson and others in his efforts to gain control of the East Coast docks.

"You think that if we trace the activities of Harry Bridges in the various ports that we would have a good idea of what Communist activities on the waterfront are?" asked Robert Morris, subcommittee counsel.

"Of course," replied Riesel, who described Bridges as "a champion of Communist and Soviet causes."

In his interview with the subcommittee staff, Riesel said Bridges is able to block the Port of Honolulu by calling waterfront workers out on strike, and that he did so on one occasion.

Could Paralyze Economy. He said Bridges' union also has organized the workers on Hawaiian sugar and pineapple plantations and "could not only shut the port but close down the entire (territorial) economy by calling an agricultural strike."

Riesel said Bridges has begun to take government workers into his union, adding "it is now quite probable that he will have the same influence in government offices that he has amongst the waterfront and plantation rank and file."

And then they have lots of real good orange juice and ice cream and pop and candy... and lots of other stuff like that, that my brother and I eat all the time. I GUESS MOMMY LIKES NATIONAL TOO, because she says it's real easy to get everything on our grocery list and get all through with our grocery shopping. Oh yes, there's one other thing I forgot to mention. We know the manager at our NATIONAL Food Store and he is real nice and he always says 'hello' to us and he always says 'good-bye' when we leave. When I grow up and have a big grocery list like my Mommy's, and I have a house of my own, I am going to go to NATIONAL, too, because I think they're real nice." PRIORITY IS GIVEN TO BOTTLENECKS ON BRENTWOOD

County Council Puts Widening Overpasses High on Bond Project List.

Widening of Brentwood boulevard in Clayton at two places to remove traffic bottlenecks will be included in the first year's schedule of projects to be undertaken with bond funds voted last November, the St. Louis County Council decided yesterday.

The council voted to give top priority to proposals for cutting back abutments of both the Terminal Railroad Association overpass just south of the County Hospital grounds and of the former Rock Island Railroad overpass north of the hospital where they protrude into Brentwood. Such action will allow widening of narrow portions of the street at these points.

Plans Ordered Drawn.
County highway engineer Fred H. Kibutz was directed to take immediate steps to prepare plans for an early start on both projects.

The Rock Island abutments, which protrude into Brentwood boulevard, were characterized yesterday by Dr. Curtis H. Lohr, county hospital commissioner, as "a hazard to traffic in general and our ambulances in particular."

Inclusion of the Brentwood projects in the 1956-57 schedule of bond issue jobs was recommended recently by the Citizens Bond Issue Supervisory (Watchdog) Committee. They had been scheduled for later action under original plans.

Lohr was authorized by the council to advertise for bids for construction of a new mortgage to be financed from $3,450,500 voted for health and welfare purposes in February 1954. Estimated cost of the project is $110,000, Lohr told the council.

Park Proposal Received.
A proposal that an 11-acre tract at the southwest corner of Heege road and New Hampshire avenue in Affton be acquired with bond funds as a park site was presented to the council by Robert G. Hoester, an attorney, who said he represented approximately 400 property owners in that area. The council took no action on the proposal.

A funds of $2,200,000 was voted last November for acquisition and development of parks and playgrounds. A request by an electrical manufacturing firm for re zoning of the Heege road tract for heavy industrial use is pending now before the council.

The council voted to send to all county municipalities copies of its recently adopted curfew ordinance with a request that the communities consider similar action. The ordinance, signed yesterday by Supervisor Luman F. Matthews, prohibits minors under 17 years of age from being on streets or public places, with certain exceptions, after 11 p.m. except on Friday and Saturday, when the deadline is midnight.

One-Cent Tax Rate Increase.
An ordinance increasing the tentative 1956 county tax rate from 72 to 73 cents for each $100 assessed valuation was passed by the council. The one-cent increase is in the levy for maintenance of the county health center, now set at 5 cents.

The increase had been requested recently by Dr. Herbert R. Domke, health commissioner. Without it, he said, some health department personnel might have to be laid off this year.

County Auditor Clarence H. Hackmann told the council that an additional $183,148 will be available for 1956 appropriations as a result of a recent revision in budgeting procedure allowing expenditures to be based on receipts of the last year instead of those of two years previously.

However, Hackmann said appropriations could be increased over their present level only by $61,000, pending receipt later in the year of some of the additional funds.

The council, for the second consecutive week, deferred action on a resolution creating a Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority, pending receipt of a legal opinion as to its powers over such an agency.

Matthews was authorized to advertise for bids to air-condition offices and corridors not already so equipped on the second and mezzanine floors of the new portion of the courthouse. Cost is estimated at $50,000.

The Board of Election Commissioners notified the council that flags had not been placed at registration places during the June 7 registration of voters because they would have overburdened board employees who took equipment to the registration locations. A commercial hauler was not employed, a letter from the board said, in order to reduce expenses. The lack of flags had been criticized last week by some members of the council.

Eisenhower's Teamwork Policies Help Presidency Carry On When He Is Temporarily Incapacitated

This Is Exemplified by the Operations Coordinating Board Which Sees That Government's Overseas Activities Are Properly Carried Out.

By JAMES RESTON

The New York Times News Service
(Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, June 21.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER came into American political life in a convulsive era as a symbol of unity, and fortunately he has tried to extend the principle of unity into the machinery of the presidency.

The essence of his personal power is that nobody is mad at him. Men may differ with him, or feel sorry for him, or ridicule his copy-book-maxim approach to life and government, but they seldom regard him with personal hostility.

This is a powerful factor, which has contributed to his record as Chief Executive, legislative leader, mentor to a divided party, head of a mighty coalition, and even as negotiator with the Russians. But what happens when he is stricken twice within nine months and cannot use all his personal powers of persuasion?

The answer is that his leadership is seriously weakened by absence and doubts about the future. While the President is temporarily on the sidelines, however, the presidency as an institution has not been unduly influenced by his passionate interest in unity and teamwork.

Example of Teamwork. For example, promptly at 12:30 p.m. yesterday, eight men walked into the Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' dining room on the fifth floor of the new State Department building.

Their host was Under Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. The others were William H. Jackson, the special assistant to the President for international affairs; Under Secretary of Defense Reuben B. Robertson Jr.; the President's special assistant for disarmament, Harold E. Stassen; the deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency, Lt. Gen. C. P. Cabell; the director of the International Cooperation Administration, John B. Hollister; the director of the United States Information Agency, Theodore C. Streibert; and one of his aids, Elmer B. Staats.

That was the weekly Wednesday meeting of the Operations Coordinating Board, the least known but probably the most important Eisenhower contribution to the machinery of the Presidency.

The OCB is not a policy-making committee. It has nothing to do with the operations of the Government within the United States. It is an arm of the Presidency whose sole function is to see that the overseas operations of the Government are being carried out in accordance with the policies recommended by the National Security Council and approved by the President.

Anti-Confusion Device. It is an anti-confusion device, grafted onto the Presidency to see to it that a big government, that is getting bigger all the time, does not have one department carrying out the President's overseas policy one way and several other departments or agencies carrying it out some other way.

There are now so many United States officials from so many departments operating overseas—on information, agriculture, atomic energy, commerce, labor, immigration, intelligence, and defense—that harassed United States Ambassadors have trouble recognizing them all let alone keeping tabs on what they are all doing.

The OCB was created under the President and the NSC to co-ordinate and follow their overseas operations and see that they stayed co-ordinated.

This is a big job, roughly equivalent to seeing that all mortals operate in accordance with the Ten Commandments, but the idea is clear: It is to carry out Mr. Eisenhower's passion for teamwork.

Started by Roosevelt. It would be wrong to suggest that this was a wholly original idea. In September of 1939, a week after Germany invaded Poland, President Franklin D. Roosevelt established the executive office of the President. This was Mr. Roosevelt's realization, after almost seven years in power, that the President, temporarily on the sidelines, however, the presidency as an institution has not been unduly influenced by his passionate interest in unity and teamwork.

Since then it has become increasingly (and sometimes painfully) evident that co-ordinating policy was not enough but that the carrying out of that policy had also to be co-ordinated.

40 Committees at Work. The OCB has more than 40 working subcommittees—some watching over information operations overseas, some studying the various countries, others following whole regions, some observing atomic energy operations.

At least once every six months, each of these 40 committees produces a progress report which goes to the National Security Council and the White House. Whenever they find that a policy is being carried out in a way that defies co-ordinated execution, they yell to the NSC for a better one. When they find some eager beaver overseas conducting his own private foreign policy, they blow the whistle on him.

That, at least, is the theory. The OCB, of course, has its critics. There are some officials here who think it is the greatest time-killer since the invention of golf.

Useful Device. Nevertheless, the OCB is, by general consent, a useful new device of the Presidency which is developing authority and coming out of its early development stage. It does not seem to manage to keep the officials it is intended to serve from making countless contradictory statements, and since its members have vastly different ideas about many operations, the old question arises: "Who will co-ordinate the co-ordinators?"

Just the same, in any study of the President and the Presidency, the OCB is bound to interest the historians. It cannot make up for the absences of the President, but it can help produce some unity in the operations or policies that are already on the books.

Thus, it draws attention to a fact that is seldom noticed, namely, that the President has tried to institutionalize his concept of teamwork, and institutions such as the OCB, while far from perfect, are helping carry on as best they can while the President is away from the White House.

TOP U.S. CIVILIAN AWARD PRESENTED TO AIR SCIENTIST. LOS ANGELES, June 21 (AP)—A Presidential Medal of Freedom, highest honor for a civilian, was presented last night to Dr. Theodore von Karman at an Institute of Aeronautical Sciences dinner in his honor.

Dr. Von Karman, who lives in Pasadena and is sometimes called "the Einstein of Aeronautics," also was celebrating his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary. His complex theoretical work is credited by aviation leaders with providing much of the foundation for modern aerodynamics.

The medal was presented by Lt. Gen. Donald L. Putt of the Air Force's Air Research and Development Command on behalf of President Eisenhower. Dr. Von Karman was born in Hungary and has been a United States citizen since 1936.

PHYSICISTS REPORT NO RISK TO AUSTRALIA IN ATOM CLOUD. CANBERRA, June 21 (AP)—Australia's Safety Committee, composed of leading physicists, reported today there is "absolutely no risk to the mainland" from the radioactive cloud born of Tuesday's British atomic test in the Monte Bello Islands.

Earlier reports that the cloud was drifting over Australia had caused wide concern. At 15,000 to 20,000 feet some clouds containing minute particles drifted inland, although it now is tending to drift back toward the coast.

Supply Minister Howard Beale announced.

Stability of Middle East Hinges On Peaceful Accord in Cyprus

If Terrorism Forces British From Island, Western Strategic Posts All Over World Would Be Imperiled.

By HANSON W. BALDWIN

The New York Times News Service
(Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK, June 21.

GRAVE ISSUES that far transcend in importance the revolt itself are at stake in Cyprus. British welfare, the stability of the Middle East, Turkish and Greek emotions and the self-interests of the United States are directly or indirectly involved.

If the British are forced out of Cyprus by terrorist tactics, the example set could start a political-military conflagration. Terrorism already has been used by the Egyptians to oust the British from the Suez Canal zone. It is being used, in wholesale measure, against the French in Algeria.

In every nationalist or anti-colonial struggle some of the most skilled terrorists are Communists, who subvert patriotic sentiments to their own ends. The Communists are probably a distinct minority in Cyprus, though they do control the labor unions.

Vulnerable Positions. If terrorism wins in Cyprus, where does the process stop? Western positions all over the world, positions of major strategic importance such as Okinawa would become even more vulnerable to conquest from within.

In the face of acts that would test the mettle of the world's best troops, British soldiers in Cyprus on the whole have displayed remarkable discipline and self-restraint. But the war of stealth, of bomb-throwing, of ambush, of shots in the back goes on, and there seems to be no end in sight.

The growing British casualty list must have some effect on Cyprus, and foreign public opinion, particularly since some of the dead and wounded are drafted soldiers. The terrorists undoubtedly are counting upon a weakening of British resolution at home, and on pressure brought on Britain from abroad.

The Greek Cypriots also are depending, too, on the natural sympathy of many in the United States for the underdog. Cyprus has very considerable importance—psychologically, politically and strategically.

Sign of Weakness. If the British flag comes down on Cyprus, the fact will be noted throughout the world, particularly in the Middle East, and it will be interpreted as a sign of further British—and western—weakness. Aden may well be next and then the British positions in the Persian Gulf area.

In a strategic sense the chief importance of Cyprus is as an air springboard, or advanced base, in the eastern Mediterranean-Middle East area. The British land and air headquarters for the Middle East are situated in Cyprus.

New headquarters facilities are being built at Episkopi; a large airfield is under construction at Akrotiri and a large troop cantonment has been under construction near Larnaca.

Significance. The island is within easy air range of the Soviet Union, is about 75 miles from Turkey, 200 from Israel, 280 from Egypt and 600 miles from mainland Greece. It has value as a staging area and stabilizing factor in the Middle East, and as a support point for Turkey, Iraq and the other Baghdad Pact nations.

But its chief importance is as a political and psychological symbol of British power and prestige and resolution.

PRESIDENT SIGNS FINANCE BILLS FOR 3 DEPARTMENTS. WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—President Eisenhower signed the bills yesterday financing the State, Justice and Commerce Departments and related agencies for the fiscal year starting July 1.

The bills appropriate these funds: State Department, $175,063,872; Justice Department, $216,043,650; Commerce Department, $216,732,000; federal courts, $36,321,435; United States Information Agency, $13,000,000; refugee relief, $8,500,000.

Meanwhile, House acceptance of Senate amendments sent to the President a bill appropriating $117,804,058 to finance the legislative branch of government for the next fiscal year. The Senate amendments added money for operation of the Senate.

PEARSON Early Changes In Diplomatic Posts Likely

Aldrich Expected to Be Replaced in London by Jock Whitney.

By DREW PEARSON
(Copyright, 1956.)

WASHINGTON. LOOK for early changes in two top diplomatic posts, one in Washington, the other in London.

Winthrop Aldrich, United States Ambassador to London, is expected to be replaced by John Hay (Jock) Whitney, head of the Wall Street investment house bearing his name and active in the Citizens for Eisenhower Committee.

Simultaneously, Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban in Washington is expected to be replaced by the present minister of the Israeli Embassy, Reuven Shiloah.

Eban's pending retirement is linked with a more aggressive Israeli foreign policy being adopted with the current shake-up in the Ben Gurion cabinet and the retirement of moderate Foreign Minister Sharrett.

Israeli leaders are reported dissatisfied because Eban has not been able to get more support in the State Department. They demand a more positive policy against the Arab world and more support from the Eisenhower Administration.

For some time Aldrich has indicated his desire to retire from the American Embassy in London, despite his popularity with the British government.

Aldrich has been one of the biggest money raisers for the Republican party. Whitney, who has been tabbed to take his place, married the ex-wife of Congressman James Roosevelt, Betsy Cushing, served under President Roosevelt in the Rockefeller Committee on Cultural Relations for Latin America and is head of the giant Freeport Sulphur Co.

John Foster Dulles has told Mr. Eisenhower that come next winter he wants to retire as Secretary of State. He gave this word before the President's illness, says he is tired and that four years is enough.

Prediction is that Dulles will get the next Supreme Court vacancy. However, this poses a problem. Attorney General Brownell also eyes the Supreme Court, as does former Gov. Tom Dewey. But all are New Yorkers and can't be piled into the Soviet-Yugoslav Pact Could Be Base for United Front of Leftists

It Seems to Set Stage for 'Collective Theorizing' With Other Nations Winning Similar Equality.

By HARRY SCHWARTZ

The New York Times News Service
(Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK, June 21.

AN IDEOLOGICAL partnership with potentially far-reaching consequences appears to have been established between Soviet and Yugoslav Communists.

Yesterday's joint declaration by the two countries' Communist leaders went much further than merely re-establishing friendly party contacts as was expected. It declared them to be equal collaborators in working out "Socialist scientific thought" and joined the two groups in a common effort to get a world united front of Socialists, Communists and other non-capitalist "progressive" forces.

Ideologically, this agreement appears to end the former Soviet claim to monopolize the revision of Marxism-Leninism to meet changing conditions. As recently as last February, Nikita S. Khrushchev exercised the right to abandon the old Marxist-Leninist premise of war's inevitability while capitalism exists.

Now Khrushchev has conceded the Yugoslavs the right to be consulted and to express their views on new propositions of "Socialist scientific thought." With this concession, it presumably will be difficult to deny similar equality to other Communists in other countries. The stage would seem set for "collective theorizing."

Have Different Views. The Soviet recognition of the need to consult the Yugoslavs is particularly important because the latter have some decidedly different views of how Marxism-Leninism should be applied in the contemporary scene. In the years of Soviet-Yugoslav estrangement, the Yugoslavs worked out their own theoretical concepts which emphasized the "bureaucratic perversion" of Soviet Socialism and stressed the need for minimum grass roots economic democracy in a Socialist state.

Even as the Tito visit to Moscow began earlier this month, Prava devoted substantial space to articles by Yugoslav chief theoretician, Vice President Edward Kardelj, explaining the Yugoslav deviations from Soviet theory and practice. The way is now presumably open for consideration of these Yugoslav ideas in the Eastern European satellites as well.

The Soviet-Yugoslav agreement to seek "the wide cooperation of all progressive and peaceful forces" appears to lay the ground for an effort to get a united front of the most varied leftist forces in the world, well beyond the past united fronts of Communists and Socialists.

In Asia and the Middle East, such non-Marxists as Prime Minister Nehru of India and Premier Nasser of Egypt would presumably qualify as "progressive and peaceful forces."

United Action Possible. President Tito's influence with these and other similar leaders will now be joined with Moscow's influence to get united action on key issues. Some Western observers have already voiced the suspicion that with Tito's aid, Moscow can get far closer co-operation from Asian and Middle Eastern political leaders and groups than the Soviet leaders could obtain alone.

At the same time, however, it seems dubious that the Yugoslavs will be able to aid the Soviet Union very appreciably in getting Communist-Socialist co-operation in Western Europe. Tito's relations with Western European Socialists appear to have deteriorated in recent weeks as a result of the bitter Yugoslav attack upon British Labor party secretary Morgan Phillips for his intervention on behalf of Milovan Djilas, purged former Yugoslav Communist leader.

But in Asia and the Middle East, Tito's successful defiance of the Kremlin has won him much respect. Now that he publicly testifies one can co-operate on an equal and mutually advantageous basis with the Soviet Union, that past background of defiance seems likely to win his present views an attentive and possibly responsive audience.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Speaking of Young People

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I am writing regarding the alleged four teen-age "juvenile delinquents," whose names appeared in a recent issue. I have bumbled around with these fellows for five years and chance is the only thing that kept me from being with them the other night.

These fellows probably are in the minds of your readers the first-class criminals that your article pictures them as, but I know better. What they did wasn't right—it was impulse action and I probably would have been right in there with them, none of us realizing what mountainous proportions an incident like this can be blown up into.

I don't like to see my buddies suffer from one mistake and be condemned to "that teen-ager" class.

TOM HELLMANN.
Florissant.

The smearing of the four boys for the past two days is an injustice. No one is guilty until so proven.

Good names are being hurt, perhaps permanently. Who cares? We who know them do. We also know the facts. Why don't you print the truth? Or is it just sensations that sell newspapers?

JO ANN MURPHY.

I wonder how many more mothers are having the same trouble that I am—trying to get their boys to come home and not do any drinking? As long as we are blaming the teen-agers so much, let's put some of the blame where it belongs—on the tavern owners and the country clubs that sell beer and whisky to these 16, 17, 18, 19- and 20-year-olds. The tavern people know the boys are not 21 but just as long as they get the money they don't care what happens to that boy or girl.

MOTHER.

We must show the offender the great harm he is bringing to himself, his family and his fellow citizen. Action must be taken immediately before the good wholesome teen-agers, who comprise by far the larger percentage, are infected by the fame of this crime wave.

E. A. CLARKSTON.

These youths know right from wrong. When youngsters want to act like hoodlums and gangsters they should be treated as such. Punishment should be prompt and without sentimentality. In cases where an automobile was used the driver's license should be revoked until he becomes 21 years of age.

Too many parents expect the schools, playgrounds and police to act as baby-sitters, and cater to youthful whims. When parents fail to teach their children discipline and respect they bring shame to the home.

CHARLES UELENTRUP.

"Teen-age" is no longer an age, but a state of being. True, teen-age has age limits (13 to 19), but only a certain number are really teen-agers.

The others in that age bracket—those who make the headlines in your newspaper—are not teen-agers. They are adults, too old for their years, whose minds are warped and whose hearts are hardened, and they cannot be put in the same class with the young adults of America known as "teen-agers."

TEEN-AGER.

Much teen-age idleness can be remedied simply by supplying an outlet for their energy by offering them part-time jobs. A Youth Employment Service is urgently needed in St. Louis. Many boys and girls are eager to work, but not enough jobs are open to them.

MRS. M.

Will you please print the opinion of one taxpayer who is fed up with the way boys are allowed to roam the streets at all hours of the night, hot-rodding, raping and stealing with little real justice ever being meted out? Officials are crying now for better prisons and a better workhouse. It is my opinion they are too good now because offenders don't seem to mind them.

RAYMOND YOUNT.

Until the crimes committed evoke punishment fitted to the deeds and age of the teen-agers, the boys will have fun.

DISGUSTED.

Parents are largely to blame—not in all cases, but in most. They are too busy to find time to be with and see with whom the children associate. In this neighborhood there are several parents who spend the whole night in the tavern. You tell them about their darlings and what do you get: "You old crab!"

PARENT.

Short-Time on a Meter

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Parking meters in St. Louis do not always give 60 minutes' parking for a nickel. If a meter has any time remaining and a coin is deposited, the meter will register only to nearest the hour. For example, if 30 minutes remains on the meter, only an additional 30 minutes is registered. But in St. Louis county meters register a full hour regardless of any unused time that remains on meter.

Merely a 'Report'

Please confirm the report that the Cardinals' team physician is to be traded for an orderly, two nurses and an intern.

Eyes on 1959

At last the House Rules Committee has lifted the barrier which for so many weeks blocked action on the school aid bill. By a vote of 8 to 3, two Southern Democrats and one Republican dissenting, the bill has been cleared for House consideration possibly next week. When they vote, House members should keep their eyes on September 1959, and their thoughts on some 4,500,000 children who will be growing to school age during the intervening three years.

By September 1959, according to conservative estimates, the nation at the present rate of school construction will be short at least 150,000 classrooms. This would mean inadequate facilities for 4,500,000 children.

Here is one measure of the urgent need for a program of federal aid to the states for school construction. As the Committee for the White House Conference on Education said in its final report, our public schools "have fallen far behind both the aspirations of the American people and their capabilities. . . . There is no doubt that a school building emergency exists."

The way to meet that emergency is by quick passage and quick execution of a federal aid program.

Appreciation of the need is so universal that school aid faces little opposition on its merits. Yet there is a real chance that the bill will be defeated in the Senate, or filibustered to death, if it is amended to provide for withholding aid from districts which have not yet complied with the Supreme Court decision against racial segregation in public schools.

Which is more important—getting an immediate start on acutely needed new school construction, or uttering a resounding but essentially useless congressional manifesto against segregation? We say useless, because it has been amply demonstrated that not Congress by legislation, but the courts by judicial and judicial administration, hold the key to full implementation of the Supreme Court school decision.

The question answers itself. New schools come first. Unless Congress acts this summer, before adjournment, the classroom deficit now in prospect for 1959 will grow to a bigger deficit in 1960, and the 4,500,000 children who are now facing inadequate school facilities three years hence will be swollen by thousands more four years hence.

In these circumstances, a vote for the Powell Amendment will not necessarily advance the cause of racial equality, but will almost certainly retard the cause of adequate schools for all. The practical course is plain. The House should defeat the Powell amendment, pass the school aid bill, and leave the segregation problem to the courts.

Now the Nicaro 'Mess'?

As an aftermath of the Nicaro nickel inquiry, the public is left to judge between Democratic charges of political influence and Republican denials of any such thing. Thus do campaign issues develop. But the findings of the House committee inquiry deserve public attention.

The committee found, as the majority report notes, several "inconsistencies" in testimony. Edward F. Mansure, who resigned as General Services Administrator during the inquiry, said he had not recommended Chicago Republican friends as insurance brokers for the Government's nickel plant deal in Cuba. But the chief construction officer testified that Mr. Mansure had done so.

The committee found, in any case, that Mr. Mansure did regard such insurance business as "being part of the patronage system." The former GSA chief even said such business should go to firms "friendly to the party," though he later recanted.

The committee found that while two companies held a joint contract for the Nicaro expansion project, and split $1,000,000 in fees, one company controlled by financier Louis Wolfson contributed little of the work.

The committee also found that records pertinent to the case had mysteriously disappeared though one GSA agent testified that they contained "possible criminal allegations."

The attempt of House Republicans to discredit these findings would be more convincing if the Administration had shown more disposition to get at the facts. The Justice Department has withheld microfilms of the missing records for eight months, pending an inquiry. Six months ago President Eisenhower ordered a White House inquiry. The investigations have produced no visible results.

Resignations under fire and investigations which lead nowhere cannot keep the Nicaro affair from becoming a campaign issue.

For Bridges, Not Wedges

French Foreign Minister Pineau wound up his visit to Washington at the same time Marshal Tito was concluding his long and chummy sojourn in Moscow. The coincidence of the events may be instructive.

What are we to do about Tito? Cut him off without a penny, move him like a chessman into the enemy camp? That is what Senators McCarthy and Jenner, and others who have no hesitation at trying to direct American foreign policy from the Senate floor, would do. And it must be confessed that as Tito and the Soviet bosses exchange overblown compliments and sign pacts of undying co-operation, the Yugoslavs move into a different light from the one they occupied during the post-1948 estrangement with Stalinist Moscow.

The important thing is to grasp the substance, not the superficial appearance, of the new relationship between Moscow and Belgrade. If it were true that Tito had become an unconditional military ally of the Soviets, then of course our own relationship with him would require redefinition. Marshal Bulganin, perhaps in a deliberate attempt to embarrass Tito with the West, spoke of marching shoulder to shoulder with Yugoslavia in any future war.

But Tito is said to have assured Ambassador Bohlen that he himself has expressed no such sentiments, and has made no military commitments to the Russians. If that is true—if it is best intelligence plus a rational assessment of Yugoslav behavior confirms it—then we should go slowly in taking any abrupt steps which might drive Tito into the very position of dependence on Moscow which we have sought to help him avoid.

It would also be wise to take serious counsel of our allies. So far as the French are concerned, Foreign Minister Pineau has left no doubt on his visit to Washington that his own counsel is for more bridges, not more wedges, between East and West.

He strongly urged the United States to liberalize trade and cultural exchanges, not only with Russia but with Red China and other Communist lands. He suggested a more flexible attitude toward neutrals than Secretary Dulles's view that neutrality is "immoral." And he offered his own interpretation of Soviet motives, based on a recent visit to Moscow—that the new Russian line is a response to long-term domestic needs and so offers some hope of genuine improvement in external relations.

It has become common to say that Russian tactics have changed, but not the basic Red strategy of world conquest. Yet the very fact that Titoism is not only tolerated but celebrated in Moscow may mark a profound change in Soviet strategy. Certainly the Western alliance cannot base a successful coalition policy on an outdated evaluation of Moscow's objectives.

Tragedy of Fire in Midair

Fire in midair is the peril that most haunts airliner pilots. The safeguards against fire are many but still it takes its toll as it did Wednesday in the moonlight over a calm Atlantic. It had not yet struck when a propeller raced madly on the Venezuela-bound airliner an hour out of New York, causing the pilot to radio he was returning. He was 15 minutes out of New York when he radioed he was preparing to dump his fuel. Five minutes later came the final message: "Gas caught fire."

A Coast Guard amphibian plane arrived in time to see the fire spread and the airliner plunge into the ocean with 74 persons. The shaken Coast Guard pilot described it as a "frightening sight." What he had seen was the world's worst disaster in regular airliner service. It was only exceeded in toll of lives by a chartered plane crash in Wales in 1950 that killed 80 and two Air Force crashes that killed 87 and 129 in 1952 and 1953, respectively.

The Linea Aeropostal Venezolana had an excellent safety record. But this time luck ran against the pilot and his 12,000-hour flying record. Three engines were sufficient to keep his plane up for hours but he followed standard safety procedure and turned back. And he followed routine safety procedure when he dumped his fuel. His original trouble, which had occurred in an engine in the left wing, was followed by the fatal fire in the right wing after the fuel was dumped.

It was indeed a terrible sight that the Coast Guard pilot helplessly watched—a burning airliner falling from 10,000 feet into the ocean. It took more than two minutes. The airliner sank in 120 feet of water, which means that divers should have relatively easy access to the wreckage. They may reveal what caused this tragedy. There is a bit of consolation in the fact that such inquiries usually result in increasing flight safety.

Men took commercial aviation into the sky scarcely a generation ago. Those early flights were sometimes called gambles with death. Certainly the accident rate was many times what it is now. Today, for every plane lost there are hundreds of thousands of successful flights. The tragedy of the Venezuelan airliner should bring increased efforts to reduce the hazard of fire aloft.

Experts at Work

Quietly and without fanfare work has begun on the important Metropolitan St. Louis Survey. This is the study of government in city and county that is being financed in large measure by the Ford Foundation and executed under auspices of St. Louis and Washington Universities.

Ahead of the 21 researchers who are on the job lie several months of hard digging for facts. Few sidewalk superintendents are likely to be attracted to the proceedings. But out of the work ought to rise the first detailed picture of the functioning and interrelationships of the metropolitan area's 97 city halls, 29 school districts, 23 sewer districts, 18 fire districts, the one metropolitan district, and so on.

On the face of it that complex of local taxing bodies hardly appears to be the most efficient tool for orderly community development. But the university political scientists are starting with no preconceptions. Not until they have gathered the vital facts will they turn to the question of what changes in governmental structure to consider. Right now, it is enough to know that disinterested experts have put our metropolitan organism under the microscope. That itself is a notable event.

H.S.T. as D.C.L.

Bedecked in his crimson robe, facing 94 distinguished scholars in crimson robes, Doctor of Civil Laws Harry S. Truman reparked at Oxford University that he must have "a couple of dozen" honorary degrees. "But this is the really big one," he said, after hearing the addresses in Latin which he could not understand, and the exceptionally vigorous applause, which he could.

Honorary degrees all depend. A search through the Truman biography in Who's Who separates those accomplishments of which Mr. Truman is proud from those others which are omitted, including his couple of dozen honorary degrees. Who's Who says that Harry S. Truman began work with The Kansas City Star, 1901; operated family farm, 1906-17; elected to U.S. Senate from Mo., 1934; and so on. It gives his World War I record in some detail. But—no honorary degrees.

For a thirty-third President of the United States, a couple of dozen honorary degrees may not seem so important, or at least not so important as humble origins leading to long public service. But to a man who was time-keeper for railroad contractor, 1902, an honorary degree from Oxford ought to be as special as a special election return, and so it is. An honorary degree is as honorable as its recipient believes it to be. Who's Who, please note.

Starlit Music

On Friday evening a fine St. Louis tradition will enter its twenty-second season with the opening concert of the Little Symphony under the stars in the lovely, cool quadrangle of Washington University. This being the Mozart year, there will be Mozart compositions on five of the six programs. The opening program will be varied with numbers by Ravel, Bocherini and Bizet.

Presented as soloists during the season will be Leslie Parnas, violoncello; Carl Lutes, flute; Malcolm Frager and Edith Schiller, piano; George Hussey, oboe, and Imogene Kramer, soprano. Five of the concerts will be conducted by Jascha Horenstein, the Russian-born, Viennese-trained musician who conducted the Little Symphony for the first time last year. Mr. Horenstein has conducted all over Europe and made many records. Max Steindel, resident conductor of the Little Symphony, will, as usual, conduct the last program of the season.

Attendance at these uniformly fine concerts has held steady for the past decade at between 1500 and 2000. The Little Symphony programs will be among the most enjoyable of occasions during this season when St. Louis takes its fun where it finds it, and finds it so often out-of-doors.

PROBLEM BEFORE THE ALDERMEN

How Serious Is Ileitis?

Doctor who first described illness that led to President Eisenhower's operation answers questions about it; says ileitis is not very common and not very serious, but is subject to recurrence; cause unknown, but age and heart condition not related to it.

From U.S. News & World Report

The illness that led to President Eisenhower's operation is called "Crohn's disease." Dr. Burrill B. Crohn first described ileitis—inflammation of the lower portion of the small intestine—to the medical world in 1932. He has observed more than 700 cases.

Here, in answer to questions by a member of the board of editors of U.S. News & World Report, Dr. Crohn describes the nature of the disease, its effects and probable duration.

Q. Is ileitis a very common disease, Dr. Crohn?

A. No, it is relatively uncommon—not many people develop it. As far as the rarity of the disease is concerned, it is rare, but I have seen over 700 cases myself, so that is not so terribly rare.

Q. Are there any figures as to what percentage of the population contract the disease?

A. It would be a very infinitesimal part of the population.

Q. What happens during the course of the disease—what are the symptoms?

A. Usually diarrhea, abdominal pains, gradual loss of weight, the development of anemia; occasionally, in the active phase, fever. The diagnosis is essentially made and confirmed by X-ray examination.

Q. Is ileitis considered a serious ailment?

A. I consider it, in its usual form, a mild illness.

Q. What is the usual form?

A. Where the disease is limited to one segment of the small bowel—usually the last 10 or 12 inches of the small intestine.

Q. Does everyone who gets this particular type require an operation?

A. Most cases of ileitis eventually do require an operation, though we do attempt medical treatment. The object of medical treatment is to prepare the patient, over a long period of time, for the eventual operation if it becomes—and when it becomes—necessary.

Q. I gather from that, then, that the disease recurs in an individual?

A. The disease, once established, has a tendency to recur from time to time—sometimes after periods of months, and sometimes periods of years. Spontaneous recoveries are very rare.

Q. So that, sooner or later, everyone who gets it usually undergoes an operation?

A. Yes.

Q. Is the operation considered a serious one?

A. No. The mortality of operations to ileitis today is—should be—reducible to practically zero.

Q. Are there any theories as to what causes ileitis—what sets it off?

A. Nobody knows. That is the question which nobody can answer. There are certain factors: There is a tendency to familial involvement—more than one member of a family is frequently involved; physical trauma, particularly automobile accidents, can set off ileitis. But, in general, I personally regard the most likely cause as an unknown virus which has yet to be isolated and identified.

Q. Would emotional strain be a contributing cause?

A. I don't think that this is a psychosomatic disease.

Q. It sometimes is said that ileitis resembles ulcers. Does that mean the two are related?

A. The two diseases are rarely associated.

Q. Is ileitis the same as colitis?

A. No. Colitis is the same or sim-lar disease in the large bowel. That is a much more severe illness.

Q. Is there any relationship between a heart condition and ileitis?

A. None at all. Ileitis is really a disease of young people. The heart never comes into play as a factor.

Q. Does the age at which a person first develops ileitis have any bearing on the seriousness of it?

A. No, I shouldn't think so.

Q. It is no more serious in a young person than it is in an older person?

A. No. It might even be more virile—more active—in its form in the younger person.

Q. Does the disease recur in any important number of cases after surgery?

A. The recurrence rate at first was regarded as 10 per cent. In the course of another 10-year follow-up, Dr. John H. Garlock and I published a recurrence rate of 22½ per cent. In the last 10 years, the recurrence rate has had to be still further hiked to approximately 30 to 35 per cent. The reason for this is that, the longer you watch the disease—the longer you study the life history of it—the more frequent are late recurrences.

Q. About the 35 per cent who have recurrences—is there any particular explanation for that?

A. No, because the anastomosis (joining together of two sections of the bowel) is supposedly made with healthy tissue, and yet, at some time in the future, the small bowel at that point may break down and cause a recurrence. Those recurrences, however, are usually limited to a few inches, do not extend, and are usually treated expectantly (with routine, conservative medical procedures). Rarely do we have to go back and reoperate.

Q. Can a person be as strong after a successful operation for ileitis as he was before?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. In the case of Mr. Eisenhower, there is some questioning about why the diseased intestine was not removed, but was merely bypassed. Is there any particular explanation for that?

A. I really shouldn't discuss the President's case because I have no personal knowledge of it. But I should say in general that they exercised splendid judgment in not attempting to do anything more than they did.

Q. Is it more common to remove the diseased portion of the intestine or to bypass it?

A. We regularly employ the bypass operation. We employ or utilize the bypassing operation and we rarely resect the diseased portion.

Q. What is the usual period a person can be expected to be laid up after surgery for ileitis?

A. A matter of two or three weeks at most.

Q. Does hurrying convalescence—such things as getting patients out of bed sooner—bring any greater risk of recurrence?

A. I don't think so. Ambulation is good.

Q. Do recurrences occur more often in older or younger people who have had ileitis?

A. I do not think that age is a factor.

Q. Is a person who has had surgery to relieve repeated attacks of ileitis more healthy after the operation than before?

A. As far as the disease is concerned, he should hopefully be relieved of all or most of his complaints.

Q. Would hard work after recovery from an operation for ileitis be likely to increase chances for a recurrence?

A. No.

Q. Is malignancy ever associated with ileitis? Does cancer of that part of the intestine often occur?

A. Malignancy is never associated with ileitis. Malignancy in the small bowel is extremely uncommon.

THE SAME SCOURGE, by John Goldthorpe. (G. P. Putnam's Sons, 311 East 57 St.)

Reviewing a romantic novel with an intimate background of New Testament history and characters is a delicate assignment. But writing one is surely a great deal more so. In the latter case the danger of having one's own imaginative flights taken as The Word by some less literate person is ever present. I do not hold, nor does Mr. Goldthorpe apparently, with the folksy approach of these sacred subjects; being reminded by contrast of a certain popular account of the Easter story which seems to be re-published and widely acclaimed annually. Such an everyday treatment gives me an uncomfortable feeling of near-sacrilege. It is a kind of predigested pap that many take instead of the hard but nourishing bread of the Bible's own words.

John Goldthorpe, Kent, England, who studied for the ministry at one time and has spent several years in Palestine, has written a plausible story of the beginning of Christianity. He takes the character of Dorio, a young officer in the Roman army, who is sent to investigate a spreading unrest which centers around Jesus and His disciples, as matter-of-factly as the FBI might today be put on the trail of one whose motives are suspect. Jesus's teachings of goodness and His performance of miracles are not understood in their true light by the Romans nor even by the Jews, who might have been expected to sanction one of their own. All of this makes Him the more mysterious to the young officer who tries to fathom His power according to standard operating procedure of the army.

And therein lies the plot. Dorio on the edge of the crowd listens to the sermons, observes the excitement caused by the teachings and the miracles, sees the people swayed and finally, himself, succumbs to the influence which overwhelms him and causes his physical and worldly undoing but brings him peace.

The indolent yet uneasy conflict of Dorio and the Sanhedrin, the mass hysteria of the crowd, the agonies of the crucifixion follow one another with terrible realism and an inevitability that beats like a dirge. There is sound writing here with a strong emotional impact that is sensibly controlled instead of sentimentally unbridled. Mr. Goldthorpe's style fits his theme in its dignity and dramatic forcefulness.

ILLUSTRATED HISTORY OF ENGLISH LITERATURE

Vol. 1 by A. C. Ward. (Longman, Green, 353 p.)

Readers who are familiar with the first two volumes in this sparkling history need not be adjured to get the third and last. They already know Mr. Ward as a wise and witty guide through the pageant of English literature, whose opinions are as forthright as they are sound. This third volume is profusely illustrated, but for this reviewer its principal charm lies in the freedom with which the author expresses himself. Not for him the stuffy theory and sacred pedestal. He calls the shots as he sees them, using pleasure and uplift as his basic requirements. He is especially good on Edwardian writers, as witness this devastating comment on H. G. Wells: "He lacked ballast and now seems to have been little more than a large vessel of cork bobbing about on a heaving sea." Mr. Ward has brought a large enterprise to a triumphant conclusion. This is history as it should be presented, so vital and alive that it will send readers to the bookshelves themselves.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Apology Revives Kefauver Talk

WASHINGTON.

THE APOLOGY of sorts which Senator Estes Kefauver made recently for his attacks on Adlai Stevenson during the Florida-California wind-up of their primary battle has revived speculation about a Stevenson-Kefauver Democratic ticket coming out of the August convention in Chicago.

Representative James Roosevelt (Dem.), California, son of the late President, described it as a "most acceptable" ticket for his party.

There are political reasons for such a ticket, as there are certain practical and personal reasons why it might not be possible to work out.

Among the latter, the first naturally involves the personal feelings of the two rivals. Immediately after his California triumph Stevenson was not in a very amiable mood toward the Tennessee Senator.

Time often cools such personal feuds, of course, and there is time—several weeks of it—before the Democratic convention.

In politics, personal feelings do not necessarily govern the makeup of tickets. They can be swept aside by the principals just as they often are bluntly dismissed by shrewd party leaders who are trying to put together a ticket that might win an election, not designing a Valentine with cupid's rampant. That is possible even when personal feelings have been put on the public record, as in the case of the Kefauver-Stevenson squabble.

The Hoover-Curtis Case.

Candidates on the same ticket, even for President and Vice President, do not have to love one another. A striking case comes to mind.

It was back in 1928 when Herbert Hoover was nominated by the Republicans for President. Among his rivals at that time was Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas, who was the party floor leader in the Senate.

Early in the convention, Senator Charles Curtis issued a blistering statement attacking Mr. Hoover, in which he referred disparagingly to his long residence abroad. The Senator also said that he never would accept second place on the ticket with the California candidate.

The Best Politics.

Despite all of the Curtis fire and brimstone, Mr. Hoover agreed in consultations with party leaders after his own nomination that Senator Curtis was the best solution politically for second place on the ticket.

Did the Senator refuse? He did not. We in the press section watched with amusement and some cynicism as he stood before the convention after his nomination. He was not exactly comfortable as he stood there under the glare of the Kleig lights, eating his words and gulping a bit. His bald head gleamed. His handkerchief mustache twitched as he tried to smile. It was only a conformed grin that creased his swarthy face.

But he accepted—and he became Vice President.

South the Obstacle.

Senator Kefauver's presence on the ticket would give the South representation, which it always courts, in the person of a man who also stands well with the non-Southern elements of the party because of his progressive record in Congress.

But an obstacle to his selection, either to head the ticket or in second place, comes from that same South—from Southern political leaders who refused to support him four years ago for either spot.

Aside from ruffled personal feelings in the Stevenson camp, there is another possible hindrance to ready acceptance of Senator Kefauver as a running mate.

That is the belief that he became, in this year's primary campaign, a stalking horse for Gov. Averell Harriman of New York to eliminate Stevenson—a maneuver that failed, if any such design existed.

Stevenson managers still believe that Gov. Harriman is relying on teaming up with Senator Kefauver and getting the bulk of the Tennessee delegates.

The trick there would be a Harriman-Kefauver ticket.

Pressure on Delegates.

By the time the convention comes around, nearly two months from now, many of the Kefauver delegates may be ready to stray away from the ticket.

For, from now until the convention, the Kefauver aggregation will be under pressure from both Stevenson and Harriman managers to join their respective candidates. In fact, that will be the all-important activity henceforth, and most of it will be quiet and under-cover.

If Senator Kefauver can hold his delegates together and retain his bargaining position, he might come out with the vice presidential nomination. For, beyond his delegates, he has demonstrated popular appeal, which counts with cold and calculating politicians seeking a winning combination.

OPERA IN U.S. DRAWS FIRE OF NBC OFFICIAL

He Attacks Singing in Foreign Tongue — Here to Set Up Performance.

Opera in this country "has lost contact with the people, and it's not the fault of the people but of the way opera has been performed," Chandler Cowles, general manager of the NBC Opera Company, declared here today.

He and other National Broadcasting Co. representatives were in town to confer with St. Louis officials and officers of Post-Dispatch television station KSD-TV. They are preparing for the company's forthcoming 45-city tour, first of a projected annual series. Included will be a performance of Puccini's "Madam Butterfly" in English Nov. 16 at Kiel Auditorium.

"The Germans sing Italian operas in German, the Italians sing German operas in Italian and the Swedish sing both kinds in Swedish," Cowles said. "Why are we so ashamed of using our own language? Why do we make of opera a 'precious,' esoteric art, known only to the chosen few?"

"If the truth were known, even the front row, for all its aristocratic air, doesn't understand the bulk of the operas sung in foreign tongues. These faithful few—and the music lovers in the upper balconies—listen for the few great songs. The recitative in between might just as well be Chinese."

Asked whether poetic values of the original language might not be diluted in translation, Cowles, a Yale man, retorted: "It ain't poetry if you don't understand it."

Cowles, known as an exponent of opera in English since his 1947 Broadway production in English of Gian-Carlo Menotti's "The Medium," told of his conversation with a woman living in a small Midwestern town who felt operas should be presented in the original languages or not at all.

"I told her that was all very well for her, since she presumably spoke all those languages," he continued, "but she said she spoke nothing but English."

"Another wrong emphasis has been on great voices alone, usually backed by tremendous sound. Who believes Tristan when he sings of his extravagant love for a 300-pound Isolde?"

"I guarantee you'll be able to fall in love with our Cio-Cio-San."

In response to a question on the lack of good operas in English despite England's wealth of poets, Cowles said:

"That's because the English can't sing. It's got something to do with the weather. They never see the sun, so they sit huddled inside in their cold houses and think. This produces excellent work in the introspective arts, like poetry. The Italians have a glorious sun, so they make love and sing about it and don't have to think."

The NBC company totals 100, including 40 musicians, and is committed to the venture for the next four years.

AWARDED $225 SCHOLARSHIP

Joseph F. Lyles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude E. Lyles, 4821 Milentz avenue, has been awarded a $225 scholarship at Springfield College, Springfield, Mass., it was announced today.

Lyles, a junior, is majoring in physical education. He attended St. Louis University High School.

Missouri Synod Lutherans Open Triennial Meeting in St. Paul

The Rev. Dr. John W. Behnken of St. Louis, president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, delivering presidential report at opening of the synod's convention at St. Paul, Minn., yesterday.

By JOHN T. STEWART
Church Editor of the Post-Dispatch

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 21 — The Forty-Third Triennial convention of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod opened yesterday. There were about 1000 ministerial and lay delegates and 1000 visitors in attendance.

The Rev. Dr. John W. Behnken of St. Louis, who this year completes 50 years in the Lutheran ministry, and who has been president of the 2,000,000 member church since 1935, gave his presidential report.

In his 21 years as president of the Synod, the church has doubled its membership—from 1,000,000 plus to 2,191,403.

The Rev. Dr. Behnken said that the emphasis of Missouri Synod has always been on "purity of doctrine," and declared that this "has exerted a tremendous and wholesome influence" in the 109 years since the church was established.

"Not great numbers, but solid scriptural doctrine is what makes a Lutheran Church truly Lutheran," he declared.

He reviewed the present strained relations in the synodical conference, which includes Missouri Synod and three other Lutheran bodies, and told of his own church's efforts in the past three years to bring about agreement.

With regard to negotiations with the American Lutheran Church, begun in 1935, the Rev. Dr. Behnken said "they have come to a standstill," because of the American Lutheran Church's contemplated merger with the Evangelical Lutheran Church and United Evangelical Lutheran Church. This merger is to take effect in 1960.

He stated that the Synod is this year operating on a budget of $12,900,000.

President Behnken read a number of greetings to the conventions, including a message from President Eisenhower.

"Because," the President said, "this meeting will include an observance of the one hundredth anniversary of the establishment of Missouri Synod Lutheranism in Minnesota, I add a special word of congratulations to the members of your church in that state—men and women who carry on the tradition of faith and service begun by the missionaries who in 1856 founded the first congregations in the area."

The Rev. Dr. Behnken then asked the delegates and visitors to stand while he said a prayer for the President's recovery to health and strength.

The St. Louis area is represented at this convention by more than 50 synodical leaders, including about 30 officers and board members from church headquarters at 210 North Broadway; by 35 delegates and Lutheran school teachers, and some 50 visitors.

One of five Negro delegates at this convention is Otis E. Finley of 4165 Kennerly Avenue, St. Louis, president of St. Philip's congregation, a biracial church.

Membership in the church is 73 per cent urban and 27 per cent rural, the Synod's statistics reported.

Illinois has the most Missouri Synod Lutherans, 279,000, followed by Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, and Missouri (131,000), in that order.

The Synod is found in all 48 states, and there are only five states where the church does not have a parochial school.

The Synod has 125 churches in the St. Louis metropolitan area—65 in St. Louis and St. Louis County, and 60 on the Illinois side that belong to the Southern Illinois District. The church has 125 congregations in metropolitan New York, and 48 in St. Paul and Minneapolis.

The convention is expected to adjourn June 30.

The Rev. Dr. Gauss, whose family moved to St. Louis from Charleston county in north central Missouri when he was an infant, entered the Presbyterian ministry and served as a missionary in Brazil. From 1889 to 1912 he was pastor of Carondelet Presbyterian Church here.

After his retirement, he occasionally served as guest pastor at churches here and taught at Sunday schools.

Surviving are three sons, Frank Gauss, 2621 W. 12th street, Henry Gauss, Moscow, Idaho, and Paul Gauss, Youngtown, O., and four daughters, Mrs. Esther Gauss, Duarte, Calif.; Mrs. Andrew Kean, Philadelphia; Mrs. Milton Schrader, Oak Park, Ill.; and Mrs. George Garven, Oklahoma City.

OPEN HOUSE BEGINS MONDAY AT NEW GLENNON HOSPITAL

Open house will be held at the new Cardinal Glennon Memorial Hospital for Children, Grand boulevard and Park avenue, beginning Monday and continuing through Sunday, July 1.

Hours will be from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. daily. Visitors will be shown the hospital facilities on tours to be conducted by guides and Sisters of St. Mary, who will operate the institution.

The hospital was dedicated April 15 by Cardinal John D'Alton, Archbishop of Armagh and Primate of All Ireland, who was a personal friend of the late Cardinal John Glennon for whom the hospital is named.

The hospital, the nation's first Catholic hospital exclusively for children, will begin operation in July.

THE REV. PAUL C. BARTH DIES, FORMERLY HELD KFUD POST

The Rev. Paul C. Barth, formerly director of public relations for Radio Station KFUD of Concordia Seminary, died last night at Lutheran Hospital of a cerebral hemorrhage. He was 71 years old. For the last two years he had been pastor of Salem Lutheran Church, Salem, Mo.

Following his ordination, he held pastorates in various cities in the Midwest before coming to St. Louis in 1942 to take the position of public relations director at KFUD. He remained there until 1952 when he became associated with the Family Worship Hour, a national religious broadcast originating in Chicago. While in St. Louis, he lived at 2111 Princeton place, Richmond Heights.

Survivors include his wife, a son, the Rev. Paul G. Barth, pastor of the Nazareth Lutheran Church, Buffalo, N.Y., and a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Kennedy, 1717 Bellevue avenue, Richmond Heights.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at Holy Cross Lutheran Church, Ohio and Miami avenues, with burial in Redeemer Cemetery.

FAMILY OF MAN DISPLAY WILL END IN FOUR DAYS

St. Louisans have four more days, starting with tomorrow, to attend City Art Museum's showing of "The Family of Man," photographic exhibit planned and organized by Edward Steichen, New York photographer and artist. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. except Monday, when they are from 2:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Attendance at the St. Louis showing, which is sponsored by the Post-Dispatch, totals 33,641 persons thus far. The display opened here June 2.

Theme of the exhibition is the fundamental unity of mankind in all parts of the world. Included are 503 enlarged photographs, many of mural dimensions, made by 273 photographers of 68 countries.

ROBBER CAUGHT FLEEING HOLDUP WITH $1745 LOOT

He Had Been Watching Victim for Two Weeks on Daily Trips to Bank.

A holdup man was captured about 10 minutes after he robbed Earl R. Freeman, sales manager of the National Life & Accident Insurance Co., 4615 Hampton avenue, of $1745 yesterday. Freeman was driving to the American Exchange National Bank when he was stopped and robbed.

The robber, a Negro, said he was Lawrence W. Kent, of the 900 block of Mound street. He told police he had been planning the holdup for two weeks and had been watching Freeman's daily trips to the bank. He said he would have robbed the insurance executive last week but missed him.

Freeman said he stopped his machine for a stop sign at Hampton and Loughborough avenues. The robber opened the door on the right side and produced a revolver from a cigar box he was carrying. Freeman jumped out of the machine and started shouting for a policeman.

Meanwhile, Kent reached into the machine and took the canvas money bag from the front seat. In addition to the cash, it also contained about $2000 in checks.

While he was shouting, Freeman saw that Kent ran south to Nagel avenue. Patrolman William Wamhoff Jr., driving a one-man police car, happened by. Freeman flagged him down and told him of the robbery. The officer started after the man, although by this time the robber was out of sight.

From neighbors Wamhoff learned a man was seen running into an apartment building at 5919 Nagel. The officer entered the building and discovered Kent hiding under a stairway. The money, still in the bag, was in a trash box, but Kent had placed the checks in the cigar box with his pistol. The money and the checks were recovered.

INJUNCTION TO HALT WORK ON CHASE ANNEX SOUGHT

Suit for an injunction to prevent construction of a $1,750,000 nine-story addition to the Chase Building was filed yesterday in circuit court by Chase Apartments, Inc.

Building Commissioner A. H. Baum rejected the application for a permit on the ground it would violate zoning restrictions, but on an appeal, the Board of Adjustment granted the request, holding that the structure represented a non-conforming use that would comply with the requirements of the zoning code respecting rear and side yards.

In the petition, the Chase Apartments, Inc., contends the building would not leave the eight yards required by the code for a side yard or the 25 yards for a rear yard and that its construction would damage the plaintiff's property. It asked that the Board of Adjustment decision be set aside, that construction be halted and that the court review the case.

180 NEW POLIO CASES ARE REPORTED IN WEEK

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—The Public Health Service said today that 180 new polio cases were reported last week, only four more than the preceding week.

"The increase was not as much as could have been expected during this period of seasonal rise," a spokesman said. He declined, however, to comment on whether the relatively low level of cases reflects use of Salk polio vaccine.

The report showed there had been 1153 polio cases this year, which started about April 1, compared with 2033 a year ago. For the calendar year there had been 2221 cases through June 16, compared with 3096 a year ago.

In Jefferson City, the State Health Division said today that 25 polio cases in 1956 had been reported in Missouri by the end of last week, compared with 29 during the same period last year.

Tiny Atom Particles Captured; Existence Suspected 20 Years

WASHINGTON, June 21 (UP)—Government scientists have confirmed the existence of phantom atomic particles so minute that one could pass through 300 trillion miles of solid lead without being stopped.

Detection of the particles, known as neutrinos, was announced today by the Atomic Energy Commission.

Their discovery resulted from work performed by a group of scientists led by Frederick Reines and Clyde Cowan Jr. of the Los Alamos, N. M., scientific laboratory.

Dr. Willard F. Libby, acting chairman of the AEC, called the discovery a "magnificent accomplishment." It further confirms one of the key laws of physics—that neither energy nor matter can be destroyed.

For more than 20 years scientists have theorized that neutrinos existed. But until the AEC experiment succeeded, they had escaped detection. They have no electrical charge, hence could not be "caught" in electrical or magnetic fields. For all intents and purposes, neutrinos pass through matter without coming into contact

PLAN TO SPEED CONSULTATION IN NATO REPORTED

Committee of 'Three Wise Men' Said to Be Studying Unity Problem.

PARIS, June 21—A system of "automatic" consultation among the Western Allies to foster unity on major problems was reported to have been discussed yesterday by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's committee of three.

The committee, formed at the end of last May's meeting of the NATO council, is charged with finding ways to insure Western unity and to implement the non-military phases of the Atlantic alliance.

Dubbed the committee of "three wise men," its members are Halvard M. Lange, foreign minister of Norway; Gaetano Martino, foreign minister of Italy; and Lester B. Pearson, Canadian secretary of state for external affairs. They are meeting here in closed sessions that will continue through tomorrow.

The divergence of Western policies has been recognized for a long time as one of the weaknesses of the Atlantic alliance. Up to now, theoretically, the Atlantic pact nations have consulted each other at periodic council meetings to attain unity of views. In practice, however, they have wound up taking divergent positions on key international questions.

One proposal said to be under consideration by the "three wise men" would call for more active and much closer consultation among the 15 nations of the alliance.

This would commit each member government to take into consideration the majority view as expressed in the North Atlantic council before making unilateral decisions on foreign policy, military and economic matters.

Same as Dulles's idea. The automatic consultation proposal under consideration is somewhat similar to an idea advanced by Secretary of State Dulles at the council meeting in May.

At that time Dulles suggested a plan for strengthening Western unity that entailed the creation of a high-level council, probably within the framework of the alliance, that would sit permanently and deal with the issues that divided the West.

Supreme Court even if the vacancies occurred, because there already are New York judges, John Harlan, incidentally a Dewey recommendation.

Inside reason Milton Eisenhower resigned from Penn State was not to take a Government job, but to campaign for his brother. The decision was made before the second illness, when Milton figured Brother Ike would need someone to make speeches for him. He didn't want to do this on the university's time or get the university mixed up in politics.

More and more Republicans are eyeing Milton in case the President now says no. Col. Bob Guggenheim, ex-ambassador to Portugal, started the idea by calling up Sherman Adams, Chairman Len Hall and others.

The Democrats, who trained Milton for 10 long years in Government, have to admit he's extremely able, but Hall grumbles that he's not really a Republican.

SENATE CONFIRMS HAMIL
WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—The Senate today approved the nominations of David A. Hamilton of Sterling, Colo., as Rural Electrification Administrator.

It also confirmed: Glenn A. Beger of Allentown, Pa., as a member of the Federal Farm Credit Board; and William G. Juergens as United States judge for the Eastern District of Illinois.

The scientists set up their equipment near one of the large reactors at the Savannah River plant near Aiken, S.C. Into it they poured more water in which was dissolved cadmium salts to serve as the target for neutrinos coming from the reactor. This target was "watched" by a detector containing more than 1000 gallons of sensitive liquid and 300 large photoelectric eyes.

Despite the billions of neutrinos coming from the reactor, only a few "captures" were observed each hour, the AEC said. The theory of neutrinos was propounded to explain an otherwise unexplainable loss of energy when radioactive atoms emitted beta rays. The neutrino represented the lost energy.

Libby said that "no immediate practical application of the discovery of the neutrino is known at the moment." But he added that "the discovery is of very great importance since progress in utilizing nuclear energy for human welfare is dependent upon advances in basic knowledge of nuclear forces."

Golda Meyerson Quit Teaching To Raise Chickens in Israel

New Foreign Minister Made Name for Herself as Organizer—Served as Labor Leader, Envoy, Business Woman.

JERUSALEM, Israel Sector, June 21 (AP)—A Russian-born school teacher from Milwaukee arrived in Palestine with her Zionist husband in 1921.

She wanted to serve her new country, then governed by Britain under a League of Nations mandate. She decided the struggling Zionists needed farm hands more than they needed teachers so she studied poultry raising and became a laborer in northern Palestine.

That started Mrs. Golda Meyerson, now 58 years old, on the long career climaxed by her appointment as Israel's new Foreign Minister this week. She succeeded Moshe Sharett, whose moderate views did not jibe with Ben-Gurion's plans.

For most of her life she has balanced headwork with handwork.

She was born May 3, 1898, in Kiev, Ukraine, the daughter of a Russian Jewish carpenter. Eight years later her family joined thousands of other Jews fleeing pogroms and oppression.

Settled in Milwaukee. The family—named Mabovitz—settled in Milwaukee. Golda attended primary and high schools and was graduated from a teachers' training college. She knew these American opportunities would have been denied her because of her religion in Czarist Russia.

She began teaching sixth graders in Milwaukee. Then she got into library work in Milwaukee, Chicago and New York. Her marriage to the ardent Zionist Morris Meyerson changed the whole course of her life.

She did relief work for eastern European Jews caught in the economic crisis after World War I. She helped prepare for the World Jewish Congress that demanded minority rights for eastern Europe's Jewish communities.

In this period she discovered one of her greatest talents—eloquence. When her father learned she was to address a street corner meeting, he said he would go down and pull her off the soapbox. Instead he was swept away by her words, like the others in the audience.

Life in Palestine in the early 1920s appeared hard for a trained school teacher who wanted to raise chickens. But Mrs. Meyerson made her theories work on the Merhaviah collective settlement in north Palestine.

Organizing Talent. Then she found another talent—organizing. She moved to Tel Aviv and took an active part in Histadrut, the general federation of Jewish labor. She changed it from a trade union into an all-round enterprise which in time embraced dozens of organizations. They included unions of both workers and consumers, and cultural and welfare groups.

Politics was the next logical step. The Mapai (labor) party

Sharett (then called Shertok). Mrs. Meyerson was made head of the agency's political department in Jerusalem, replacing Sharett.

In 1948 she began what she hoped would be a fruitful diplomatic career as Israel's first ambassador to Russia. Masses of Russian Jews turned out in Moscow to greet her.

Soviet Clampdown. Then came disillusionment. The Soviets clamped down on Jewish cultural institutions, seized many Jewish leaders, and executed some of them.

In 1949 Mrs. Meyerson returned to Israel to become Minister of Labor. She led Israel's delegation to the United Nations in 1953.

On the side she has gained business as well as labor experience. She was a leading member of a contracting firm and helped found Israel's first shipping and aviation companies.

Now a widow, Mrs. Meyerson lives in a three-room apartment in a two-story house in Jerusa-lem's Talbieh suburb. Her married daughter lives in a collective farm settlement. Her son, Menachem, is a concert cellist.

STOCKS MOVE HIGHER, VOLUME INCREASING

Gains of 1 to 2 Points at Close After Slight Price Trimming.

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—A fair-sized rally was staged by the stock market today as it enjoyed its liveliest session in days.

Pivotal issues closed with gains running from fractions to around 2 points. This was slightly below their best of the day.

The market was a bit higher from the start and it picked up speed gradually. With increased volume came a good spurt in prices.

The gains were trimmed a little as activity slowed before the session ended.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced $1 to $182.20 for its greatest improvement in more than a week. The industrial complex rose $1.70, the rails $1.10 while utilities were unchanged.

The rally was general. But motors were more active than other divisions in the early session.

There were 328 advances and 302 declines in the total of 1,119 issues traded. There were 23 new highs for the year and 27 new lows.

Volume for the day totaled 1,820,000 shares compared with 1,670,000 yesterday.

Confidence was buoyed by encouraging business and economic news.

The market was higher from the start. Motors enjoyed active trading. Aircrafts, metals and chemicals also found favor.

Gains of around 2 points were scored by Kennecott Copper, International Nickel, Phillips Petroleum and Illinois Central.

Detroit reports of higher car production and sales buoyed prices. Copper stocks rode on better prospects for delay in the industry's price situation.

A block of 17,000 shares of Cincinnati Gas & Electric was traded at 27 1/2.

The rally affected all divisions. General Dynamics rose over a point on news of a $200,000 order for jets.

North American Aviation was up a couple of points. United Aircraft and Douglas a point apiece.

Chrysler advanced over a point while General Motors and Ford rose fractionally.

Bethlehem Steel, Safeway and Reynolds Metals rose a point or so while high-priced du Pont went up around 3 points and Container Corp. rose around 4 points.

Various items of business and economic news were looked upon as builders of investor confidence.

Of importance to the general economic outlook was Washington's upward revision of its estimate for total new construction.

Reports of a pickup in automobile sales and rehiring by automotive manufacturers also helped.

Copper stocks were buoyed by news of a strike at the Rhokana Corp.'s African mine.

This was looked upon as a possible cause for delay in the expected reduction of United States copper prices.

The lowering of the "short" interest—those who have sold borrowed stock with the idea that prices will go down—was regarded by some as a stage-setting for an upswing.

Wall Street observers felt that the sluggish behavior of the market in recent days represented a consolidation after recent gains and was favorable for a future advance.

BANK CLEARINGS
St. Louis bank clearings for June 21 were $70,600,000 compared with $65,100,000 a year ago.

CORN PRICES RISE ON CHANGED CCC RULING

Corn Price Setback on Smaller Spring Pig Crop.

CHICAGO, June 21 (AP)—In a mixed grain market old crop corn showed a little strength on the Board of Trade today. Buying entered this cereal on news the Chicago Commodity Credit Corp. office would not sell its No. 4 and No. 5 grade corn on the domestic market. This reversed a policy announced only two days ago.

Among other cereals oats held to a firm tone. New crop corn was ahead at one time but retreated after the Agriculture Department reported this spring's pig crop fell 8 per cent under a year ago.

Wheat eased early, rallied to go above the previous close and then fell back again toward the finish. Some late easiness developed in July soybeans on lack of any confirmation of sales of soybean oil to Greece.

$36,000,000 MISSILE JOBS FOR M'DONNELL

Backlog Includes $25,800,000 Orders in May—Sales Set Record.

Air Force and Navy contracts for guided missiles totaling $25,800,000 were received by the McDonnell Aircraft Corp. at Lambert-St. Louis Field last month, it was announced today. These new orders bring to $36,000,000 the firm's missile backlog.

The company was selected as a prime contractor for one new missile program and won a major subcontract on another, a spokesman said. Also the firm is participating in the Talos ground-to-air missile project.

Sales by McDonnell during May totaled $18,358,959, representing aircraft, missiles and other work. This was the largest monthly sales figure in the company's 17-year history.

The company received an Air Force contract for $3,000,000 for the flight test program of the new F-101B, which is a two-man interceptor version of the Voodoo. It will be used for continental defense by the Air Defense Command.

The spokesman said other Air Force orders totaling $23,830,000 were received during the month for spare parts for all three versions of the F-101 Voodoo, which will go into operational service soon. It was explained that spare parts inventories are built up at various air bases prior to the time a new plane goes into service.

These new contracts raise McDonnell's backlog to $668,300,000, the highest it has ever been. Previous high was $627,000,000 as of last March 31. The spokesman noted, however, that all orders are subject to cancellation at the convenience of the Government.

USW, STEEL 'BIG 3' RESUME JOINT TALKS

Two Days of Union Negotiations With Individual Companies Fail.

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—The United Steelworkers resumed joint contract talks today with Steel's "Big Three" following two days of abortive negotiations on an individual firm basis.

The union threatens to call out 650,000 workers in the basic steel industry if a contract settlement is not reached by June 30—expiration date of the current contract.

The Steelworkers broke off negotiations last Sunday with the "Big Three"—United States Steel, Bethlehem and Republic—after turning down a "stand pat" offer by the companies.

For the last two days union teams have negotiated separately with each of the "Big Three" and eight other firms.

Yesterday those meetings were suspended, with Union President David J. McDonald saying:

"Each company presented the identical proposal previously tendered to the union by the 'Big Three' steel companies."

"Each of the union negotiating committees unanimously rejected the industry's proposal as entirely inadequate."

McDonald then asked for, and got, "Big Three" assent to resumption of joint sessions.

The "individual" talks were conducted by union negotiating teams from the companies' home areas. Following the breakdown in multiple negotiations, all members of the teams—except for the chairman and secretaries—headed for home.

The union has asked for an unspecified but "substantial" wage rise, a 52-week layoff pay plan, time-and-a-half for Saturday work, double pay for Sunday work, an insurance program to be borne entirely by the companies, and other benefits.

The companies have offered a 52-week layoff pay plan, a 4 per cent premium pay for Sunday work and various other benefits, but no premium pay for Saturday work.

Union and management mainly are deadlocked over the "Big Three" proffer of a five year, no-strike contract.

USW and Granite City Steel Co. Start Negotiations.

Negotiations began today between the United Steelworkers and the Granite City Steel Co. with local problems scheduled for immediate discussion.

The conferences, held at the company's administration offices, are participated in by nine union representatives and an equal number of negotiators from management. The union group, representing about 3700 production employees, is headed by Lloyd McBride, an international representative of the steelworkers.

Lyle Gulley, vice president in charge of operations for Granite City Steel, is chairman of the company representatives.

BROTHERS, 5 AND 3, DROWN IN MISSOURI FARM POND

GOWER, Mo., June 21 (UP)—Two Clinton county brothers drowned in a farm pond yesterday after they disobeyed their grandfather's instructions to wait in his car.

State highway patrolmen identified the youngsters as Bill Geller, 5 years old, and his brother Dickie, 3. They were the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Geller of Gower.

Officers said the youngsters were left by their grandfather, Roy Corum, in his car. They evidently slipped out of the car and waded into a nearby farm pond. Their bodies were found about an hour after the drowning, the patrol said.

MRS. BULGANIN SEES STYLES

MOSCOW, June 21 (AP)—Mrs. Nikolai Bulganin visited the British fashion show in Gorky park yesterday. The Soviet Prime Minister's wife had two young girls with her and they commented animatedly at six British models paraded by in the latest London styles.

Mrs. Bulganin sat in the front row. She and her companions seemed especially struck by the shoulderless short evening frocks and gaily colored cocktail dresses.

HOCKER CITES STATE FIGHT AGAINST SPECIAL PRIVILEGE

The same battle against special privilege and partisan favoritism that has been waged by President Eisenhower is being fought at the state level in Missouri, Lou Hocker declared at the opening of Eisenhower-for-President headquarters in Midland township at 9453 Lackland road, Overland, last night.

Hocker, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, said Missourians want clean government "from top to bottom," and will closely scrutinize the records of candidates for state and local offices.

"A number of good Democrats have written me of their determination to prevent the setting up of a political dictatorship by the Dwyer-Nacy-Pendergast alliance in behalf of James T. Blair, then candidate for Governor," he said. Hocker was endorsed for the G.O.P. gubernatorial nomination by the Midland Township Republican group.

BUILDING TRADES END FIGHT ON MERGER

Council Votes to Drop Opposition to AFL-CIO Unification Here.

One source of opposition to merger of St. Louis labor bodies was withdrawn today with announcement by Joseph Cousin, executive secretary of the Building & Construction Trades Council, that it had abandoned its two-month-old policy of urging delay of the unification movement.

Cousin said the council voted yesterday to cease opposition to merger of the AFL Central Trades and Labor Union and the CIO Industrial Union Council. It acted upon instructions from Richard J. Gray, president of the AFL-CIO building trades department, who pointed out that George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, had arranged a new method of settling jurisdictional problems.

Although neither local nor state bodies have any authority over jurisdictional matters, a policy of delay for a full two-year period allowed by merger terms for unification of such organizations had been advocated.

International policy of the Teamsters unions still is to attempt to delay such merger. Meany has accused the Teamsters of being the motivating force of the former opposition by the building trades.

While separate committees in St. Louis have held exploratory meetings, no definite plans have been established for the local merger. Several members of a joint unification board now are attending various conventions and negotiating sessions.

Over-Enthusiastic Backer. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 21 (UP)—A. B. Cox Sr., of Carmi, Ill., was charged today with carrying his support of Democratic presidential hopeful Adlai E. Stevenson a little too far. Cox changed the slogan on his Illinois license plate from "Land of Lincoln" to "Land of Adlai," police said.

AGED LONGER than any other beer

Back in 1903... when the fabulous Peerless was the car in which to be seen. And it was then, as now, that famous Griesedieck Bros. Beer was a great favorite of folks in step with the times.

That's why G/B is so refreshing!

Griesedieck Bros.

Finest Quality Lager Beer

AGE—yes sir, that's what makes a good beer taste better. The finest beer is aged beer. That's why G/B is aged longer to bring out that quality lager flavor. Of course, we use the finest premium-priced hops, sun-ripened grains and crystal-pure water—but it is ageing... far longer ageing that makes the real taste difference. You'll notice it in G/B right away... a smooth, mellow taste that's unusually refreshing. Try G/B and see!

Colorful Fruits of Summer Here

Prospects Look Excellent for Fine Peach Crop; Season's First Raspberries.

By DOROTHY BRANNER
Post-Dispatch Food Editor.

THOSE beautiful peaches in the picture on this page aren't one bit more luscious than some which have been in St. Louis markets recently. Whoever coined the cliché "pretty as a picture" must have had something like this fruit in mind.

We aren't recommending them as a good buy—not yet. But we just couldn't resist a burst of enthusiasm concerning their beauty. And we also might mention that earlier predictions of an excellent peach crop seem well justified. It looks like a fine peach season ahead.

We repeat, they aren't too plentiful yet and are still expensive, but supplies are increasing and if the coloring and general appearance of this early fruit (especially that from Arkansas) is a forerunner of the crop to come, better get out your favorite peach recipes; you will be wanting them before long.

Early transparent apples are now coming to market. This variety, you will recall, makes delicious applesauce and pies. Of course these first shipments aren't as good as the ones which will follow, but be on the alert.

Another fruit which rates special mention—early Royal apricots from California, an exceptionally flavorful variety. They are rather moderately priced, and there are many to the pound so they go a long way. There will be cheaper apricots later in the season, naturally enough, but we doubt that they will equal these for flavor.

If you want to make the most of our local sour cherries, don't delay. They are here now, but they may not linger long.

Shipments are increasing on California Bing cherries, which are high but select.

Supplies of western cantaloupes are heavier, with quality improving. However, not all of them now on the market are the best, so choose with care. Look for a well-netted melon with a good background color.

Prices are working downward on watermelons, due to increased supplies. There are a goodly number of Charleston grays around town this season.

Here is the way the strawberry situation lines up as of this writing. The hot weather up north has taken a heavy toll of Michigan berries so that, at least temporarily, they are somewhat of a disappointment.

Just how permanent this damage will be is, obviously, dependent upon the weather. A word to the wise—if lemons seem high, lemons are coming down in price.

Luxury-priced items which are interesting to note but too high for most of us to buy include nectarines from California, red and black raspberries (looks as though we should have a good crop, if all goes well weather-wise), blackberries, Beauty seedless, Perlette seedless and red Cardinal grapes, and mangoes.

WE ARE happy to report that there are more vegetables on the "good buys" list this week than last Thursday.

Homegrown beets are as good a value as you will find. The quality exceeds expectations of the most optimistic grower, and they are being offered at prices which make them worthy candidates for home canning.

Carrots are so tender that you will want to serve them raw, as carrot sticks or curls.

Peppers are trending downward from their high toward a moderate level, and Idaho is sending us some very nice sweet peas. Homegrown squash is starting on the market, plus that shipped in from Illinois and Mississippi. Take your choice of white, yellow and zucchini.

We were supplying other sections of the country with cabbage, but their own crops have come into production so that we have ample supplies of our homegrown, consequently you should find some good values.

Potatoes and onions, those two staples upon which we usually depend through thick and thin, have really kicked over the traces. Potatoes have been ridiculously high, and the red ones probably will stay right up there although there is some easing on long whites.

Beans have been high but are better in quality. Broccoli has advanced but has improved sufficiently to justify the increase.

There are lingering supplies of homegrown asparagus, plus that shipped in, but it definitely is past its peak. Prices are up on celery, but here again we must give it credit for good quality.

Both homegrown and western cauliflower are on the market, with the shipped "flower" the better choice.

You will pay plenty for fancy corn—a condition that probably will continue until our homegrown supplies reach sizable proportions. In the meantime, some clipped ears from Alabama are being offered at reasonable prices.

IN the meat markets, you may notice that veal is becoming a better buy right along. Pork loins are a better value than they were a week ago. Hams are a little higher and chances are they will be until after July 4.

On an over-all basis, beef is still your best bet price-wise, with fryers remaining an excellent value.

You Will Serve These With Pride

Fresh fruits are piled high in local markets now, and will continue to be for the weeks ahead. No matter how small her kitchen or how limited her time, the homemaker who fails to take a few moments to put up a few jars of spiced fruits and relishes will miss the fun of making and serving these "extras" which are sure to win praise from her family and guests.

THE fresh fruits now in the markets, and those that will be coming within the next few weeks, are much too tempting to be enjoyed as just a fleeting thing. Big, shiny green watermelons and lush golden pineapples deserve a better fate. Peaches are now in St. Louis fruit stands, of course, and mighty pretty things they are. Predictions are that we will have an excellent crop. Before the summer has come to an end produce departments will be gay with many another fine fruit.

The homemaker who doesn't take a little time to do some home pickling is missing out on the fun. Not in the quantities her grandmother did, of course—but no matter how small her kitchen and how short her time, she will find real satisfaction in "putting up" a few jars of spiced fruits and a few special relishes.

And it will take literally just a "few moments" if she observes these few simple rules.

1. Always choose fresh, good quality fruits free from blemishes and uniform in size. (Imperfect and irregular fruits can be cut up for relishes, but they should never be used if they are to be left whole or halved.)

2. Fruits may be slightly under-ripe, but never over-ripe.

3. All fruits should be washed gently but thoroughly to remove dirt and grit which could start bacterial action.

4. Use the "short-cut" method of pickling, which calls for distilled white vinegar as both a flavoring and a preservative.

The vinegar used in putting up spiced fruits and relishes is really important. First, from a safety angle, it is vital that you use a top-quality full-strength vinegar, one stabilized at an acidity of four to six per cent (40 to 60 grain). A weak or diluted vinegar is not an adequate preservative and may result in early spoilage of fruit.

On the other hand, too strong a vinegar can cause the fruit to shrivel. It is important to check the acid strength of the liquid—five per cent is just about right.

While any flavor of vinegar can be used as a preservative as long as the strength is correct, distilled white vinegar is crystal clear and therefore safeguards the original color of the fruit without darkening it. And because it is neutral in flavor, it brings out the full flavor of the fruit without dominating it.

5. Selection of spices is important, too. Use only fresh whole spices for full flavor unless the recipe specifies ground spices. Old spices may give a somewhat dusty flavor to the pickled fruit.

6. Use water as free from minerals as possible. In areas where water is hard and chemically treated it is wise to boil it, let it cool, then remove the scum.

Some of the following recipes call for processing in a boiling water bath. (Others are done by the "hot fill method" since they are cut in small pieces and are not as easily broken.) To conserve space, here are the directions for Processing in Boiling Water Bath.

1. Place filled jars on wire rack in covered, deep kettle. (If no rack is available, wooden clothes pins or several thicknesses of used jar rubbers tied together may be placed in the bottom of canner.)

2. Add enough boiling water to cover tops of jars one inch; place over heat.

3. When water comes to a rolling boil again, start counting processing time. Keep water boiling steadily.

4. At end of processing time, remove jars; adjust seal by following instructions which come with jar lids. Place jars upright, well apart on a cake rack or several thicknesses of cloth to cool. Keep out of draft.

5. The next day, test seal on jars. If jars are not sealed, serve food at once.

Spiced Peaches.

Four pounds (16 medium) peaches.

Vinegar-water (two quarts water plus two tablespoons vinegar).

Four cups sugar.

One and one-half cups distilled white vinegar.

Three-fourths cup water.

One teaspoon whole ginger.

One tablespoon whole cloves.

Three three-inch cinnamon sticks.

Four boiling water over peaches; let stand until skins can be removed easily; dip into cold water, peel. Stick one clove in each peach. Let stand in vinegar-water to prevent browning.

Combine sugar, one and one-half cups vinegar and three-fourths cup water. Add spices tied in cheesecloth bag. Heat to boiling.

Add drained peaches, cover, boil until tender about 10 minutes. Let stand overnight. Drain, saving liquid; remove spice bag. Pack peaches into clean, hot jars. Bring sirup to boil. Pour over peaches, leaving one-half inch head space. Be sure peaches are covered with sirup. Adjust covers as jar manufacturer directs. Process in boiling water bath 30 minutes. Yield: four to five pints.

Spiced Pineapple.

Two medium sized fresh pineapples.

One and one-half cups sugar.

Three-fourths cup water.

One-third cup distilled white vinegar.

Ten whole cloves.

One three-inch cinnamon stick, broken.

Cut pineapple into one-fourth inch slices crosswise; pare, remove eyes. Cut slices into quarters; remove cores. Combine remaining ingredients; heat to boiling. Add pineapple; simmer 30 minutes. Continue simmering while quickly packing one hot sterilized jar at a time. Fill to one-eighth inch from top. Be sure vinegar solution covers fruit. Seal each jar at once. Yield: two pints.

Pickled Watermelon Rind.

Three pounds prepared watermelon rind.

Two pounds sugar.

Two cups distilled white vinegar.

Six three-inch cinnamon sticks.

Two tablespoons whole allspice.

Two tablespoons whole cloves.

Use rind from firm, not over-ripe, watermelon. Trim outer green skin and pink flesh (allowing a very thin line of pink to show). Cut into one and one-half by one by three-fourth inch pieces. Soak overnight in salt water (three tablespoons salt per one quart water); drain.

Cover with fresh water and cook until tender; drain. Heat sugar and vinegar to boiling. Add spices tied in cheesecloth bag. Add rind. Cook, uncovered, until transparent, about 45 minutes. Remove spice bag. Simmer while quickly packing one hot sterilized jar at a time. Fill to one-eighth inch from top. Be sure vinegar solution covers rind. Seal each jar at once. Yield: three pints.

COOKING FOR TWO?
HERE IS GOOD IDEA

JUNE brides will agree that cooking for two does present problems, but they will soon find that there are ways of solving them.

To solve the leftover meat problem, choose a double-duty meat cut. A one-rib roast, broiled for Sunday dinner, will provide generous slices of cold beef for supper a few nights later.

Broiling a "roast" is no trick. Select a high quality one-rib beef roast cut two to two and one-half inches thick. Slash fat edges at one-inch intervals and broil the meat exactly as you would a regular steak, about five inches from the source of heat. Allow 50 to 60 minutes for rare to medium rare, turning meat once during the broiling period.

Garnish the beef platter with broiled tomatoes and little green onions. Asparagus, hot rolls and instant pudding will complete this Sunday dinner for two.

Here are some buying pointers to remember when selecting beef:

- (1) Select high quality meat for broiling and roasting. Look for the packer's brand or the U.S.D.A. grade of quality, and the round purple Government Inspection Stamp for wholesomeness.
- (2) Select beef that is clear red in color and firm in texture.
- (3) Select beef that has a liberal amount of white fat or "marbling" throughout the lean. The fat gives fine flavor and juiciness to the meat.
- (4) Select beef at least one inch thick for broiling; two inches thick is better. Steaks thinner than one inch may be pan-broiled.

Versatile Waffles Served
As Main Course, Dessert

THEY call them gaufrettes in French, waffles in German and wafels in Dutch. The French make them rich with many eggs and fragrant with liqueur; the Germans make them with yeast; but we like them tender and crisp, often with cornmeal and other ingredients added. Waffles are a favorite of almost everyone.

And they are wonderful any time of day, since they lend themselves to unlimited variations. An exceptionally light, tender and nutritious version is made with evaporated milk and your favorite pancake or waffle mix. Use double-rich concentrated evaporated milk just as it comes from the can for half the liquid called for in the pancake mix. For the other half, substitute a flavored liquid such as fruit juices, tomato juice, chicken bouillon, cranberry sauce, et cetera.

For a breakfast change, make deviled ham waffles; for brunch top ham waffles with poached eggs and a simplified version of Hollandaise sauce. Chicken bouillon waffles make the perfect underpinning for Chicken a la King; dinner dessert couldn't be better than crisp chocolate waffles topped with ice cream and peanut butter sauce.

Flavored Waffles. Substitute evaporated milk for one-half of the liquid called for in your favorite packaged pancake or waffle mix. For remaining one-half of the liquid substitute one of the following:

Chicken Waffles: Substitute chicken broth of bouillon cube dissolved in hot water for one-half of the liquid. Serve piping hot with Chicken a la King.

Deviled Ham Waffles: Substitute water for one-half of the liquid; then add one can (four and one-half ounces) deviled ham. Serve with poached eggs and Hollandaise sauce (see below).

Tomato Waffles: Substitute tomato juice for one-half of the liquid. Serve with cheese rabbit.

Quick and Easy Hollandaise Sauce.

One-fourth cup evaporated milk.

One-third cup mayonnaise.

One-eighth teaspoon salt.

One teaspoon lemon or lime juice.

One-sixteenth teaspoon tabasco.

Combine all ingredients and blend until smooth. Heat gently, stirring constantly. Do not boil. If desired, stir in a few drops yellow food coloring. Yield: One-half cup. Serve over ham waffle topped with poached egg.

TRY FRUIT NECTARS
IN SUMMER COOLERS

WARM weather inevitably brings loud and long demands from the family for something cool and refreshing. For different and interesting ways in which to answer these requests, consider the possibilities of fruit nectars.

As examples of how they may be used both for breakfast "eye-openers" and for thirst-quenchers throughout the day, take just two of them—apricot-and-pineapple nectar, and pear-and-pineapple nectar.

Apricot-Pineapple Frappe.

Two 12-ounce tins apricot-pineapple nectar.

One-half pint orange sherbet. Chill glasses, mixing bowl or blender thoroughly. Place chilled nectar in an electric blender or in a bowl and add the sherbet. Beat with the blender or with a rotary egg beater until mixture is light and frothy. Yield: three 10-ounce servings.

The quantities of ingredients may be varied to suit the individual taste.

Pear-Pineapple Sherbet.

One-half cup water.

One 12-ounce tin pear-pineapple nectar.

One tablespoon lemon juice. One teaspoon gelatin. One-half cup sugar. Two egg whites. Boil water and sugar for five minutes. Add dissolved gelatin and lemon juice. When cool stir in pear-pineapple nectar. Pour in refrigerator tray and freeze.

When partly frozen place in chilled bowl and beat until frothy. Add two stiffly beaten egg whites, blend until smooth. Return to refrigerator and freeze. (Additional beating improves the texture.)

CHILDREN NEED BOTH MILK AND FRUIT JUICES

That fruit juice is not a substitute for milk in children's diet might seem obvious to any parent. But one finding in a survey of diets of 1200 Iowa children—grade-schoolers and teen-agers—indicates that some children are drinking fruit juice instead of milk, probably because many persons don't realize that different nutrients are contributed by the two beverages.

Citrus fruit is one of the richest sources of vitamin C, which everyone needs every day, and citrus juice has been increasingly popular. But milk offers several important nutrients, and is especially valuable for calcium. Children need one and one-half pints to one quart of milk daily to supply their calcium needs. Teen-agers need a quart or more.

The Iowa nutritionists, concerned about those children who rated low in milk—often as low as a cup a day or less—found that they often rated well in vitamin C, as provided by citrus juice.

Cool beverages are especially welcome in summer. Why not encourage your youngsters to drink both milk and fruit juice? Make sure they get their milk quota, and encourage fruit juice for vitamin C needs.

CARVING TECHNIQUES

Carving is not a tedious chore, if you have the right equipment and know-how. A sharp knife is a "must" for carving ease. All meat is carved across the grain except steaks which are carved with the grain.

Plan a Gay Circus Party To Amuse the Youngsters

Jo-Jo the clown will be the star attraction at a circus party for youngsters. He is easy to make, wholesome to eat.

Toward the end of June those youngsters who were so anxious to be out of school may find time hanging heavy on their little hands. At the first signs of restlessness, plan a circus party in the backyard.

Star of the show is Jo-Jo the clown, a sandwich and salad combination especially designed for the occasion.

Jo-Jo is not only amusing; he is good. His head is a hard-cooked egg with a bit sliced off one side to make it lie firmly on the plate. Finely grated carrot makes a bright orange tuft of hair. Use whole cloves for eyes and nose, a sliver of pimiento for a mouth.

No clown is complete without an out-sized middle, so for a body use a half of thick slice of tomato. Midget gherkins form the arms, and sliced crosswise may be used for buttons on the tomato or, if you prefer, olive slices may be used for this purpose. Parsley makes a wonderful hair.

For Jo-Jo's balloon-type pants, cut a slice of toast into several strips or use hot dog buns, sliced lengthwise and once across. Spread with any of the following spreads. Trim each pant leg with an ankle ruff of parsley, use stuffed olives or midget gherkins for feet.

Pepi Tuna Spread.
One can (seven ounces) tuna, drained, flaked.
One-fourth cup hamburger or barbecue relish.
Three tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
Combine ingredients. Yield: One cup.

Ham and Pickle Spread.
Two cups ground cooked ham.
One-half cup mayonnaise or salad dressing.
One-half cup chopped or ground sweet or dill pickles, or candied dill strips.
One-eighth teaspoon mar-joram (optional).
Two tablespoons pickle juice.
Combine ingredients, mix well. Yield: two cups.

Spanish Cheese Spread.
One and one-half cups (six ounces) grated process American cheese.
One-fourth cup chili sauce.
Two tablespoons chopped green pepper.
Two tablespoons chopped ripe olives.
Two tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing.
Combine ingredients. Chill at least one hour to allow blending of flavors. Yield: one and one-half cups.

Cheese Frankfurter Spread.
Three-fourths cup process American cheese.
Three frankfurters, chopped.
One tablespoon prepared mustard.
Melt cheese with milk in double boiler. Add frankfurters and mustard. Yield: approximately one and one-half cups.

ELEGANT PARTY DISH COPIED FROM FRENCH

Want a party dish that sounds elegant and difficult to make, but really is neither? What is more, this one is baked and served in scallop shells, always a sign of a festive occasion. It is the famous French dish, Coquilles St. Jacques... which to a Frenchman means "scallops baked in cheese and wine."

The true dish is baked in the little coquilles, or shells. But you can use other individual baking dishes as a substitute, or place the entire mixture in a large casserole. Just be sure it is heated through and that the top is bubbly and brown.

Coquilles St. Jacques.
(Scallops in Baking Shells.)
One pound scallops.
One teaspoon onion, chopped.
One tablespoon butter or margarine.
One-half cup white wine.
Mornay Sauce (recipe below).
One teaspoon chopped parsley.
Salt and pepper.

If scallops are frozen, let them thaw. If large scallops are used, cut in two or three pieces. Sauté onion in butter until tender. Add scallops. Pour wine over them. Let scallops simmer four to six minutes until done. Add three-fourths cup Mornay sauce, parsley. Season to taste.

Spoon into four to six baking shells. Coat the tops of the filled shells with remaining Mornay Sauce. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Brown under broiler.

Mornay Sauce:
Two tablespoons butter or margarine.
Two tablespoons flour.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Dash of pepper.
One cup milk.
One-half teaspoon worcestershire sauce.
One-half cup grated Parmesan cheese.
Melt butter, stir in flour, salt and pepper. When well blended add milk slowly, stirring constantly over low heat until mixture thickens and boils. Add worcestershire sauce and cheese. Heat until cheese is melted.

SPINACH COOKED IN A RING MOLD

Family look unhappy when you serve spinach? Try giving it a different twist by serving it in a ring mold.

Start with quick-frozen chopped spinach, and be sure to follow the label directions for cooking so that the leaves will stay a vivid green. Easy does it—never overcook your frozen vegetables.

And here is a tip; it doesn't hurt to shake the pan occasionally while the spinach is cooking. That's what the chefs do, then there is no chance of any leaves clinging to the bottom and becoming burned. Just be sure to hold the cover down while you shake the pan.

A bowl of hot cream is a nice "luxury" touch. Just add enough salt and pepper (preferably white pepper for this purpose).

Spinach Ring.
Two 12-oz. packages quick-frozen chopped spinach.
Three tablespoons butter or margarine.
One-fourth cup flour.
Three-fourths cup milk.
Two teaspoons salt.
One-fourth teaspoon pepper.
One-eighth teaspoon grated nutmeg.

The eggs, beaten.
Cook spinach, following package directions. Drain well. Melt butter or margarine in heavy pan. Remove from heat and stir in flour. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly. Return to heat and continue to stir until mixture comes to a boil. Add seasonings and drained spinach and blend well. Stir in well-beaten eggs.

Pour mixture into well-oiled, nine-inch ring mold. Set mold in pan of hot water to one and one-half inches in depth. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 minutes or until cake tester inserted comes out clean. Run spatula gently around edges and invert on serving platter. Fill center with bowl of hot seasoned cream. Yield: six to eight servings.

GROUND BEEF SANDWICH FOR BACKYARD SUPPER
Lure your family out to a backyard supper with a juicy ground beef sandwich. Make your favorite ground beef spaghetti sauce and cook it to a thicker consistency than usual so it can be easily spooned on the bread.

The best tasting spaghetti sauce is made with lots of ground beef and plenty of rich seasonings. Brown the meat first and then simmer it with tomato paste, chopped onion, chopped green pepper and chili powder.

Slice long French bread lengthwise and spoon ample servings of ground beef sauce into the center. Cut the loaf into six-inch pieces to make nice "handful" sandwiches.

INDIAN WOMAN IN JAIL AS DRUNK GETS $158,500

SPOKANE, Wash., June 21 (UP)—Mrs. Lucille Boyd Gallegos, 30-year-old Indian, is $158,500 richer today but won't be able to collect until she finishes a four-day sentence in jail.

Mrs. Gallegos, along with her brother Richard Boyd, 18, will share an unexpected $317,000 to be paid by the Dawn Mining Co., New York, for uranium rights on 458 acres of their tribal reservation.

"I knew we would get quite a sum for leasing the land," she said, "but I never expected it to reach such an amount. I'm so happy. That's why I've been drinking too much and that's why I'm in the tank."

A total of $340,000 will be paid eight members of the Boyd family with the bulk of it going to Mrs. Gallegos and Richard. Mrs. Gallegos said she planned to pay bills, buy a car and build a home on the reservation with her share of the money. She still has two days to serve.

SENATE-HOUSE CONFEREES OK HUGE ROAD BILL

Controversial Measure
Ready for Final Action — Signature
Likely Before July 1.

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—Two sets of Senate-House conferees completed action on the $32,900,000,000 highway construction bill today.

This sends the huge, controversial measure to the Senate and House for final action. The House is to act first.

The conferees working on the tax sections of the bill finished their work in one session, winding up two hours after the conferees on the construction features finished their job.

Indications were that the bill—one of the major pieces of congressional business for the 1956 session—would be called up in both branches early next week and rushed to President Eisenhower.

The President is expected to sign the measure into law before July 1. The tax increases in the bill finally worked out today will become effective on that date.

16-Year Program.

The tax increases would bring in about $14,800,000,000 in additional revenues over the 16-year life of the program. They expire June 30, 1972, under the bill.

Sponsors of the measure contend that these revenues, combined with money from existing levies on highway users, will be sufficient to finance the huge construction program.

The principal tax boost is a one-cent increase in the federal levy on gasoline, raising it to three-cents a gallon.

Other new taxes will hit trucks, busses, trailers, tires, tread and fuel oils other than gasoline.

The conferees on construction features spent their final session polishing the language as to decisions previously reached.

The New York Times News Service, Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times.

Under yesterday's conference agreement, the final bill would authorize federal outlays of $25,000,000,000 for completion of a 41,000-mile interstate highway network in the next 13 years. The Federal Government would pay 90 per cent of the cost and the states 10 per cent.

The conference bill would also start a gradual step-up in the regular federal-aid highway program by authorizing appropriations of $2,550,000,000 in the next three years. These would be matched dollar-for-dollar by the states.

Construction of park, forest and other public domain roads financed entirely by the Federal Government likewise would be expanded. Appropriations of $448,000,000 in the next three years would be authorized.

The conferees settled the main dispute between the House and Senate by accepting the Senate method for distributing the interstate highway fund among the states but limiting its effect to the first three years. Under the Senate formula, each state's share would be based on its population, size and mileage of rural postal routes.

The United Press said that Missouri's share for the first three years would be $132,000,000 for the interstate system and $71,200,000 for primary, rural and urban roads. The Illinois share would be $299,700,000 for interstate highways and $113,500,000 for primary, urban and rural roads.

The Secretary of Commerce would be required to draft new estimates of the actual state-by-state cost of building the interstate system. Congress would then decide how the fund would be apportioned in the remaining 10 years of the program.

The conference committee eliminated a House provision that expressed congressional intent to carry forward for 13 years progressive increases in funds for federally-aided roads outside the interstate system.

The annual increases of $25,000,000 a year were limited to a three-year period with the understanding that Congress would act every two years on that phase of the over-all highway program.

The conferees rejected a Senate amendment to a provision requiring the payment of locally-prevailing wages on interstate highway work. The amendment would have subjected the wages rates set by the Secretary of Labor to court review.

The estate of Charles E. Dexter, automobile dealer who died last April 8 in a fire at his home, 5815 South Grand boulevard, was valued at $202,737 in an inventory filed yesterday in Probate Court.

Principal items consisted of stock, $99,981; notes, $54,632; cash $46,223, and miscellaneous, $1900.

Under his will, one-half the estate will go to his wife, Mrs. Wanda L. Dexter, while the remaining half will be divided by two children of a previous marriage, Jo-Ann Dexter, 13 years old, and Charles E. Dexter II, 11, both of 924 Buena Vista avenue.

CONFUSED M.P.'S WORD MIXUP GIVES TRUMAN A LAUGH

LONDON, June 21 (INS)—Former President Harry S. Truman, watching debate in the House of Commons today, roared with laughter when an excited member got tangled in his own words.

The House was discussing the recent increase in vice and crime in London.

Laborite Richard Stokes provided his colleagues and the distinguished visitor with a laugh when he charged that British vice lords "exploit prostitution for its own ends, not for the purpose for which it is intended."

KARSTEN SEEKS INQUIRY ON POST OFFICE SPEECH

Says Pro-G.O.P. Talk Would Turn Postmasters Into Political Hucksters.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 21—Representative Frank M. Karsten (Dem.), St. Louis, asked today for an investigation of possible violation of the Hatch act by the Post Office Department in sending postmasters a "ghost-written" speech praising the Eisenhower Administration.

Postmasters would be turned into "part-time political hucksters for the present Republican Administration" if required to deliver a model speech sent to them for delivery before church groups, service clubs and other organizations, Karsten said in a letter to Chairman Tom Murray (Dem.), Tennessee, of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

Karsten suggested that the committee might also want to "look into the matter of sending out material of this type as official mail without the payment of postage."

Karsten, a former member of the committee, told Murray there had been persistent rumors about a model speech issued by the Post Office Department and sent out to postmasters for their use.

"I have not been able to obtain the speech," he wrote. "Copies, however, have found their way as far west as Missouri. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch yesterday carried four paragraphs from the speech."

Karsten said he felt the Post Office Department was "going far afield in making this sort of material memory work for postmasters."

"While I have no objections to any postmasters making speeches, it must be remembered that they are civil service employees and subject to the provisions of the Hatch act, which prohibits political activity of any kind."

He observed that the primary purpose for placing postmasters under civil service was to take the Post Office Department out of politics.

Karsten suggested that the mail service would be more efficient "if the postmaster general and the personnel of the Post Office Department would give more attention to their duties and devote less time to trying to propagandize the American public."

RUSSIAN GENERAL RELIEVED

BRANDENBURG, Germany, June 21 (UP)—The Russians announced yesterday they were relieving the East Berlin military commandant who led Red Army tanks against German workers in the June 1953 uprising.

The announcement said Maj. Gen. P. A. Dibrova would be replaced by Maj. Gen. Andrei S. Tschamov.

CONGREGATIONALISTS GIVEN ASSURANCES ON MERGER

OMAHA, Neb., June 21 (AP)—Congregational Christians were assured today that their traditional "freedom of faith and manner of worship" won't be hampered in a proposed merger with another denomination.

An executive committee, headed by the Rev. Dr. Raymond Walker, of Portland, Ore., declared that the relationship of individual congregations to the new United Church of Christ will hinge on their voluntary and free assent.

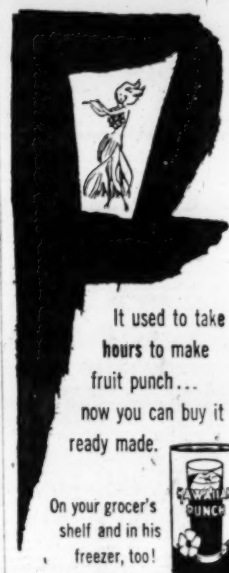

The policy statement, designed to clarify controversial aspects of the projected merger with the Evangelical and Reformed Church, was offered at the biennial meeting of the Congregational Christian general council moved into its second day.

CZECHS SEEK REPARATIONS FROM U.S. FOR PLANE CRASH

VIENNA, June 21 (AP)—Red Czechoslovakia has demanded reparations of more than $750,000 from the United States for the crash of a Czech airliner last January with the loss of 22 lives, Prague radio reported yesterday.

A note to the United States Ambassador alleged again that the airliner's crash was caused by a propaganda balloon loosed by the Radio Free Europe organization in West Germany. This was the second note over the incident.

The Czechs said the American answer to their Feb. 25 note "sought to evade responsibility by claiming Radio Free Europe is a private organization." Radio Free Europe is maintained by privately raised funds and gets no United States Government support.

DATE NOT SET YET FOR START ON MALINE SEWER

Delay Laid to Easement Problem — Project Is Expected to Take About Year.

Final engineering plans for the Maline creek trunk sewer will be finished this week but no date can be set yet for a start on the project, which was scheduled to be under construction by now, officials of the Metropolitan St. Louis Sewer District told the Post-Dispatch today.

They said "abnormal delay" in obtaining public easements through property on the planned route of the sewer is the major reason why the project has been held up.

Residents of the Maline area in the northwest part of St. Louis county approved a $1,700,000 bond issue last Feb. 7 to finance the six-mile sewer, which is planned to eliminate a serious sewage problem. It will be the metropolitan district's first major construction undertaking.

Hoped to Start in June. After the bond issue election, district officials said they hoped that construction contracts could be awarded about May 1, with actual work beginning in June.

Because it is estimated that the project will take a year to finish, officials expected that this summer would be the last hot-weather spell of sewage nuisance for Maline residents. However, if work does not begin until late this summer, the sewer would not be finished until a corresponding period in 1957.

In view of the difficulties involved in obtaining the easements, or rights-of-way, officials acknowledged that the original estimate that work could be started this month was "very optimistic."

William Q. Kehr, executive director of the district, said the project will be built in sections, with work in progress on more than one section at a time in order to finish the sewer as quickly as possible.

Sub-trunk lines will be hooked into each section as it is finished and joined to the rest of the sewer down-creek, he added, saying that in this way, part of the trunk line could be put in use before the entire project was finished.

Bids Delayed. Attorneys for the district said that bids could not be taken on any section of the sewer until all easements for that section have been obtained.

Engineering of the lower part of the project has been done by Pitman's Company of Surveyors and Engineers. The district has modified a 1952 survey by Fulton Engineering Co., for the upstream part.

A temporary sewer line carrying raw sewage from the Carondeau area to a sewage treatment plant in Berkeley was completed last week. It is expected to provide some relief this summer from sewage nuisance, pending completion of the trunk sewer.

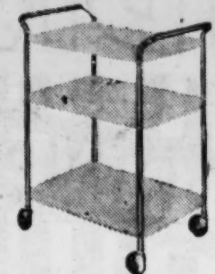

District officials also have promised to reduce sewage nuisance, which caused a public protest last year, by improving operation of treatment plants and adding chemicals to the polluted stream.

WORLD BANK STANDS PAT ON EGYPTIAN DAM

Offer Unchanged, Black Says — Soviet Billion Reported Interest-Free.

CAIRO, June 21 (AP) — World Bank President Eugene Black said today the bank's offer to finance the Aswan dam still stands and has not been changed since last February.

Black made the statement before leaving for Washington. During his two-day visit he talked with Premier Nasser and other Egyptian officials.

Sources close to Nasser said last night that Russia's proffered $1,120,000,000 loan to finance almost entirely the Aswan project would be interest free. The Soviet loan would be repayable in 60 years. The latest Russian offer, brought by Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov, ups an earlier Soviet tender of $400,000,000 at 3 per cent interest over 30 years.

In Washington, United States officials said their Government is not going to boost the stakes every time Russia increases its offer. The sources made clear the last American offer still stands and the next move is Nasser's.

The United States offer presented last February involves a World Bank Loan of $200,000,000 to $250,000,000 at 4½ per cent interest plus British-American governments grants expected to total $200,000,000 over a 10-year period. The remaining $700,000,000 would have to be paid by Egypt, largely in local currency.

Black said further action by the World Bank waits on two things:

1. The grant of $70,000,000 offered by the United States and Britain for the first phase of the project.

2. Agreement between Egypt and the Sudan on sharing the Nile waters.

"There has been no change in the bank's position since last February," Black told reporters. "The project still is being studied because it is extremely complicated."

Black called the huge dam on the upper Nile "a wonderful project" and said "we would like to be associated with it." American officials in Washington conceded that, should Russia take over financing of the dam, it would be called a major diplomatic defeat for the United States.

TWO U.S. AIRMEN LOSE LIVES IN SAIGON GRUDGE SHOOTING

SAIGON, South Viet Nam, June 21 (AP)—American authorities today released the names of two United States Air Force sergeants killed in a shooting incident here June 8. They were S-Sgt. Edward C. Clarke of Los Angeles, Calif., and Sgt. Richard B. Fitzgibbon of North Weymouth, Mass.

The two were crewmen on the same plane. Officials said Fitzgibbon had repented Clarke for his performance on the plane and apparently Clarke resented it. Clarke appeared in the doorway of a bar where Fitzgibbon was sitting, pulled out a pistol and shot Fitzgibbon to death, then fired into the crowd, injuring an onlooker, Sgt. John Sakmar of Johnstown, Pa.

Clarke then ran with Viet Nam police firing at him. He ducked into a building, ran out on a second story balcony and jumped or fell off. He was dead when police reached him. An autopsy revealed no bullet wounds. Investigators found a scribbled note in Clarke's clothing leaving his possessions to a civilian friend.

U.S. LONG-TERM LEASE PLAN PROTESTED BY OKINAWANS

NAHA, Okinawa, June 21 (AP) — Okinawan newspapers say 150,000 of the island's 800,000 inhabitants attended 55 meetings last night to protest against United States plans to pay lump sums for indefinite, long-term leases on the big American bases here.

Speakers at the meetings made four demands: Abandonment of the long lease plan, increased annual rentals on the land, adequate compensation for damage by the Americans and no new land requisitioning.

They also urged Okinawa's quick reversion to Japan, which held the island until the American invasion in World War II, and popular election of a chief executive. The island now is governed by a United States military administration.

REDS BOYCOTT UNVEILING OF PLAQUE FOR KOREA DEAD

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., June 21 (UP)—Representatives of Communist nations today boycotted the unveiling of a plaque in the United Nations in memory of men who died for the United Nations cause in Korea.

United States Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge spoke at the unveiling in the public lobby of the General Assembly building. He said the sacrifices made by 16 member nations in Korea were worthwhile because the "very existence" of the U.N. was at stake.

Only the 16 nations who put troops in Korea to fight the Reds took part in the ceremony. They purchased the plaque and had it erected. No General Assembly action was necessary under the rules of United Nations headquarters operation.

MORE DANIEL BOONE GRADE SEPARATIONS

Engineering Firm Given Contract to Design Six of Them.

By the Post-Dispatch Jefferson City Correspondent. JEFFERSON CITY, June 21—Plans for 10 more grade separation structures on the Daniel Boone Expressway in St. Louis city and county were announced yesterday by the State Highway Commission. Cost estimates of the structures, to eliminate grade crossings at key points, have not been completed, it was said.

The commission awarded a contract to the private engineering firm of Sverdrup & Parcel, Inc., of St. Louis, to design plans for six of the bridge structures to be erected in a 2.3 mile stretch of the expressway between Hanley road and the express highway in Forest Park. Cost of the design contract will be about $76,000 it was said.

These separations, all going over the expressway, will be at Clayton avenue, Oakland avenue, Boland place, Highland terrace, Bellevue avenue, together with a ramp connection to the Red Feather Express Highway at Oakland.

Highway Department engineers now are preparing plans for bridge structures to carry the expressway over Laclede Station road and Claytonia terrace.

Engineers will be employed later to complete plans for carrying Big Bend boulevard over the expressway, and the expressway over McCausland avenue. The commission is waiting for approval of the Big Bend and McCausland separation projects by the United States Bureau of Public Roads before a contract is awarded.

The commission last week awarded a contract to the Fruin-Colton Contracting Co. of St. Louis, for construction of a 1.1-mile stretch of the Daniel Boone route between Brentwood boulevard and Hanley road, including grade separations to carry the expressway over Brentwood boulevard and under Hanley road. Contract price was $2,467,092.

WOMAN'S $15,000 QUIZ SHOW PRIZE RULED TAX FREE

CHEYENNE, Wyo., June 21 (AP)—A United States district court jury ruled today that $15,000 won by an Evanston (Wyo.) woman on a radio giveaway program Jan. 27, 1951, was not subject to income taxes. The decision upheld Mrs. Lucille Zemp's claim that she was entitled to a tax refund of $4326. She contended the winnings were an "outright" gift and not taxable. Judge Ewing T. eKrr told the jury that Mrs. Zemp either was entitled to all the $4326 she sought "or none at all." eKrr said that since 1951

Congress has amended the internal revenue law to provide specifically that prizes won on television and radio giveaway programs are subject to income taxes. Mrs. Zemp's lawyer said she "rendered no services at any time for Columbia Broadcasting System or the program's sponsors. We maintain it was an outright gift." Mrs. Zemp testified she received a call from CBS and was advised she had been selected to compete in the quiz contest on the "Sing It Again" program. She correctly identified Major Bowes as being depicted in a skit, then identified the voice of Francis X. Bushman to win the jackpot of $5000, a new car, trip to Bermuda, home freezer, diamond ring, watch, gas stove and other merchandise.

Scholar Tells of Finding Treasure of Historical Letters

Owner Says They Include Documents by Washington, Lincoln, Lee, Grant, Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Paine.

CHICAGO, June 21 (UP)—A Lincoln scholar said today he has hit a million-dollar jackpot of "lost" Revolutionary and Civil war letters and documents. The forgotten historical treasure trove, left to gather dust in a bank vault for years, includes letters written by George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, and Alexander Hamilton. The scholar, Ralph G. Newman, said he acquired the collection "for a very substantial sum of money" from Mrs. Wiley R. Reynolds of Palm Beach, Fla., widow of a former Michigan industrialist and Florida bank owner who died in 1948. Reynolds, in turn, had bought the collection in 1945 from Dr. Ellsworth Eliot Jr., New York physician and surgeon. Eliot had spent 50 years gathering the collection, but his fellow collectors never guessed its value, Newman said. Reynolds became ill and died before he could examine the collection. It stayed in bank vaults until Newman got a chance to see it early this year. "They're all here—a fabulous cast," Newman said. "Over 50 George Washington letters, 30 by John Adams, a large collection by Lincoln, letters by Lee, Grant, Stonewall Jackson, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, John Paul Jones, John Hancock, Alexander Hamilton, Generals Sherman, and Sheridan, Lafayette." Items in the collection of more than 2000 documents include: A letter from Thomas Paine to Washington accusing him of "connivance at my imprisonment" in a French prison. The original message telling how Gen. Ulysses S. Grant should conduct surrender negotiations with Gen. Robert E. Lee at the close of the Civil War. The message is signed by Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton, but "was actually written by Abraham Lincoln who obviously dictated the entire terms," Newman said. Letters written by Henry Wirz, commandant of the notorious Andersonville (Ga.)

Wilson specifies the conference is for discussion and "not reaching decisions on defense problems." All the meetings of the ci-

RIGHT OF U.S. AGENCIES TO KEEP SECRETS UPHELD

Congress Can't Force Executive Branch to Disclose Data, Says Justice Dept.

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—The Department of Justice has reaffirmed the Administration's stand that Congress cannot compel heads of governmental agencies to make public what the President wants kept secret.

In a document submitted to a House Government Operations subcommittee and made public yesterday, the department said: "Congress cannot, under the Constitution, compel heads of departments to make public what the President desires to keep secret, in the public interest. The President alone is the judge of that interest, and is accountable only to his country and his conscience."

Chairman John E. Moss (Dem.), California, of the subcommittee, which has been investigating the Government's information policies, accused the Administration of "deliberate blocking of the news" to the public.

Present trends lead to "excessive governmental secrecy," Moss said.

The document, which was not identified or dated, was sent to the subcommittee by Deputy Attorney General William P. Rogers.

A letter also was sent which stated that Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. would be unable to attend a round-table discussion with the subcommittee on the Government's information policies.

Moss said he believed this was the first time the 102-page document had been made public. A second copy requested by the subcommittee carried the handwritten date "May 1949." This led subcommittee members to believe it had been prepared in the Truman Administration.

Moss directed the subcommittee staff to find out the status of the document and to determine if it is the official decision of the Administration on giving Congress information.

The document said Congress is "justly entitled to be properly informed of the activities of the executive branch. Intelligent legislation requires access to information."

But it said that this right must not be confused "with the sometimes asserted right of the houses of Congress to all information and papers in the executive branch."

In direct testimony to the subcommittee, Fred C. Scriber Jr., general counsel of the Treasury Department, said: "In my opinion there is no basis for suggesting the executive should concede controlling rights to Congress as to every document in the possession of the executive."

PINEAU ASKS U.S. TO JOIN IN IDEA TRADE WITH REDS

Cultural Exchanges
Would End Mistrust,
He Says—Accord on Disarmament.

By MARGUERITE HIGGINS
The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch
Special Dispatch

WASHINGTON, June 21.—French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau warned yesterday that France "cannot refuse" to take steps in the direction of greater cultural and commercial exchanges with the Soviet Union and called on the United States to do the same.

This frank discussion at the National Press Club of one of the principal points of difference between France and the United States followed publication of a joint French-American communique which showed an increased unity of views in other fields such as disarmament.

It was not until the National Press Club speech that Pineau brought out his nation's difference with the United States on relations with Russia.

Pineau was careful to preface his remarks with assurances that "we will remain loyal to our Western friendships and alliances." But at the same time he said "we are making an effort to raise what used to be known as the Iron Curtain."

Hits at Mistrust.

"We have criticized the Soviets so often for having maintained the Iron Curtain that we cannot attempt now to draw that curtain ourselves between the two parts of the world," he said.

Urging an end to "systematic mistrust," Pineau asked: "Why should we assume that (with greater number of exchanges) our propaganda does not have in itself sufficient weight to convince those whom it will reach? Would it be possible that we have an inferiority complex on that point?"

He said that the question of whether the Soviet leaders are sincere in wanting to improve relations with the West is beside the point because the mere fact of increased exchanges would bring about developments that "modify intentions."

Pineau called on the American people not to confuse socialism and Communism, saying that even if free ideas penetrated Russia's citizens, they might still want to keep socialist forms of their economy.

"I have noted that the American people are somewhat inclined to draw a parallel between two different notions: economic liberalism and individual liberty," Pineau said. "This explains why in your country you have very often readily confused Communism with democratic socialism. The first stands for dictatorship while the other is devoted to individual liberty. This explains why Communism has fought Socialism in Europe more than any other doctrine."

Would End Immobilism.

An effort at a rapprochement with the East, Pineau added would end "international immobilism of which the only possible result is to maintain in the world mistrust, distress and want."

In his three days of talks in which Pineau confirmed that Russians were interested in imports of French jet transports, the French minister has shown firm commitment on relaxation of strategic trade controls.

Pineau was also unable to gain positive American approval of his plan for channeling more foreign aid through the United Nations to make available funds to countries who were uneasy about committing themselves to bi-lateral agreements.

Adenauer and Dules joined in a formal communique which called on the Soviets to prove their sincerity by ending "the brutal and unnatural division which it has imposed on Germany."

Pineau left by plane this morning for New York. He will leave for Paris in the afternoon.

NEVADA'S SENATOR BIBLE
CHANGES MIND, WILL RUN

CARSON CITY, Nev., June 21 (AP)—Senator Alan Bible of Nevada filed for the Democratic nomination to succeed himself today in a move which represented a complete about-face. Last November he said he intended to retire at the end of his present term.

Bible, who is completing the unexpired term of the late Senator Pat McCarran, said he decided to file "about two weeks ago" when he was told about the response to "draft" movements.

A situation which amazed both Bible and reporters at his press conference was the presence of one of the Senator's opponents in the primary race, Julien Sourwine of Reno, Sourwine, who appeared as a representative of the Mineral County (weekly) Independent of Hawthorne, shot questions at the Senator but declined to answer several aimed at him by other reporters.

Besides Sourwine, Bible will face Attorney General Harvey Dickerson and State Senator B. Mahlon Brown of Las Vegas in the primary.

CONFECTIONER ROBBED BY 2

John Szuka, operator of a confectionery at 1230 Geyer avenue, reported he was robbed of $25 yesterday by two men after one of them struck him over the head with a rubber mallet. After scooping the money from the cash register, the man ran to a parked automobile and drove off, he said. He was treated at City Hospital for scalp lacerations and released.

Venezuelan Air Officials Flying To Investigate Plane Crash

C.A.B. Awaits Their Arrival Before Continuing Grappling in Ocean for Victims' Bodies.

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—A spokesman for the Civil Aeronautics Board said today that continuation of grappling operations for the remains of the 74 persons who died in yesterday's plane crash would depend on "the decision of the Venezuelan government."

The Venezuelan four-engine Super Constellation crashed 32 miles off the New Jersey coast, beyond the territorial waters of the United States.

In Washington, the CAB announced its investigators were moving into the inquiry at the request of the Venezuelan Government. The crash occurred outside the CAB's jurisdiction but the agency had offered to co-operate in an inquiry and had been collecting evidence.

The CAB spokesman in New York said further grappling procedure would await arrival of Venezuelan inspectors flying from Caracas. A spokesman of the airline, Linea Aeropostal Venezolana, said the inspectors were due tonight.

The Coast Guard said the cutter Genetian and an amphibian plane were searching the crash area. Twenty of those aboard the ill-fated plane were from the United States. Of the Venezuelans, 24 were students in this country, ranging in age from 12 to 20, returning home for summer vacations. Others were French, Italian, Spanish.

They ranged from a teen-aged brother and sister team of piano virtuosos, traveling to South America to begin a concert career, to a retired petroleum engineer, returning to the home in Caracas where he had spent much of his life.

The plane left Idlewild airport at 11:18 p.m. Tuesday. Off Norfolk, Va., one of the four engines began spinning wildly out of control. The airliner swung around to return to Idlewild.

It was routine—something that could happen to any plane. L.A.V. had operated for 10 years between New York and Caracas without an accident.

On the way back, shepherded by a Coast Guard plane, the pilot, Capt. Luis Plata, prepared to dump 5000 gallons of explosive gasoline into the ocean, another routine precaution.

The pilot's last words on the radio were: "Roger, we're cleared to drop gas. . . Roger, we have New York in sight." Suddenly it wasn't routine anymore. A burst of flame belled out under the aircraft. Someone in one of the airliner's standing by in the area shouted a warning: "Get your speed about 160—get your speed about 160—you're on fire."

But there was no time. Like a falling star, the plane nosed over and went almost straight down, seemed to pull up once, and then struck the ocean.

The first boat to reach the scene—a Navy transport—messaged back: "Found no survivors . . . expect to find none." All day Coast Guard cutters patrolled the spot, picking up what debris they found. Only a few bodies surfaced.

A boy's military cap, with the autographs of three girls in the lining . . . a partly burned black book of telephone numbers . . . a torn picture of a Venezuelan army officer and his wife, inscribed affectionately to his daughter, one of the victims. A piano instruction book, with a teacher's penciled notation: "Keep your thumbs curved." . . . a charred first aid kit . . . a shoe . . . a packet of letters . . . a spent flare . . . a little girl's dress . . . an overcoat containing a paperbound edition of "The Dead Sea Scrolls."

That was about all.

It was collected and brought ashore for any possible light it could shed on the tragedy for the Venezuelan inspectors.

The CAB transcribed all the frantic radio calls in the last minutes before the doomed plane fell.

This was history's worst plane disaster involving a regularly scheduled airline flight.

ADM. HARRY D. FELT NAMED VICE CHIEF OF OPERATIONS

WASHINGTON, June 21 (UP)—President Eisenhower today nominated Adm. Harry D. Felt to be vice chief of naval operations with the rank of full admiral. Felt will succeed Adm. Donald B. Duncan whose next assignment has not been determined.

Mr. Eisenhower also nominated Vice Adm. Thomas S. Combs and Rear Adm. William B. Davis Jr. to the rank of vice admiral.

Combs will replace Adm. Ruthven Libby as deputy chief of naval operations in charge of plans and policies. Davis will replace Combs as deputy chief of naval operations for air.

U.S. WILL SELL AUSTRALIA 1110 POUNDS OF ATOMIC FUEL

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—The United States announced yesterday an agreement to sell Australia 1100 pounds of Uranium-235 to fuel atomic power plants in Australia.

The announcement came a few hours after the State Department officially confirmed a similar agreement for 85 pounds of U-235, with France.

The department and the Atomic Energy Commission said the agreement with Australia will run for 10 years. It was described as the first agreement providing for sale—as against leasing—of American nuclear fuel under a 44,000-pound allocation announced last February.

New Book Summarizes 70 Types Of Aircraft in Use by Russia

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—A new book published yesterday provides the first unofficial summary of 70 types of aircraft currently in use in the Soviet Union.

The book, "Soviet Air Power" by Richard E. Stockwell, also identifies 55 Russian rocket, jet and piston engine types.

It was published by Pageant Press, Inc., on the eve of Russia's annual air show at Moscow, to be attended next Sunday by Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force chief of staff, and a delegation of other high United States air officers.

Stockwell said the Soviets have "delta-wing and some very new rocket fighters, vertical takeoff aircraft, as well as six and eight jet bombers in various test and developmental stages."

The book includes chapters on Russian guided missile development, aircraft production and design, maps of Russian aircraft production centers, long range bomber bases and missile test centers.

In a foreword, Gen. George C. Kenney, wartime Pacific air commander and postwar commander of the Strategic Air Command, said the book was the result of painstaking, authoritative research, with the author in many cases leaning over backward to be conservative in his conclusions.

"One example is his rates of production of Soviet aircraft," Kenney said.

Stockwell said that in 1955 the 500,000 or more workers in some 400 Russian aircraft plants were turning out 1150 aircraft a month, for a total annual output of 13,800, slightly higher than that of the United States. He added that Russian plan-

BURGLED STEAL $651, THEN TRY TO SET BUILDING ON FIRE

A burglar or burglars who entered a market at 1311 South Boyle avenue last night stole $651 from the upstairs living quarters of the proprietor, Russell Chaney, and then apparently attempted to set fire to the place, Mrs. Chaney reported to police.

Upon returning from a visit with her husband, who is in a hospital, Mrs. Chaney said she found the living quarters ransacked and the money missing from a dresser drawer.

A packet of book matches had been placed on some paper on a kitchen chair and ignited, she said. The matches failed to ignite the paper. How entrance to the building had been gained was not determined.

WAGE RISE ENDS BREWERY WALKOUT AT KANSAS CITY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 21 (UP)—Brewery and beer distribution workers were to return to their jobs today following settlement of a strike which began May 28.

The agreement, retroactive to May 1, included wage increases totaling 25 cents an hour, with 12½ cents effective immediately and the balance effective May 1, 1957.

The strike by some 300 members of the Brewery and Soft Drink Workers, AFL-CIO, had halted operation of two breweries and 13 distributing companies.

NOTHER MEETING TONIGHT ON COUNTY'S TRAFFIC PLAN

A dinner meeting to discuss county traffic problems will be held at 6 p.m. today at Hotel Chase under St. Louis Chamber of Commerce auspices. It will be the fifth in a series of meetings in the last two weeks to help in drafting a master traffic plan.

Major provisions of the plan have already been drafted, and the program in its entirety will be presented in two or three weeks. Sterling P. Davidson Jr., chairman of the regional subcommittee on county problems, said. The traffic plan will cover the portion of the county between the city limits and Lindbergh boulevard, which includes more than 96 municipalities.

Host at tonight's meeting will be Aloys P. Kaufmann, president of the Chamber. Davidson said discussion tonight will concern parts of the plan for which county co-operation is needed.

BONN OFFICERS URGE TWO YEAR DRAFT PERIOD

BONN, June 21—A special panel of military men headed by Field Marshal Erich von Manstein recommended to the Bundestag's Defense Committee yesterday that West German conscript army men for a period of two years. The Von Manstein group informed the Defense Committee that 18 months would be "an absolute minimum."

A conscription measure that specifies no service period is to be given its final reading in the Bundestag July 6. The government recently accepted this omission when Parliamentary opposition arose even to 18 months.

First the Bundestag, or upper house, rejected 18 months in favor of a one-year conscription bill. Then the Socialists in both chambers began to push their campaign for a small professional army, no conscription and eventual withdrawal from the North Atlantic Alliance, all in the interest of reunification.

CANADA PLANNING BUILD-UP OF JET INTERCEPTOR FORCE

OTTAWA, June 21 (AP)—Defense Minister Ralph Campney says Canada will build up its jet interceptor force as a primary step to meet the "continuing grave" threat of aerial attack on North America.

Campney was opening a debate in Parliament on the 1956-57 defense budget of $1,750,000,000.

He said plans call for increasing from 9 to 12 the number ber of CF-100 jet interceptor squadrons in the Royal Canadian Air Force's home air defense command. Canada also has 12 Sabre jet squadrons in Europe. To provide a reserve of jet fighter crews, he said, six of 10 auxiliary fighter squadrons will be equipped with Sabres. Figures on the number of planes were not announced. Canadian fighter and interceptor squadrons average about 25 planes each.

CHARLES LEE URGES STUDY OF STATE'S FISCAL NEEDS

Charles A. Lee, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, said today the Missouri state budget should be based on a careful study of the fiscal needs of all state institutions, departments and agencies.

Lee, professor of education at Washington University and a former state superintendent of schools, said the Governor should submit to the Legislature a definite and comprehensive plan for expenditure of funds during the coming biennial period, with recommendations for laws to provide the necessary revenues to meet expenditures.

Lee, who lives in Webster Groves, outlined his views in a letter to the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey, a privately-supported agency, which has called for improvement of state budget procedures.

2000 ARE REPORTED KILLED BY QUAKE IN AFGHANISTAN

KABUL, Afghanistan, June 21 (UPI)—Minor shocks continued today in a series of earthquakes that is reported to have killed 2000 persons in northern Afghanistan.

Many roads remained blocked by landslides, isolating villages and preventing officials from learning the full extent of the damage.

The tremors started two weeks ago with a number of severe shocks. Hundreds of homes are reported to have been destroyed.

SENATE VOTES TIGHT REIN ON U.S. FUNDS

Measure to Curb Appropriations for More Than Year Faces House Fight.

The New York Times News Service. (Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, June 21 — The Senate passed a bill yesterday by a voice vote to give Congress a firmer grip on the government's purse strings.

The measure, which now goes to the House, incorporates major budget and accounting recommendations of the Hoover Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government. It was sponsored by Senator John F. Kennedy (Dem.), Massachusetts, and 30 other senators of both parties.

The bill's key provision is intended to curb the practice of appropriating money for expenditure over a period of years without subsequent review by Congress.

Under the present system, most of the funds appropriated by Congress are for long-term military programs covering five or more years. Once the appropriations are voted, Congress loses control to a large extent of their expenditure.

The bill would require the President, to the maximum extent deemed advisable, to limit his requests for appropriations to the amounts that he estimates will actually be needed to meet the government's obligations in the ensuing fiscal year.

Congress would then vote the appropriations on a year-to-year basis. Any unspent appropriations would lapse at the end of each fiscal year.

Advocates of the proposed reform conceded that the government would still need authority to make long-term commitments to pay for items that cannot be manufactured in a single year. Where necessary "contract authorizations" would be voted by Congress. Money to liquidate the contracts would then be appropriated on a year-to-year basis.

The contract authorization procedure was used to a large extent in World War II, but was discarded several years ago at the insistence of House fiscal leaders.

The bill would also carry out various recommendations of the commission to simplify the government's budgeting and accounting procedures.

Committee hearings already are under way in the House. Prospects of favorable House action were cast into doubt by the renewed opposition to the proposed contract authority procedures by Representatives Clarence Cannon (Dem.), Missouri, and John Taber (Rep.), New York. Cannon is the chairman and Taber the ranking Republican member of the House Appropriations Committee.

ROLLINGS RETURNS HOME, PRAISES ISRAELI SPIRIT

John I. Rollings, president of the AFL-CIO Missouri State Labor Council, said today on return from a visit to Israel as a member of a delegation of labor representatives that he was impressed by the spirit of the Israeli people in development of a modern nation.

"The spirit of the people as well as the leaders," Rollings said, "knows no bounds in their determination to obtain the objectives of a homeland. Israel is here to stay and to do the job."

Rollings, only St. Louisian in a group of six invited to Israel by the labor movement there and the labor committee of the American Christian Palestine Committee, said the population of Israel had increased from 500,000 in 1948 to 1,780,000. Members of the delegation conferred with Premier Ben-Gurion and former Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett. They also were received by President Yitzhak Ben-Zvi and attended a session of Parliament during a debate on the defense budget. En route home they stopped in Rome, London and Paris.

VOLUNTEERS COLLECT $4160 FOR SCLEROSIS FUND DRIVE

House-to-house solicitation last night in St. Louis city and county and Granite City by approximately 1000 volunteers raised $4160 for the fund campaign being conducted by the local chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, Frank E. Brennan, campaign chairman, reported today.

Total contributions so far are $12,039. The drive seeks $30,000. Funds are to be used for research into causes and cures for the disease and for treatment of local patients.

Solicitors were stationed at shopping centers in the city and county today, selling campaign tags. Sales will continue through Saturday.

ALLEGED SCRAP DEALER MONOPOLY FACES INQUIRY

Alleged monopolistic practices in the old paper, rags and junk metal businesses in the St. Louis area will be considered by the federal grand jury here when it reconvenes Tuesday, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

An investigation of reports of price fixing among some of the larger scrap dealers is being conducted by Chicago representatives of the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice.

Witnesses have testified that because of price fixing some of the larger dealers have driven smaller dealers out of business.

LEFTY STILL NOT RIGHT FOR BIRDS AT EBBETS FIELD

PASS SPOILS MIZELL'S TRY; LABINE AGAIN STOPS RALLY

By Bob Broeg of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

BROOKLYN, June 21—If there's anything more insidious in baseball than the garden-variety base on balls, it's a walk that opens an inning. And if there's one thing worse than an inning-opening walk, it's a plain-vanilla pass to an opposing pitcher.

Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, a strong-armed fast-firing big boy who as a hurler barely has graduated to long pants, might have learned one of the more painful lessons of pitching life yesterday at Ebbets Field, where Manager Fred Hutchinson had enough confidence in him to defy the world champion Brooklyn Dodgers' savage reputation against southpaws.

Hutchinson pitched with Detroit several years back when Hal Newhouse, a dandy left-hander, worked in a manner which didn't make any difference whether a hitter walked up to the plate left-handed, right-handed or without a bat.

"If," said Hutch, "pitcher has got as much stuff as a Newhouse or a Mizell—no frankly, I'm not putting Vinegar in Hal's class yet—a manager isn't going to let 'em lose a pitching turn."

So Mizell went forth yesterday afternoon in cool weather made to order for him, pitching against a right-handed-hitting lineup favored by a wind blowing to left field. He was only the third southpaw to start against the Dodgers this season, the first in Flatbush, where none has finished since Luis Arroyo, then with the Cardinals, lost on a ninth-inning homer by Jackie Robinson more than a year ago.

Birds Lose Chance to Gain.

The way Vinegar fogged through his fast ball, it's quite possible he had been on his feet at the finish, except for the grave he dug for himself with a third-inning leadoff pass to Roger Craig, rangy Brooklyn right-hander whose belligerent stance or average wouldn't scare Little Red Riding Hood or her grandmother. Craig hasn't had a loud foul in 25 times at bat this season.

The bleeding hearts of the pressbox launched into considerable commiseration in Mizell's behalf thereafter when the Dodgers went on that inning to score three runs, their victory margin in a 4-2 contest that dropped the Cardinals in the five-team National League first division.

It's true that Junior Gilliam scratched a single immediately after the walk to Craig and that Pee Wee Reese's sharp grounder, a possible double-play ball, had hopped over Stan Musial's head for a double. But it's also painfully true that except for the pass to Craig, who must have learned how not to hit out of a mail-order catalogue, Musial would have been in the first baseman's normal position instead of having to hold the long drink of water on first base, and would have handled the hit that squibbed off Gilliam's bat.

On Reese's fortunate two-base blow which scored Craig, the Cardinals had a shot at Pee Wee as he hurried into second, but Bobby Morgan, unable to hear Al Dark's directions, cut off the throw. That was curious because he was out on the grass toward right field. And they used to teach second basemen down on the south side where the car bends that the only time to cut off a throw was to catch a secondary runner. With no one trailing Reese, maybe Morgan meant to tag out Umpire Tom Gorman, an ample target.

At this point, with a run across, men on second and third, none out, Mizell rared back and overpowered the power men of the Brooklyn lineup. He fired a third strike past Duke Snider, intentionally passed Randy Jackson to loan the bases, then swished strike three over Gil Hodges' bat. Unfortunately, Carl Furillo, swinging where the lanky left-hander was throwing, bounced a two-run single over second base.

That Man Labine Again.

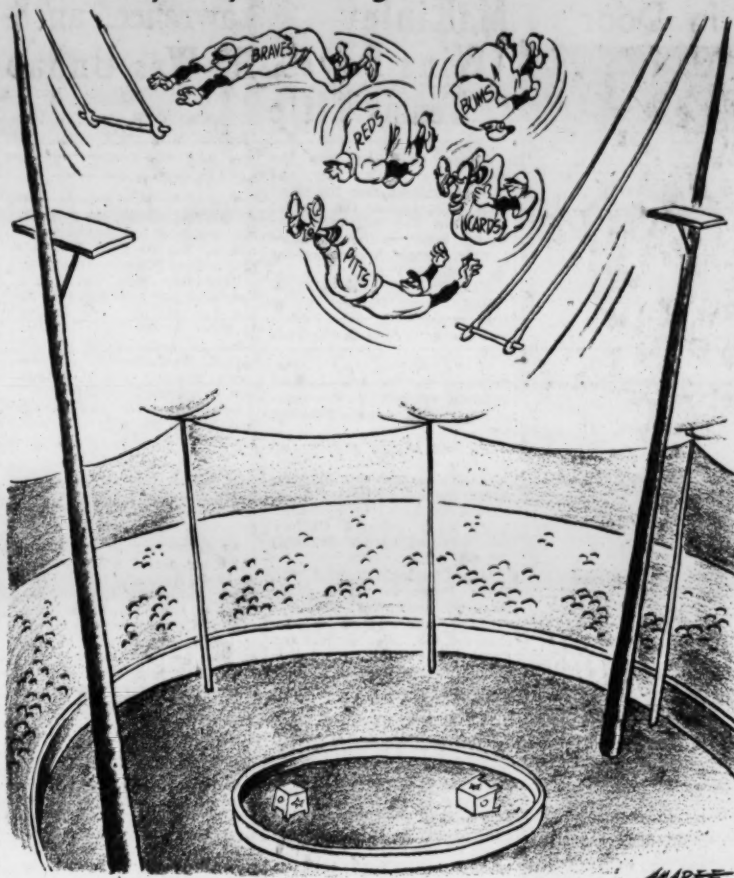

Mizell soon had to leave for a pinch-hitter, a sadder but perhaps wiser young man, and as the Cardinals again received solid second-line hurling—the last Dodger run was a result of an error behind Ellis Kinder—the Redbirds struggled uphill against Craig. They couldn't quite make it because along came Clem Labine.

Labine, who now has hurled 28½ consecutive scoreless innings in 18 games against the Redbirds since May a year ago, took over in the ninth of a 4-1 contest after successive walks to Morgan and pinch-hitter Don Blasingame with none out. The right-handed reliever hooked a called third strike past Hal Smith, the sharp-hitting kid catcher, and got pinch-batter Walker Cooper on an infield smash to Charles Neal, nimble new Brooklyn second baseman.

The Cardinals had learned about Neal back in the second inning when he ranged quickly to his left to take a hit away from Wally Moon, first up in a frame in which a walk and single followed. Neal, hitting .256, was in the lineup because Manager Walter Alston had decided on a change after the Dodgers lost three straight games while the Redbirds were winning three in a row.

The Cards were to learn more about Neal in the ninth, for after Cooper's grounder, which became only a force-out because

Baseball Normal: Mickey Mantle Blasting, N.L. Shaken Up Again

NEW YORK, June 21 (INS)—Everything is normal in baseball.

The National League standings have undergone their daily shakeup, and in the American League, Mickey Mantle still is rocketing guided missiles into the stratosphere.

Master Mickey hit two towering wallop—Nos. 26 and 27—into Detroit's distant centerfield stands in successive innings, the seventh and eighth, last night during the New York Yankees' 4-1-1 defeat of the Tigers.

The "new" Babe Ruth there by went 18 games and 18 days ahead of the Ruth schedule in the Babe's record year, Mantle's attack on the record is the best ever made at this stage.

The two players who came closest to the mark—other than Ruth himself—were Jimmy Foxx in 1932 and Hank Greenberg in 1938. Both finished with 58 homers, and in their particular mighty seasons, Foxx had 29 homers at the end of June and Greenberg had 24. There's the usual note of caution for these comparisons: It's not unusual for players "to be ahead of Ruth's pace" at this stage, because his record year featured a magnificent finishing kick—17 homers in September.

Meanwhile, every National League team except last-place Philadelphia changed positions in yesterday's merry-go-round. The Phils stayed put, but played an important part, for they knocked the Cincinnati Redlegs out of first place, and Milwaukee moved into it.

The advance of the Braves constitutes one of the season's finest bits of irony. While the Braves have been moving up, the Pittsburgh Pirates have been slumping and slipping down, and Fred Haney, the manager fired from the Pirates last season, finds himself aboard a front-runner. Haney has been there only four days, or since the Braves got hot. He succeeded Charley Grimm as Milwaukee manager last Sunday.

The Braves, climbing a five-game winning ride under new manager Haney, defeated the Pirates last night, 7 to 3, for the Braves' fifth straight defeat. The Phillies edged Cincinnati, 3 to 2, on Stan Lopata's homer, and the Dodgers won an afternoon contest from St. Louis, 4 to 2.

Cleveland broke a third-place tie with Boston with a 5-4 decision over the Red Sox in 10 innings. Chicago whipped Baltimore, 12 to 8, and Washington nipped Kansas City, 5 to 4, to retain seventh place.

Gene Conley went the route for the Braves for the first time all season, although he allowed 10 hits. Milwaukee fell on Vern Law for five runs in the fifth inning.

A Detroit crowd of 47,756 saw Mantle blast his homers—both traveling more than 400 feet—into the upper deck of the center field stands. It was the first time anyone had hit that target twice in one game at Briggs Stadium.

So many fans poured out of the stands and mobbed Mickey after the second homer and again at the end of the game that the management finally turned on the automatic sprinkler system to clear the field.

Wehmeier Vs. Newcombe in Series Final

BROOKLYN, June 21—Herm (2-6) Wehmeier of the Cardinals and Don (9-5) Newcombe of the Dodgers probably will be the starting pitchers tonight in the final game of the series.

Redbird hurlers have allowed only 10 runs in the last five contests, but the club has won only three of the games.

Wally Moon, returning to the outfield after a three-game absence, went hitless in four trips yesterday. . . . Bobby Morgan, again playing second base as Manager Fred Hutchinson rested slumping Don Blasingame, contributed a strong accurate relay that retired Gil Hodges trying to score from first in the second inning on a double by Carl Furillo.

The hardest hit ball was Stan Musial's terrific line drive right to Hodges for a double play in the third. . . . Because Ken Boyer has been playing with a pulled leg muscle, Chuck Harmon ran for the third baseman after his second single in the eighth. . . . Alvin Dark has had 12 hits in 26 trips since joining the Cards.

Larry Jackson, who pitched his best ball against the Dodgers as a rookie last year, has held the champs scoreless in eight-plus relief innings this season. . . . Murry Dickson, 39 years old, ran for Walker Cooper, 41, in the ninth.

Gary Blaylock, sore-armed Rochester right-hander, joined the Cards for treatment by Trainer Bob Bauman. He praised Bob Blaylock, no relation, young ace of the International League club's staff. B.B.

Satterfield Explodes Again, May Face Jackson

Summerlin Pounded in TV Scrap

CHICAGO, June 21 (AP)—A boxing "dud" who keeps exploding, Chicago's Bob Satterfield, today drew a bead on a heavyweight match with equally unpredictable Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson.

Satterfield, conceded little chance, last night pounded an end to young Johnny Summerlin's 12-bout winning streak with a unanimous 10-round decision in a nationally televised scrap at Chicago Stadium.

The 32-year-old Satterfield, outweighed by 11 pounds, nearly knocked Summerlin out of the ring in the third round with ponderous rights and then went on to win by a substantial margin.

Truman Gibson, secretary of the International Boxing Club, said he favored a Satterfield-Jackson meeting this fall because of their "interesting styles."

That wouldn't cut any ice in the heavyweight title elimination picture, because Floyd Patterson already has brushed aside Jackson and Satterfield doesn't seem to be going any place particularly.

31 Kayoes in 41 Wins.

However, the nation's TV audience last night saw Satterfield unlimber the punching TNT which has given him 31 kayoes in his present 41-21-4 record.

Satterfield's three-round explosion, a series of five terrific rights to the head, sent the 24-year-old Summerlin sprawling through the ropes onto the ring apron. The bell sounded at the count of seven and it was doubtful whether the Detroit battler could have remained in business if the rest period gong hadn't sounded.

Satterfield hurt his left hand in his third-round attack, but it didn't seem to hurt his rugged finish although Summerlin gave him a real going over in a desperate tenth round.

One Vote 92-91.

Two of the three officials had Satterfield winning easily. But one judge, John Bray, thought Chicago Bob was only 92-91. Referee Bernie Weissman called it for Satterfield, 98-89, and Judge Ed Hinz, 96-89. The AP vote had Satterfield in front, 95-92.

Satterfield said he would go back into training again tomorrow and would just as soon shoot for Archie Moore's lightweight crown which may be tossed up for grabs if Moore nails the heavyweight title.

Bob's Rope Trick

Detroit's JOHNNY SUMMERLIN wore a surprised expression on his face after he was knocked through the ropes by Chicago's BOB SATTERFIELD in the third round of their heavyweight fight at Chicago. Satterfield won a unanimous decision in 10 rounds.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

W. G. McGoogan

Satterfield Saves Self From Oblivion.

WELL, Bob Satterfield gave Johnny Summerlin of Detroit a good trimming in 10 rounds at Chicago and thereby saved himself from the discard in the fight game, at least for the moment.

This strange boxer who has been knocked out 12 times in his career, also won 31 bouts by knockouts and nine by decision. He has had chance after chance at the top rung but always failed to grab the brass ring when it went by.

The chief reason for his failures seems to be a lack of proper determination and willingness to pay the price of success in boxing which means hard work in the form of rigorous training.

Even against Summerlin he seemed to tire in the late rounds and a man whom he had knocked out of the ring in the third round and given a bad beating in the fourth was able to come back strongly enough to take the final round and have Satterfield in trouble near the finish.

Bob was born in St. Louis but has done most of his boxing out of Chicago. He has fought many of the best in his long career and was never sought after as an opponent because of the respect in which he was held because of the explosive power in his right hand.

Fans have liked to see him perform because it usually meant that either he knocked out his opponent or was himself knocked out.

Summerlin showed himself against Satterfield to be a big, strong fellow, not too quick but able to take a punch and come back. He is still young and will, no doubt, overcome his failure to go ahead.

But what about Satterfield? A few more fights against younger, more rugged foes probably at the prevailing TV television wage which is a pretty good payday but not sufficient to provide security.

If Bob continues to go ahead he'll likely finish his career not in the best physical condition because he's taken a lot in his time, not counting the knockouts which he suffered because he's never seemed to be greatly affected by them nor is he marked much from his numerous bouts.

At 33 years of age, though there is danger in his continuing in the ring because he'll never be considered championship material, even though he might on any given night beat a champion. The chief contenders for the throne Rocky Marciano vacated won't take a chance with Satterfield and he'll get nothing but tough youngsters to fight.

He's had many of them. They fed him to Rex Layne when it seemed the Salt Lake City heavyweight was on his way up. Satterfield floored Rex in the first round at Madison Square Garden but Layne got up, fought back and finally stopped Bob in a really rough bout.

Then he had a chance at Ezzard Charles. He rocked Charles too, with one punch although Charles denied later that he had felt it. Ringsiders, however, saw Ezzard wobble but he recovered and with one smash knocked out Satterfield.

Summerlin can be written off as a likely challenger for the heavyweight title, at the present, at least. So one by one they're being eliminated and it appears that the winner of the match between Archie Moore and Floyd Patterson, when it is held, will step into the spot left vacant by Marciano's retirement.

And then perhaps Rocky will listen to the siren song of the greenbacks and try a comeback in a match with the victor.

St. Engelbert Carries Local Soccer Hopes

By Dent McSkimming

It rests with the forceful St. Engelbert team to make this one of St. Louis's most successful soccer seasons. If the Saints can defeat Heidelberg (eastern champion) in the National Junior championship match at Public Schools Stadium Sunday evening, this city will come out with two of the three United States soccer titles.

Kutis last Sunday defeated the Philadelphia Ukrainians for the Amateur crown. The third high honor, the national Open, went to Harnmarville of the western Pennsylvania district.

Such an eventuality (two national titles in one season) is a distinction which has thus far escaped St. Louis. There is some precedent, though, for victory in the Junior tournament. Back in 1945, the Schumachers won the championship but were denied the honor because two of their players were found to be ineligible. Although they were within the Junior age limit the two were so far advanced that they had played one game with a Senior team. In the following season, Schumachers won the title without dispute.

Secos Won in 1951.

The next Junior flag came to St. Louis in 1951 when the Secos ran up a 5-1 score against the heavily favored Midway Boys Club of Philadelphia.

Heidelberg, a Pittsburgh suburb, will be seeking its second Junior title. The club won the championship in 1947.

The fact that Heidelberg shut out Philadelphia's Lighthouse Boys Club to win the Eastern division title is considered significant here. The Philadelphia team had swept through the East with a record of 25 victories, 2 ties and only one loss. It had defeated Baltimore's Junior champions, 5-0, and walloped Juventus of Providence, R.I., 5-2.

St. Engelbert's chances of success are considered good, in spite of the long interval of inactivity since the Western final. In that game, played at Chicago, April 29, Center Forward George Engler's goal in overtime, his second of the game, gave St. Engelbert a 3-2 victory.

Reinforcement From Seminary.

Engler will get some extra help in the final Sunday when Bob Marquitz joins the squad. Bob, who played at center forward and starred for the Prep Seminary team, has been on the roster of St. Engelbert's for a sufficient period to make him eligible for the final.

It is reported from the East that an outstanding player on the Heidelberg team is the center halfback, Louis (Pug) Mitchell. He was credited with a major share of glory for his team's shutout victory at Philadelphia. Engler, however, has been up against some very close covering by St. Louis halfbacks and has almost invariably found a way to elude them.

Sunday's National final will start at 8:30 o'clock. There will be a 7 o'clock preliminary between St. Mary's High and Prep Seminary.

These Predictions Are Based on Normal Water and Weather Conditions.

All lakes and rivers are clear or clearing. Limit catches of black bass are being made on the Big Piney, Gasconade and the upper portions of the Meramec. The extreme lower Black and Meramec rivers are slightly off color and may not be ready for artificials by the weekend. Jacks Fork is okay for canoes but the large john boats are dragging on the shoals. Jack salmon are being taken on the upper Current. Live minnows trolled behind a slow-moving outboard are best.

Lantern fishing has started on Bull Shoals, Clearwater and Kentucky lakes. Upper Taneycomo is still furnishing excellent drum fishing. A 40-pound flathead catfish was taken from Taneycomo this week and several blue cats weighing up to 40 pounds were reported from Kentucky Lake. White bass fishing is at peak production on the Lake of the Ozarks and all its major arms. Record catches of these stripers are reported from most of the boat docks.

Weekend prediction: High temperatures have moved the bass to deep water and deep-running lures are best at present. Bass, no longer spawning in most of the lakes and streams, are mostly inactive. Swift, bright shoal waters on most of the rivers are best for smallmouths. Live minnows fished in the deep, still holes will fill stringers much more easily than artificials. Crawfish also are top baits.

Meaux Rides 3 More Winners

He Has 47; Colclasure Trails by 5

Clarence Meaux, the Abbeville (La.) jockey rode three more thoroughbreds to victory—in the first, fifth and eighth races—last night at Fairmount Park and now has 47 winners. He has five more than his nearest competitor, Jake Colclasure of Louisville (Ill.), who is sitting out a 10-day suspension for careless riding during a race last week.

Trailing leader Meaux and Colclasure are John Delahoussaye with 19 firsts; Mitchell Huser with 18 and Harrel Bolin and W. T. Stevens who are tied with 13.

Meaux appeared to be in his best form when Miralark won the first race. His other two winners were Subjective in the fifth and W. S. Harding's filly Virzua in the finale.

Meaux's horse in the featured six-furlong sixth, the H. P. Triplett Stable's Herb S., started in third place and remained there throughout the three-quarter mile sprint. Speed Wrinkle, whose rider was Terry Murphy, won by three lengths and refunded $26.20, $13.40, $5.80 Bright Imp, owned by H. W. Ostle of Collinsville, trailed the 5-year-old gelding by four lengths at the finish.

It was the first victory for the meet for Murphy, a product of the Southern Illinois fair circuit. It also was Speed Wrinkle's first visit to the winner's circle this year.

Miralark and Niembro Cue, winner of the second race with a $13.40 win prize, formed the daily double which was good for $62.20.

Nosey Sue and Pine Forest trailed Miralark to the wire in the order named in the first race but the track's stewards reversed the positions of the second and third place horses. The officials ruled that Nosey Sue, ridden by C. P. Jones, had interfered with Pine Forest during the stretch run.

A turnout of 4686 wagered $186,797 Wednesday night.

Old Gashouser Martin Approves Of Today's Antiseptic Baseball

NEW YORK, June 21 (UP)—A lot of the old slap-happy "Gashouser" attitude has gone out of baseball, but Pepper Martin, the ring-leader of that dirty-necked old gang of Cardinals, thinks the game itself is better for it.

Martin, the "wild horse of the Osage," thinks his old pals Diz and Paul Dean "might want to burn me at the stake for saying so, but baseball has come a long way since those days with the Cardinals."

The wrinkly, red-faced guy, now a coach of the Chicago Cubs, said conditions had changed in virtually every phase of baseball.

"It isn't just the game itself," he said. "The players are bigger and stronger. Maybe they don't hustle as much as we used to because they get those big fat bonuses."

"We all live better. We ride in trains with fancy compartments and the trains and hotels have nearly perfect air conditioning. The uniforms are better, the spiked shoes fit your feet and the leather wears longer. The gloves are bigger and more well constructed."

"And the ball—mister, it is a dag-gummed rocket."

Disgusted, Beyond Measure.

Martin spoke of one phase of 1956 baseball that doesn't suit him a bit.

"They hit the ball a mile, but they measure the home runs in inches," he growled. "That's right, inches. Now Mickey Mantle is a fellow Oklahoman of mine and we're right proud of him and the way he blasts a ball. But why do they have to figure out a tape measure and figure out those home runs of his down to the last inch. That's silly."

Martin recalled that the Cardinals of that famed 1934 pennant-winning season, definitely earned their nickname of "Gashouses."

"We had one uniform per player and when you had been on a three-week road trip, we looked like we were from the other side of the railroad tracks as far as attire was concerned," he said. "And it seemed nobody on the club had money enough to buy a haircut."

The Cards came into the Polo Grounds for a series with the Giants and Frank Graham, now columnist for the New York Journal American, remarked that they looked like they were a gang of dead-end kids from down by the gashouse. The name stuck and it typified the flaming spirit of the Cardinals of that era.

The Breed Lives On.

But Martin, the old peppy-top whose very name became synonymous with hustle, said, "There are guys around now who try just as hard to beat you as the old Cardinals ever did."

"Every team has got 'em," he said. "On the Cubs guys like Don Hoak, Eddie Miksis, Pete Whisenant, Russ Meyer, they never quit trying."

He pointed out Red Schoendienst, the new Giant second baseman, "working out as hard as anybody even though he's got a sore arm."

"And Willie Mays," he said. "He plays as if he got a boot out of it. That was the way with me. I hated to see a game over with."

How was it, being back in the majors after a long career of managing in the minors? "I feel," concluded Pepper, "like one possessed suddenly of great wealth."

In Soviet Shift From East Reich

Reminiscent of airmen of World War II vintage, leather-jacketed Soviet crews stand at attention in front of their propeller-driven Stormovik fighter-bombers in ceremony marking the departure of Russia's 200th Air Division from Brandenburg, East Germany, yesterday. Ground forces from Russian Army bases at Magdeburg and Weimar are scheduled to leave today in the much-advertised withdrawal of 33,500 Soviet servicemen from German soil. Banners at Brandenburg ceremony repeated theme of Communist speakers, challenging Western powers to follow the Soviet Union's example and disarm.

PRONE AND PATIENT

A dazed Robert J. McKay lies trapped in his overturned car after colliding with tree stump near his home in Falls Church, Va., early today. The 20-year-old youth said he yelled for assistance for a few minutes until he realized that he wasn't hurt, then waited for rescue squad to arrive. He emerged with only scratches after being pinned in wreckage for 20 minutes. Police said he apparently dozed off while driving.

ROYALTY AT RESORT

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, vacationing in Capri, pause with host Leone Guinness (left) to examine the wares of a ceramics shop in the famed Italian resort island. The couple recently arrived at Capri aboard Guinness's yacht, the Calisto.

ZOO TWO

Getting acquainted at the Children's Zoo in Vancouver, B.C., are 10-day-old fawn and a 7-month-old black bear cub, already a firm favorite with Zoo visitors. The deer was taken to the Zoo after its mother was shot in a Vancouver suburb. Playful twosome romp together and are the object of much attention from the Zoo's young visitors.

BOMBARDING BLAZE

British paratroopers in Cyprus firing mortar yesterday in efforts to break open clearance areas with mortar barrage while fighting blaze which has claimed the lives of at least 20 soldiers. The fire was believed to have been set by Greek Cypriot guerrilla leaders as British troops surrounded them in wooded, mountainous country near Nicosia Monday. Soldiers were closing in on Eoka leader Col. George Grivas in operation to flush out the guerrilla chief.

Facts and Fancies
The Mailman Brings

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, June 21 (AP)—A columnist might never know if he didn't read his mail.

That in some European countries a bride by law must pass a cooking test before she can get married. (And why not here?)

HAL BOYLE

That if you forgot to give dad a gift on Father's day, you can still surprise him with a complete skin-diving set for a paltry $4000. It includes a waterproof camera, rubber suit, floating knife and other necessities of undersea travel. (If you want an umbrella, that comes extra.)

That there is now available a hearing aid weighing less than an ounce which men can wear as tie clasp or lapel pin and women as a brooch or necklace pendant.

THAT A TIMBER EXPERT ESTIMATES porcupines are causing more damage than fires to the forests of southern Oregon. That California mill workers recently found in the heart of a redwood tree a hoard of acorns deposited there by a squirrel sometime before Christopher Columbus discovered America. (That's the trouble with squirrels—they can pile it up, but they don't know how to take it with them.)

That some of the old-time pirates made Boston's Brink's case bandits look almost like petty thieves. After one expedition against Spanish ships, Francis Drake presented Queen Elizabeth I of England with looted treasure valued at more than $5,000,000.

That in 1915 Samuel Goldwyn started the movie world by paying operatic idol Geraldine Farrar the unheard-of sum of $20,000 to make three silent movies in eight weeks. (Last week pianist Victor Borge got $100,000 for a single hour on television—but at least you could hear him.)

THAT BEFORE 1906 the only cosmetics used by most "nice ladies" in America were a little rice powder and a touch of cold cream. Rouge and lipstick were practically unknown.

That among the toiletries popular with women at the turn of the century were such genteel items as headache cologne, crushed violet smelling salts and wood violet tooth wash.

That America has 320,000 blind people. That Phi Beta Kappa, the national academic honor society, was organized in—of all places—a tavern in Williamsburg, Va., in 1776. Later the tavern became a girls' seminary.

That the hobby of Robert Weede, star of the Broadway folk opera, "The Most Happy Fella," is raising flowers. His suburban garden has hundreds of varieties.

THAT MANY EXPERTS BELIEVE Adolph Topperwein, 87, of San Antonio, Tex., is the greatest trick shot of all time. In 1907, using 10 Winchester .22 caliber rifles, he shot for 10 straight days at a total of 72,500 small wooden blocks tossed into the air—and missed hitting only nine!

That there are now about 1,000,000 petticoat bosses in United States industry, twice as many as in 1940. That a woman reader, commenting on why women in America outlive men, writes: "One reason men dry up faster than women is that they spit too much. They dehydrate themselves physically, mentally and psychologically, poor slob."

Who knows? She may be right. I'll ask my doctor.

Work Well Done

By Angelo Patri

"I HEAR Jamie won the scholarship and the prize for the best record of the year. You've got a boy in a thousand."

"Of course, we are glad he did well. But we expect him to. Why not? After all, he had nothing else to do but his school work. He ought to do that well, don't you think?"

ANGELO PATRI

IN MY OPINION, Jamie had earned a big cheer. His mother should have shouted for joy. She ought to have baked a big cake and called in all the aunts and uncles, and she and father should have been beaming upon their pride and joy, the center of all the congratulations and good wishes.

Why some people are so stingy with praise for work well done when it comes to their children, and so generous with it when it befalls other folks' children, is a mystery. The children who are preserved from praise because it might give them a "swelled head" are bewildered. They feel cheated. They cannot help feeling that their best efforts are going unnoticed and unappreciated.

ONE GIRL won top honors in her group. Her mother looked at the report sheet that set forth her accomplishments in great detail and said, "That's very nice. Don't forget to stop in at the cleaners this afternoon and get that coat I left there last Tuesday."

Said the girl in telling her aunt about it: "Lily made the honor roll, just made it. Her mother bought her a party dress, invited the whole class over for a hoop-de-doo. Just for making the honor roll, mind you. I won top honors, a scholarship, a medal, and my mother almost yawned in my face."

"Oh, now child, it's not as bad as that. Your mother is delighted and as proud as a peacock, but she is afraid to say so lest she be called chick-proud, and you get a big head. We are all bursting our jackets with pride in you, but we have to pipe down. You know how the neighbors are."

"I know how I feel, and it's not funny," said the honor student. "The least my mother could have done was to say I'd done wonderfully well, say something that told me she was proud of me. But no. 'Go to the cleaners for my coat.'"

Children, young people, all people, need the tonic of praise for accomplishment. They need to know that their families and friends are pleased and proud when they do well. Tell them. Otherwise they won't know.

Out of Same Old Vegetable Rut

Here Are Some Recipes to Try for Something a Little Different

By Hoyt Alden

AS some sage once remarked about cooking in general, the simplest way is the best way, until it gets monotonous.

This is particularly true of vegetables. There are few things to compare with the natural flavor of almost any vegetable, if it is properly cooked and you have a good appetite. But anything can pall, and that's why we have recipes.

Take, for instance, asparagus. The simple way is to clean the asparagus well, break the stems off at the point where they break naturally, put them in a little boiling, salted water as possible, cover them so they will steam, and when they are cooked to the tenderness you like, flavor them well with salt and pepper and butter.

But when you want something different, try this: Select some fat, fresh asparagus, and cook the tender ends in salted water at a galloping boil. Cook them until they're not quite tender and then drain them. Put them in a buttered baking dish and cover them with a fairly thick layer of rich cream sauce, which has been flavored with just a touch of grated onion.

Then cover all this with a quarter-inch layer of grated cheese, dot it with butter and dust it with paprika and a generous pinch of mace. Put it under the broiler and let it cook until it is browned lightly.

WHEN you begin to get a little tired of your cauliflower flavored only with butter and salt and pepper, or lemon juice or cheese sauce, try this:

Cook the cauliflower in boiling water with a little lemon juice. Cook it until it's done, but not until it falls apart. Put it on a hot dish and cover it with the following:

Melt a stick of butter in a heavy pan and then add a couple of tablespoons of grated onion, a heaping teaspoon of chopped parsley and three tablespoons of bread crumbs. Season it with salt and pepper. Sauté it until the butter begins to brown, but don't let it turn black. Chop up three hard-boiled eggs pretty fine and add them. Grate on a little nutmeg. Mix it and pour it on the hot cauliflower and serve it hot.

THE SIMPLEST WAY IS THE BEST WAY, UNTIL IT BECOMES MONOTONOUS.

Mashed potatoes can pall pretty quickly. Of course, there are a lot of other ways to fix potatoes, but even mashed potatoes don't have to be monotonous. Put these in front of your family or friends some time, and give them the surprise of their lives:

Get three dozen medium-sized, fresh mushrooms and wash and stem them. Melt a stick and a half of butter in a frying pan and add a cup of finely chopped onions. Cook them without browning them for about three minutes and then add the mushrooms and cook them until they're tender. Season the mixture to taste with salt and pepper, add a couple of tablespoons of chopped parsley and cook another minute or so.

Peel six large, old potatoes and cut them into fairly small pieces. Cover them with boiling water and cook them until they're done to the fork. Drain them well, mash them and beat them, adding as you go hot milk with two or three tablespoons of melted butter in it. Season them to taste with salt.

Now butter a large baking dish and arrange the mashed potatoes in the bottom and around the sides, leaving a crater in the center. Fill this with the mushrooms, and then cover them with the rest of the potatoes. Dot the top with butter and put it in a hot oven. Set the oven at 500 degrees and bake the potatoes until they're golden brown on top, which should take about 15 minutes.

TO MANY people, spinach is monotonous after the first time they eat it. For people who feel that way about spinach, try spinach cooked in cream. It's simple, delicious, and certainly different. Like this:

Wash three pounds of fresh spinach well. Shake it dry. Then put it on a cloth and dry it some more. To do this properly, you have to get all the excess moisture from the spinach.

Now break off the stems and put the tender leaves in a chopping bowl and chop it rather coarsely. Then put three fourths of a cup of rich cream in a sauce pan. Drain off any moisture or juice which may have accumulated in the spinach during the chopping, and then add it to the cream.

Cover the pan, bring it to a quick boil, shaking it now and then. An enamel sauce pan is best for this. Cook it about five minutes after it comes to a boil, take it off the fire, season it with salt and pepper and serve it hot.

It's hard for fresh green peas right out of the pod to get monotonous, but if such a thing should happen to you, try them with mint. Shell six or eight pounds and put them in a pan with three sprigs of mint. Add just enough boiling water to cover and cook them until they're tender. Drain off the water and add six tablespoons of butter. Season lightly with salt and pepper and put them in a hot bowl and serve them at once.

Designing Woman

Double Lives

By Elizabeth Hillyer

NEW soft beds go into detail to hide their double lives. They've come a long way since it was possible to spot any sofa which tucked up sleeping accommodations a mile off. The new sofa beds have lost their frankly matronly outlines and go in for a lighter look, more subtle curves and more style, undulating backs and arms with a fashionable flair.

New sofa beds on preview display in the advance market showings this week and next answer to style names, Chipendale, Provincial, Ranch, Modern. Among contemporary designs is one sketched with sculptured arms, and for the first time there's a sofa bed with a curved seat outline. All this means that come fall it will be easier than ever to buy a sofa bed for reasons of its appearance as a sofa, and the clincher is the fact that for one of the biggest collections of sofa beds, any fabric cover to suit a decorating scheme can be ordered for any design.

Mrs. D. W. "Is it possible to work out the beige, brown, and turquoise color scheme I prefer for the living room of our new home with the red rug I must use? It's deep red, almost wine-colored. If not, will you suggest something?"

Decorators feel that with skill any combination of colors can be schemed together successfully, but your deep red rug would give the room an effect that's quite different from the typical beige, brown, and turquoise scheme that you probably visualize. It would be easier to use a deeper blue and red, lighter and brighter but echoing the red of the rug, with the beige and brown.

Every Child
Requires
Two Parents

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

EVERY child needs two parents, but there are hundreds of thousands of children who have only one. "I wish you'd talk a little more about the solo parent," Mrs. B. requests. "My husband died last year, leaving me with three small children. Other women are in the same situation because of divorce. We have a great many problems that the world doesn't stop to think about."

"A feeling of isolation is one of the most pervasive. An adult needs adult companionship. No matter how much you love your children, you can't live a full life, you can't grow mentally, if you never hear anything except children's conversation. You don't have satisfactory recreation if your only associates are in if are children. When my husband was living, we would talk about the event of the day. Now I find that my mental life has a hard time rising above the eight-year-old level."

IT IS CERTAINLY a very difficult situation, Mrs. B. A solo parent can get adult companionship, up to a point, if she is working outside the home, but she may not be able to do this if she has small children. There are plenty of difficulties, as you well know. One of them is the problem of how to explain the missing parent to the children. If the father was lost by death, there is always a danger of over-idealizing him. If he was lost by divorce, there is always a danger of deprecating him. In either event, the children do not have the right kind of patterns for their own future life.

ONE STEP you can take immediately, Mrs. B., is to pool your interests with two or three other women in a similar position. If the whole crowd goes on a picnic, it's an advantage to the adults and the children alike.

You can even gain by co-operation in the work of the home. You can take your children to a neighbor on one Saturday, and she can bring hers to your home on the following Saturday. The mothers working together in this way may not get any more accomplished than if they worked alone, but mothers and children alike will get more fun out of it.

Secrets of Charm
Summer Travelers

BE A CHARMING TRAVELER; THE RESULTS WILL BE REWARDING.

THE perennial problem of what-to-wear is always paramount in the minds of summer travelers. Wherever you're going and how, there are basic travel-wise rules to follow.

It's wisest to co-ordinate an interchangeable wardrobe around a central color scheme. That way you can go light on heavy items such as shoes and yet mix-match your skirts, blouses, and shorts or slacks for variety. You will be happy if you stayed under luggage weight limit when it comes to bringing back gifts from the fascinating shopping centers you visit. Plus the fact that overloading yourself with luggage is a costly nuisance on any trip.

Tailored silk suits and classic silk shirt-maker type dresses or lightweight wool suits are appropriate for daytime sightseeing. You can wear your prettiest cottons for after-five cocktails. The little black cocktail dress that can go on for dinner wear is always correct. For cool evenings you'll need a fur wrap, dressy sweater, or wool wrap to throw over your shoulders.

Be sure to pack sports and beach clothes. And—just a footnote—take along a comfortable pair of walking shoes. Use small spillproof, plastic containers for your beauty and grooming aids.

Exceptional pleasure and memories are gained by travel by those who fit in gracefully to new ways. They are the people who get more out of their travels and see sights that are never offered to less receptive visitors.

Be charmed by your travels—set free your enthusiasms, understanding, and curiosity—and you will be charming.

Ten Secrets of Charm.

You are welcome, free of charge, to the reminder card, "Ten Secrets of Charm." It lists 10 points to remember as milestones along the road to greater charm. Write to Secrets of Charm in care of the Post-Dispatch, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed return envelope.

Wallpaper Paste

Wallpaper paste that gets on wood molding should be removed before it has a chance to dry and harden. A good way to take it off is with a sponge dampened in water.

By Walter Winchell

The Biggest Hit in Town

"MY FAIR LADY" derives its title from "London Bridge Is Falling Down," a song chanted in a children's playground game, each of its nine verses ending with the line, "My fair lady." The Alan Jay Lerner-Fredrick Loewe adaptation of Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion" was called "My Fair Lady" when first announced by Herman Levin. . . . Other titles considered and rejected were "Lady Liza," "The Talk of London," "Come to the Ball" and "Fanfaroon." . . . Shaw named his comedy for Pygmalion, a mythical king of Cyprus, skilled with the chisel. . . . From a slab of marble he hewed a statue of Galatea, neighborhood nymph, and became so fascinated with her handiwork that he begged Aphrodite to animate it that he might marry it, or her. Aphrodite, an easy-going goddess, obliged, and Lerner, Loewe and Levin will be forever grateful.

MARY MARTIN... TURNED DOWN LEADING ROLE.

SHAW wasn't the first dramatist to appropriate this Greek plot. . . . As early as 1871 W. S. Gilbert (not yet fused with Mr. S.) wrote a comedy called "Pygmalion and Galatea," which prospered at the Haymarket in London for 194 performances and enriched the librettist to the tune of $200,000. . . . Both Mrs. Langtry ("The Jersey Lily") and Louisville's Mary Anderson toured America in Gilbert's comedy in the '80s. Miss Anderson was a prude. Gilbert once said to her: "I hear that you hate gross things so much you can hardly be induced to take your share of the gross."

IN A LETTER TO Ellen Terry (59 years ago) Shaw said he hoped to write a play for Mrs. Pat Campbell and Forbes Robertson in which "he will be a West End gentleman and she an East End donna in an apron with three orange and red ostrich feathers." Shaw didn't finish the play until 1912. . . . In his stage directions for "Pygmalion" Shaw wrote that Eliza Doolittle, the cockney flower girl, "is perhaps 18, perhaps 20, hardly older." But Mrs. Campbell—by this time she addressed Shaw as Joey—was 49 when she played the role in the original London production. Lynn Fontanne was 39 when she played Eliza and Gertrude Lawrence 47. . . . Julie Andrews, the Eliza of "My Fair Lady," fits Shaw's requirements to a T. She's a radiant 20.

"PYGMALION" was played in German in Vienna, Berlin and New York before London and New York saw Mrs. Pat in the play in 1914. . . . Its first showing in Manhattan was at the Deutsches Theater (Irving Place) in March 1914. . . . "Pygmalion" was Shaw's first commercial success in London's West End.

RASHEST MEMBER of "Lady" was Christopher Hewett, who withdrew from the cast after five weeks—to direct sketches in "The Ziegfeld Follies" buried without benefit of clergy after four weeks out of town. . . . Rash, too, was Mary Martin, who turned down the leading role of Eliza Doolittle. . . . The asking price for the film rights are far higher than any ever asked (or given) for any musical, minstrel or masquerade. . . . Producer Herman Levin ($50,000 in the red when "Lady" opened) is now fated for a life of affluence, terrapin and truffles. Yes, he has no house seats for June and July. . . . Were Shaw alive he would be 100 years old July 26. . . . Levin, Lerner and Loewe will toast the great vegetarian in vintage stuff on that day. . . . They'll toast Aphrodite, too. Where would they be without her?

Sympathetic Ears

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

PSYCHIATRY has grown up. In maturing it has—like adolescent children—been subjected to the taunts of older medical statesmen and to the doubts and suspicions of the general public. The teen-ager will tell you it was difficult getting his elders to understand him—his idiosyncrasies and his problems. My psychiatrist friends who have suffered through the growing pains of their specialty tell me it was not easy in the beginning. They, too, had to put up with suspicion, misunderstanding and actual distrust. With it all came the inevitable "psychiatrist jokes."

Here is the very first joke I heard about psychiatrists. Two psychiatrists are descending in the elevator of their office building late in the afternoon. Each has had a busy day. The older psychiatrist is freshly attired, wears a boutonniere and seems relaxed and free from tension. The young psychiatrist appears worn. His tie is askew, his shirt is rumpled and he is perspiring. He looks at the older man and says: "I can't understand it. Here you and I have had a full, trying day in the office. I am shot! As for you, I'd say you look as unconcerned as when I saw you early this morning. How do you do it? How can you listen to the troubles of so many fellow human beings all day and not be affected? How can you possibly listen to it all?"

The elderly psychiatrist looked at his young colleague and answered without hesitation: "Who listens?"

LIKE MANY GOOD STORIES, this one has a point. I have always considered it one of the best because there is a lesson in it for all of us—laymen and doctors alike. It is this: large, sympathetic ears are an essential part of the doctor's armamentarium. Often we can get along without our stethoscope, blood pressure machine and dozens of other diagnostic instruments; but never without our ears and sympathy for our patients.

We cannot possibly put ourselves in our patient's shoes and feel how he suffers; we cannot make a complete patient-survey unless we listen to him. I write this for doctors who have been letting themselves get too busy to practice good medicine. I write this for patients who do not know any better. For those of you who think that all that is necessary for the doctor to do to earn his fee is to make a cursory examination and write a prescription.

THERE ARE MANY DEFINITIONS of the "good doctor." I consider one of the most essential ingredients is his desire and willingness to listen to your trouble. This is true for any kind of doctor: whether psychiatrist, general practitioner or dermatologist.

Patients often ask me how a layman—with no actual measuring stick—can evaluate a doctor. I tell them what I tell you now: How large are his ears? Is he a listener? Or do you have the feeling as you relate your complaint that he would like to get rid of you as soon as possible; so that he can clean out his waiting room? If so, you have a right to distrust his ability to help you even if he is a "well-trained man."

He's a Latin From Brooklyn

Tony Bavaar's Charming Accent in 'Paint Your Wagon' Sounds Like the Real Thing

By Clarissa Start

WHEN the show "Paint Your Wagon" first opened in Philadelphia, an executive from a record company was so impressed by Tony Bavaar's singing in the role of the Mexican boy, Julio Valverde, that he insisted on talking business to Tony's manager on the train ride back to New York.

"I want to sign this boy to a contract," he said, "but there's only one thing that bothers me. I'm not worried about the album of 'Paint Your Wagon'—that'll be fine. But for commercial records, can he speak English?"

Tony would like everyone who sees "Paint Your Wagon," at the Municipal Opera this week where he's playing his original role, to know that he speaks English. The charming accent he uses which helped him win five awards for his portrayal on Broadway is something he picked up from the rumba musicians who played at intermission time during his band touring days. He learned to speak English, or one of the many American varieties of the language, where he was born and grew up—in Brooklyn.

How Tony happened to become a star in a Spanish speaking role when he speaks no Spanish, singing and acting with no formal training in either, in a small part which no one expected to be noticed in the original version of the show, is one of those nice show business stories which rekindles hope in the hopeful.

There used to be a song about a Latin from Manhattan, who was, in memory serves, of Irish extraction. Tony's background is Italian. Christened Anthony Enrico Varone, he was the youngest of seven children of a mason who was born near Naples.

There isn't anyone in the family with any talent, interest in show business or desire to have any part of it, Tony laughs. "How I ever got into it I don't know."

HOWEVER, he's been singing ever since he can remember. As a schoolboy he sang in the parish choir and his orchestra were appearing. Jones heard the show and offered Tony a job with a road band he was organizing.

"I traveled with him for nine months but I didn't like that kind of life at all," Tony recalls. "I wandered around New York for four months trying to get started and finally got an audition at the Versailles supper club. They liked me and I signed a contract to start July 14. On June 24 I got greetings from Uncle Sam and I went to Versailles, France."

In World War II, Tony saw combat with anti-aircraft batteries in Sicily, Anzio and TONY BAVAAR... HE PICKED UP SPANISH FROM RUMBA MUSICIANS.

Salerno. After two and a half years of combat duty, he was transferred to Special Services and appeared in a show with Burt Lancaster for a year and a half. This was his first actual theater experience.

When he got out of service, it was the familiar story of starting all over again. He changed his name about this time, indirectly through Arthur Godfrey. He appeared briefly on Godfrey's show and Godfrey, who likes to kid around with the names of his singers, kept referring to him as "Tony Varoni." Tony's manager was afraid the name might stick so he juggled the alphabet a bit and changed Varone to Bavaar. As Tony Bavaar, Tony was hired as a production singer in a night club.

"This means you sing while the girls dance around and nobody ever looks at you," he explains. "It was steady work but after three years, he decided he was getting nowhere so he struck out on his own again. As a night club soloist, he appeared in New York, Miami Beach, New Orleans, Montreal. One night he was heard by a producer from TV station WABC in New York and hired for the Club Seven show which was on Channel 7 at 7 p.m. Husband-and-wife pianists Eddie and Rack played on the show."

Then Cheryl Crawford asked Tony to audition for "Paint Your Wagon." They were having difficulty casting the romantic lead who had to sing and act. When they found someone who could act, he couldn't sing; when they found a singer, he couldn't act. Tony was one of the ones who couldn't act.

"After they heard me," he says frankly, "they kept right on looking. They even had a famous actor flown here from Spain but his accent was so thick they couldn't understand his English. I'd learned my Spanish when I was traveling with Isham Jones, listening to the rumba bands that play on relief time for the dance bands. Finally they decided to take a chance on me."

ONE reason they were willing to risk an unknown was that the romantic lead was a small role. But after the Philadelphia opening and Tony's good showing, the part was built up into a substantial one.

Tony likes to give credit where it's due, to Daniel Mann who directed the Broadway show and helped him learn to act; at any rate his performance won five awards, and won for him the distinction of being the only actor to receive two Donaldson awards for the same show. It also gained him a record contract with RCA-Victor after its official, Manny Sachs, learned that Julio (pronounced Hoolio) could speak English. Besides the "Paint Your Wagon" album, Tony has made 16 sides on records.

Last year Tony appeared at the Muni Opera in "The King and I." This year he will go to the Valley Forge Music Fair to be in "Wish You Were Here." He's hoping to find another show, preferably one in which he can just sing and act and live down his Mexican accent. A shower bath opera singer, he doesn't aspire to grand opera but prefers legitimate theater to night club entertaining.

Married to a former Gladys Parker dress designer, Tony has two little girls, Patricia, going on 7, and Kathleen, 3, lives at Massapequa, L.I., and is an ardent do-it-yourselfer.

"I converted our 32 by 55 basement into a playroom, paneled it myself with hand tools," he says proudly. "I love to do landscaping and did all of it around our house. We have mostly evergreens, rhododendrons, azaleas, yews, hellebores, some roses and iris."

We reminded him that singers used to lead wild, wicked lives and drank champagne out of slippers instead of all this life in the suburbs, do-it-yourself business. Tony hinted that he is not above living dangerously at times.

"I love spaghetti," he said, "but it's awfully fattening."

"There's nothing to this one," Mr. Champion remarked. "Undoubtedly he halved it. I have a hand like this. There is absolutely no way to go wrong on it. Anybody would reach the obvious contract of four spades and when they do, they will win exactly 10 tricks against reasonable defense."

"There's no way to go set and there's no way to make an extra trick—unless the defense falls flat on its face."

"I didn't think it was such a standard hand at our table," said Mr. Dale.

"What else could happen?" Mr. Champion interrupted. "South opened his singleton diamond and his partner won and led back a high diamond. I ruffed and South overruffed and got out with a trump. Later I had to lose a heart trick to the king. How can they get more—or less—than a spade, a heart and a diamond?"

"Well, if you'll be quiet for a minute," said Mr. Dale, "I'll tell you what happened at our table. We were defending against the same contract, four spades, and . . ."

Mr. Champion cut in. "I suppose you're going to tell me we lost this match. Muzzy probably opened the king of spades or revoked or something. Tell me the bad news. Did they make five or six against you?"

"They made three-odd," replied Mr. Dale. "We set 'em a trick."

Mr. Champion was pleased to learn his team had won the match, but he couldn't believe it was due to his teammates' defensive skill. "What happened?" he asked. "Did Mr. East get his cards mixed up?"

"Somebody did," answered Mr. Dale, "but it wasn't East. It was Muzzy. He had a card out of place and the results were devastating."

Importance Of Age in The Teens

By Elinor Williams

"HOW old are you?" You often hear this question during the teens, because ages seem more important during teen-time than any other part of your life. Age is a vital factor in deciding big things like when you'll have dates. This girl wonders if a boy's age is important, too.

"My question is an unusual one. What if a girl likes a boy who is one or two years younger than she is? I happen to know a case like this and I am wondering what a person would do. It's different if the boy is older than the girl."

Answer—The most important thing is whether a girl and boy really like each other, understand each other and have fun together—these things are much more important than a boy's age.

It needn't matter a bit if a boy is younger than a girl. If it means that the girl gets a little teasing from her friends (they will always tease about something), she can easily put a stop to the teasing by taking it good-naturedly.

When they see that it doesn't annoy her, it won't be fun, so they'll stop. . . . and they will quickly forget the whole thing. If she doesn't pay attention to the fact that he is younger, others won't either.

For example, if her friends tease her about "robbing the cradle," she could just grin and reply, "Sure, it's fun." Agree with them and the fun of teasing is gone.

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

Answer to Question 1. YOU can find out pretty accurately in a 15-minute test whether a man is intelligent and how much intelligence he has as compared with others who have a somewhat similar background and education. It is not much trouble to test a man's education as he usually reveals a lot about that in a five-minute conversation. But how moral he is may never be known. When we devise a method of testing a man's morality as accurately as we do his intelligence, a lot of us will have to behave much better than we do.

Answer to Question 2. Yes. Hate sometimes holds people together in an unquenchable passion to hurt each other. It unifies and animates all their energies—often in marriage, in order that they may vent their hatred. I have seen two business partners kept together by their very hatred of each other and the consequent fear of each that the other might reap some advantage from dissolving the partnership.

Answer to Question 3. No. I don't, and neither does anybody else. You often hear people say they enjoy their work. They do, more than merely loafing, but they don't enjoy it as much as they would fishing, boating, playing golf, or bridge. Man is naturally a playing, hunting, adventurous, fighting creature. He works only because civilization makes him work. True, men enjoy hard exercise, such as climbing, gardening, finishing furniture, building a radio; but all these are play—adventure. The moment anything becomes work, nobody in his right mind enjoys it.

Miss Emily Norcross To Be Presented Today

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

THREE hundred and fifty guests will call after 5 o'clock this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank J. V. Krebs, 9365 Clayton road, Ladue, to meet Mrs. Krebs's granddaughter, Miss Emily Frances Norcross. The guest of honor, a debutante of the new season, is the elder daughter of Mrs. Hiram Norcross Jr., 8 Berkley lane, Ladue, and the late Mr. Norcross. The reception is planned to take place in Mrs. Krebs's extensive gardens. The debutante, her mother and grandmother will receive their guests on the south lawn, standing before evergreens near the terrace which is attractive with garden furniture shaded by a green awning. Two large wrought iron urns filled with white gladiolas mark the terrace steps.

Tables centered with white daisies and pale pink roses surrounding hurricane lamps are scattered over the broad lawn and are clustered under gay umbrellas in the brick-walled Italian garden which will be flood-lighted at dusk.

An elaborate buffet table in the dining room, where a group of debutantes will serve, is decorated with a crystal epergne holding white daisies, candytuft and stock. The girls assisting will be Miss Katherine Norcross, sister of the debutante, who will be a senior at Chatham Hall next fall; Miss Rosalind Tupper, Miss Elizabeth Swarts, Miss Helene Bakewell, Miss Abigail Richards, Miss Stry Nedringhaus, Miss Anne Boyd and Miss Katharine Thomas.

For her first party Miss Norcross has chosen a white organza gown printed in pale pink geraniums and moss green leaves. Made with a short bouffant skirt and short sleeves, the dress is belted in moss green velvet tied in a bow and streamers. Her flowers, in the same tones, will be Stephanotis and pale pink garnet roses arranged in a small round bouquet. Mrs. Krebs will be in powder blue lace and Mrs. Norcross in gray mousseline de soie with white organdy flowers appliqued on the skirt.

A graduate of Chatham Hall a year ago, Miss Norcross, called Mimi, has just completed her freshman year at Smith College to which she will return in September. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. Hiram Norcross Sr. and a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Herlick Norcross, all of whom came from Tyrone, Ark., for the party.

On July 5 the debutante will be guest of honor at a luncheon to be given at the St. Louis Country Club by Mrs. L. Ray Carter, assisted by Mrs. Carter's cousin, Mrs. Kevin C. Morrin. She will meet her own contemporaries at a ball at the country club Saturday, Dec. 22, at which three other debutantes will share honors.

Mrs. Norcross and her daughters will have a cottage at Harbor Beach, Mich., for August. Mrs. Krebs leaves in mid-July for the clubhouse at Harbor Point, Mich.

Miss Haase Bows at Two Parties.

RECEPTION from 5 to 7 o'clock yesterday afternoon for family friends and a garden dance last night for the debutante set served to introduce Miss Lois Haase, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Haase, 6159 Lindell boulevard. Both parties were given at her home.

A pink and white color scheme, the effect achieved by pink roses and white blossoms, began in the house and continued to the lawn beyond the formal garden where a pink and white striped marquee shielded the dance floor.

On both occasions the debutante and her parents received at the living room mantel, a profusion of pink roses providing a background. Miss Haase wore a short white taffeta gown embroidered in iridescents and appliqued with tiny white flowers. A pleated ruffle of pink and white tulle borders the top of the fitted strapless bodice and a deep pink and white tulle flounce is set on beneath the overskirt. She carried a fan overlaid with pink sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Haase's gown was pink linen appliqued with white flowers and trimmed with tulle.

A long buffet table for the afternoon party was arranged in the dining room with a center epergne filled with pink roses and white blossoms. Guests wandered at will through the patio and rose garden.

For the dance, at which Russ David's orchestra played, small tables with pink and white daisies and hurricane lamps for decoration surrounded the dancing area and at one side stood another buffet, the centerpiece a black wrought iron container holding roses and greenery.

Mrs. Haase's brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Louis H. Hempelmann, came from their home in Rochester, N.Y., for the party.

Miss Haase, a graduate of John Burroughs School, has just returned from Leland Stanford University, Palo Alto, Calif., where she completed her sophomore year. She, her mother and sisters, Miss Dorothy and Ellen, will sail from New York June 27 on the Vulcania for Barcelona. At Majorca, where they have leased a house for the summer, they will be joined by the Haases' fourth daughter, Miss Janet, who will be graduated June 30 from the International School in Geneva, Switzerland. Mr. Haase will join his family for August and take them to Paris and Vienna. The girls will return in September; their parents will fly to Spain, returning early in October on the Christoforo Colombo.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Bingham of Syracuse, N.Y., former residents of San Juan, Puerto Rico. Mrs. Wasson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elgin E. Wasson, 5447 Bartmer avenue, and Magnolia, Mass.

The former Miss Bingham wore a white organdy gown over ice blue. Her chapel length veil was gathered to a head-piece fashioned of tulle scrolls embroidered with pearls. She carried lilies of the valley and pink roses.

Miss Diane Bingham, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Zoe Ann Wasson, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Carol Donahue, Port Huron, Mich.; Miss Dawn Simonson, Palm Beach, Fla.; and Miss Carlotta Prichard of Washington. Their white eyelet pique dresses were worn over pale blue organdy and they held summery garden bouquets of blue cornflowers and delphinium and pink roses. The bride's mother chose a pink embroidered organdy costume and a corsage of garnet roses while the bridegroom's mother was in a cornflower blue ribbon-knit dress. Her flowers were cream-colored cymbidium orchids.

The bridegroom's father served as best man; ushers were Francis Whitehead, Del Rio, Tex.; Alex Robertson, San Marino, Calif.; James Schierholz, St. Louis; Fred Hunter, Los Angeles; and William Henderson, Baltimore.

The reception was given in Hutchinson House on the Principia campus. Among the out-of-town guests, who like the attendants were here from widely separated localities, were the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. N. B. Greenleaf, Toronto, Ont.; Mrs. Vernon Prichard and Mrs. Roderick Allen, Washington; Mrs. Max Laven, Shaker Heights, O.; Mrs. Byron Simonson, Palm Beach, and John Doncaster, London, England. Mrs. Wasson and his bride will spend their honeymoon in Colorado. They will live in Coronado, Calif., where he is stationed at the naval air base.

Martha Carr's

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. OPINION

Dear Martha:

ARE some people born unhappy? I thought it was a man's duty to be a good provider and I try as best I can. But my wife is continually running people down. She thinks church people are hypocrites. Her mother is the same way, always criticizing everyone. My wife won't join any groups or go out and enjoy herself. If she would it would be a lot better for myself and our son.

DEPRESSED HUSBAND.

Some people who have had worries and headaches—and who hasn't?—seem to nurse along those hurts the rest of their lives, reluctant to let go because they thus can assume the role of martyr and appear to have suffered much. They take out their unhappiness on everyone around them, refuse to see anything but the worst in people, let themselves become carping, critical, miserable souls who think only of their own troubles and nothing of what they are inflicting on others. Is there any way you can release your wife from her mother's influence? Maybe if they didn't see each other quite so much they wouldn't feed on the other's discontent. Take an occasional weekend trip—just you and your wife and son—or take the two of them out to dinner. You don't have to turn your back on your mother-in-law, but you certainly have the right to have your immediate family to yourself occasionally. By paying special attention to your wife, you may gradually be able to pull her out of the doldrums and make her realize that even though everyone doesn't measure up to expectations, there is still a lot of good in this world.

Dear Martha:

TO "TROUBLED HUSBAND," whose wife kept complaining because he was not earning more money, I have this to say: Don't think for a minute that you are alone. But to solve this problem doesn't mean waiting to see if she will change. Put things on the line, explain that you are doing everything possible for her and your family and does she realize that she is undermining your health? When a girl marries a man who does not drink or spend his money foolishly she has much to be thankful for, and if her sister has a rich husband that doesn't mean she has to taunt her own husband because he isn't rich. Martha's answer was right but I still say he shouldn't put up with this nonsense. To this wife I would say: Keep your man honest and healthy by showing him you appreciate all he is doing and forget about your sister. Love that man of yours and his love for you will make him try all the harder, but when he has to hear constant whining about the other guy you are jeopardizing his and your own future. If you want so many things go out and earn money for them. If you can't do so, be content. If your sister has so much, then let her share her good fortune with you. Be a little human. FAIR PLAY.

IN ANSWER TO Ellen: If your office is air-conditioned as you say, I see no reason for your wearing such casual costumes as sunback dresses, especially as your employer has mentioned the matter of proper office dress. In offices where there is no air-conditioning and the heat is oppressive, there might be an excuse. Otherwise, I must agree with your boss.

Send today for Martha Carr's free leaflet of prayers for children and grace to be said at table. Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

A Somebody

By Ruth Millett

WHEN a wife begins to feel like a nobody it is often her husband who is responsible. Read this letter, men, and see if, with a few minor changes, it could have been written by your own husband-pecked wife.

RUTH MILLETT

thing more in life than going to work, coming home, reading the paper, watching TV and acting like a tyrant with the children.

"When I ask him to take over the youngest while I catch up on some needed work, he says he doesn't see why he has to when the older children are able. As long as I mind my own business, work and work and expect nothing from him things go along fairly smoothly. But if I have any ideas of my own about bringing up children or making changes around the house I always meet with opposition. It's discouraging day after day. I feel more like a machine than a person.

"I want so to be a person, to do some things I want to do without criticism. I often wonder what became of the young man I married who said he loved me and talked of what a wonderful life we would have together. My days at home are long gone. He would probably think it silly to call me up sometimes during his lunch hour. But how it would break the monotony of my day to think he cared enough to call.

"I'd like to do something to fix up the house and have him tell me it looks fine. Instead of demanding to know what I did THAT for.

"Why can't a man understand that it's awful for a woman to get to feeling like a Nobody?"

There it is, men. Nothing more needs to be added. That's what happens to a woman's life when her husband stops seeing her and treating her as a person.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

SECRETARY writes me: "My employer has his own private office and I have a small office just outside his. We have an inter-office telephone. When he wants anything he buzzes and I pick up the telephone. Is it necessary to say 'hello' every time he calls me for something? Or may I say 'yes?' I have been saying the latter and have been criticized by someone in the office for doing this. I would very much appreciate your opinion on this matter."

Your brief word is entirely correct—unless your employer tells you that "hello" is what he wants you to answer.

DEAR MRS. POST: My daughter is going to be married soon at a morning wedding. I had intended to wear a lace dress but my daughter tells me that lace is limited to late afternoon and evening wear and would not be correct at a morning hour.

Answer: Ordinarily, a lace dress is not worn in the morning, but at a wedding and on the mother of the bride, it is entirely proper.

Multiple Sclerosis Mother of the Year

Colleen Edwards in St. Louis to Help Spur Campaign for Funds Here

By Mary Kimbrough

LIFE had been good to Colleen Edwards up until that dark day some eight years ago when her cheek suddenly became numb, prelude to a series of attacks destined to paralyze her completely and cause everyone—except Colleen—to give up hope.

A slim, pretty brunette, still in her teens, she had gone from Kansas City, Kan., to the big-time band of Red Nichols as soloist. Then she had appeared in Houston, Tex., with a number of bands and was apparently on her way to stardom as a singer. Married to a musician, she was expecting her first child when the creeping attacks became more severe and suddenly, without warning, crippled her completely.

Multiple sclerosis, said the doctors. They delivered a healthy baby girl by caesarean section but the mother, they predicted, would never walk again, never talk again, never sing. She probably couldn't live. They just didn't know Colleen. Back into the conscious world but still paralyzed throughout her entire body, she lay in a Houston hospital room, determined to fight back. That was six years ago and today, at 27, Colleen has made such a remarkable recovery that she has been selected as "Multiple Sclerosis Mother of the Year," symbol of the hope that other victims can have for improvement in their own conditions.

"I keep telling them, keep your chin up," says Colleen. "Sure, it's tough. I know. I went through it. But I came back and so can they."

ACCOMPANIED by her daughter, Jacque, and her mother, Mrs. Michael F. Spaight, Colleen came to St. Louis this week to spur the local campaign for funds. A goal of $30,000, to be divided 40-60 between support of the national research program and service to area patients, has been set, with the campaign scheduled through the remainder of the month. Charles P. McBride is chairman of the St. Louis area chapter and headquarters are at 708 Chestnut street.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society has given a number of research grants, including one to Dr. El Robinson, professor of neurology in the Washington University school of medicine, to uncover additional facts about the disease. Medical authorities classify it as a disease of the central nervous system, using the analogy of a telephone wire with worn out insulation which causes faulty communication. When the protective insulation on the central nervous system wastes away, as in the case of multiple sclerosis, impaired bodily activity is the result.

But still so little is known about the disease that Colleen had never heard of it when she launched the career destined to be interrupted by her tragic illness. A dancer during her grade school days, she started singing when she was 14 and two years later was singing professionally.

"Singing was less work," she smiled. "When I found out I could make as much singing as I could dancing—with a high school swing band in Kansas City, and with bands around town." And at 16, she sang with Red Nichols when her family moved to California. Then she struck out on her own and headed for Houston, where she got a job as soloist at a night club.

BUT A FEW MONTHS later, the paralysis attacks began, returning with increasing frequency until the most severe one sent her to the hospital, there to begin a long, weary fight back to health.

From July to October she couldn't talk but gradually her voice came back and by the next Mother's Day she was able to be out of the hospital and on her feet—with help from her mother. Gradually, her legs gained strength and although she still needs assistance over the rough spaces, she has developed a physical independence that her doctors never thought possible a few years ago.

"I think much of my improvement is due to my determination," she said. "It's slow, but it's sure. I'm determined to get back to normal."

Living at home with her parents and Jacque, she does much of the work while her mother is employed. She does all the cooking, takes care of her daughter, and runs small errands.

Colleen, bright-eyed and pretty, with no hint in her face of the pain and discouragement she has suffered, is what she terms a "furniture walker." She grasps articles of furniture to help propel herself across a room, a far cry from those first days of recovery when her mother literally dragged her in an effort to teach her to walk all over again.

Maybe the most significant thing about her rate of recovery, however, is that she doesn't have her Canadian walking sticks with her on this trip. She got so excited about the Kansas City Athletics' baseball broadcast just before she left town that she simply forgot her crutches.

My Day

Visitors From Nigeria

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK.

WE reached Hyde Park Monday afternoon in very good time to greet the Finance and Commerce Minister from Nigeria, K. Ozuomba Mbadiwe, and his party.

There were nine in his party. They apparently spent a very pleasant time at the Memorial Library and then came over here, where we gave them a buffet dinner before they started back to New York. I was glad to see them and to hear of the many things that are happening in Nigeria. Now, more than ever, I am anxious to make a trip to Africa.

Monday evening we went to the opening performance at our Hyde Park Playhouse and saw an amusing, light play called "The Champagne Complex."

The night was too cold for comfort, but after the hot days we have had, we should be glad of this change and certainly not complain.

George Quick, director of the Playhouse, promises us an interesting season of plays.

TWO DEATHS have occurred in the past few days which must have brought sorrow to large family groups and, in each case, to many friends.

One of these was the death of Thomas J. Watson, chairman of the board of the International Business Machines Corp., and the I.B.M. World Trade Corp.

Mr. Watson made it his pleasure to acquire friends as well as to encourage the arts in every country where he did business. And any one with an interest in international good will grieves for the loss of this influence.

DEATH also took Vanderbilt Webb who, although many years younger, was a very vital part of the community. He was attorney for the Rockefeller Foundation.

In both of these deaths, men that meant much to the life of the country have gone and, while extending sympathy to their families, one also must regret the loss which their passing means to our communities.

The Dean Speaks Up

The Blessing of Sleep

By Adele Starbird

WHEN the Spanish diplomat, Salvador de Madariaga, was attending an international conference, he insisted upon going to bed early every evening.

There could be no late meetings where he was concerned. Some of his colleagues were a little nettled. They worked longer hours than Madariaga, but they could not equal his volume of work.

"How can you accomplish so much when you sleep so long?" they asked. "You sleep more than we do."

The diplomat smiled gently. "Ah, but I am so much wider awake when I do work," he said.

Madariaga was right. Sleep, which some of us resent as a waste of time, is in the end a time saver and an excellent investment. It is insurance against accidents, mistakes, errors of judgment, and clashes of personalities. How many disasters could have been avoided by a good night's sleep!

THE MOOD in which one goes to bed has everything to do with the quality of one's sleep. A social worker tells me about a little boy who said every night when she tucked him in, "Goodnight, Kay. Fun tomorrow!" To go to bed in joyous anticipation of the morning is a wonderful preparation for rest.

On page 590 of The Book of Common Prayer, a portion of one of the evening prayers has this petition: "Purge our hearts from envy, hatred, and malice; that we may never suffer the sun to go down upon our wrath."

but may always go to our rest in peace, charity, and good-will, with a conscience void of offense towards thee, and towards men; that so we may be preserved pure and blameless, unto the coming of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

There is good reason for the Biblical injunction here quoted. "Let not the sun go down upon your wrath." Anger and resentment which are carried through the hours of sleep burrow more deeply into the unconscious and are harder to eradicate. We need to cleanse our hearts and minds even more faithfully than we brush our teeth at night. Many people find it helpful to read aloud, if they have not memorized, these evening prayers which are intended for family use.

SLEEP IS an act of faith. Charles Peguy, the French poet, represents God as saying, "I don't like the man who doesn't sleep." Sleeplessness is, he says, the greatest infidelity. Laziness is not a greater sin than unrest and despair and lack of confidence. God plies the people who have the courage to work, but who lack the courage to be idle, to stretch out and rest.

"They look after their business very well during the day, but they haven't enough confidence in Me to let Me look after it during the night. As if I couldn't look after it during one night!"

"And I tell you, put off until tomorrow those troubles and those worries which are gnawing at you... because between now and tomorrow, maybe I, God, will have passed your way. And I say, Blessed is he who hopes, and who sleeps."

Peguy would have loved the little boy who said "Fun tomorrow!"

New Jam Requires No Cooking

By Edith M. Barber

CAN a fruit jam be made without cooking? It seems as if the answer would be no. If, however, you have room for jam jars in your freezer, the uncooked product will keep as long as a year.

In the refrigerator, it will keep a few months, but it should not be stored on the kitchen or pantry shelf. These points are stressed by the United States Department of Agriculture which has been testing a new type of jam for several years.

The fruit must be fully ripe and sound. Berries should, of course, be stemmed and peaches pitted. The fruit, except for blueberries which must be ground, should be crushed. The sugar is then added, mixed thoroughly, and allowed to stand 20 minutes, with an occasional stir. Then, powdered pectin is dissolved in water and boiled one minute. This solution is stirred into the fruit mixture for about two minutes. Then the jam is ready to ladle into the glasses. It should be covered and allowed to stand 24 to 48 hours until set.

The next step is to seal it with hot paraffin and to cover with a metal lid. It is then ready to put into the freezer or the refrigerator and this should be done promptly.

Three cups of crushed fruit can be counted upon to fill about nine 6-ounce glasses.

Uncooked Jam.

Five cups sugar, three cups crushed fruit, one package powdered pectin, one cup water.

Add sugar to crushed fruit and mix well. Let stand 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Dissolve powdered pectin in water, bring to a boil and boil one minute. Add pectin solution to fruit and sugar mixture. Stir two minutes. Ladle jam into jelly glasses, filling to about 1/2 inch of rim. Cover and let stand 24 to 48 hours until firm. Seal with hot paraffin and cover with metal lid. Store in freezer or refrigerator immediately. Yield: About nine 6-ounce glasses.

Fresh Fruit to Allow
For three cups crushed fruit allow: two and a half pounds peaches; one quart blueberries; one and a half to two quarts other berries.

Fix It Yourself

Loose Nails.

AS IF there weren't enough troubles in this world, all of a sudden it seems that people are beginning to have trouble with nails that won't stay tight.

Now we know for a fact that if you drive a nail into wood with one or two heavy hits from the hammer it won't hold as well as if you drive it gently into place. We know also that a dirty or rusty nail won't hold as well as a clean one. We also know that unless the two surfaces you are nailing together are pressed tightly against one another, the nail may work loose. We also know that nails don't hold as well in green wood as they do in seasoned wood.

The unfortunate fact of the matter is that much of the wood you buy today is not as well seasoned as it should be and this fact is the main reason for nails working loose. As we are using lumber just about as fast as it's being cut there seems little chance of our getting better seasoned wood; therefore we have to figure out some other way to make the nails hold.

We can do this by using nails that have been especially treated to give them greater holding power. Nails that are coated with rosin or cement have a much higher holding power than do ordinary nails. It's not worth trying to coat ordinary nails with rosin or cement, but you can buy them ready coated for a few cents more than you pay for regulation nails.

Even greater holding power can be obtained by using nails that are grooved or ringed. These nails, often called "threaded" nails, come in sizes and shapes for almost all types of jobs—for flooring, for plywood or hardboard subfloors, for gypsum wallboard, etc. They can be driven down with almost the same speed and ease as an ordinary nail and have far greater holding power. When a job calls for a nail that just has to stay tight—these are probably your best bet unless you want to take the time to install a regulation wood screw.

Salmon and Tomato Chowder
Ingredients: One can (10½ ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup, one can (10½ ounces) condensed beef consommé, one can (one pound) stewed tomatoes, one can (about eight ounces) salmon, two tablespoons cooking sherry, one-fourth teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, one-fourth cup heavy cream.

Method: Empty condensed undiluted cream of mushroom soup, condensed undiluted beef consommé and stewed tomatoes into a saucepan (at least two quarts). Remove skin and bones from salmon; add fish to saucepan in chunks. Bring to simmer over low heat, stirring occasionally to mix well and flake salmon. Add sherry, Worcestershire sauce and cream; reheat but do not boil. Makes one and one-half quarts.

Minnie's Black Beans and Rice
Ingredients: One package (12 ounces) quick-cooking black beans, two quarts warm water, one cup (four small) chopped onion, two-thirds cup (one medium-sized) chopped green pepper, three large or six small garlic cloves (minced), three-fourths cup olive oil, one teaspoon dried crushed oregano, one large bay leaf, two tablespoons cider vinegar, one teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, one cup rice, finely diced Spanish onion.
Method: Pick over beans; rinse with warm water and drain. Put beans and two quarts warm water in a kettle (three quarts is a good size) and soak overnight. Next morning do not drain off soaking water; add onion, green pepper, minced garlic, olive oil, oregano, bay leaf, vinegar, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil; simmer, covered, until tender—about three hours; most of liquid will evaporate. Stir occasionally, especially toward end of cooking period. Add more salt if needed. Boil rice according to package directions. To serve, place a portion of rice in a soup dish and spoon over hot or reheated beans. Pass finely diced Spanish onion to be sprinkled over beans. Makes six servings.

White Cotton Lace
White cotton lace is combined with black chiffon in the design of a handsome dress for the matron. The lace fashions a long-waisted form-fitting overblouse to which is attached a gracefully full floor-length skirt of the chiffon.
